Parade to kick off Bicentennial fete

The Spirit of '76 Parade will kick off the weekend Bicentennial festivities in Arlington Heights this morning.

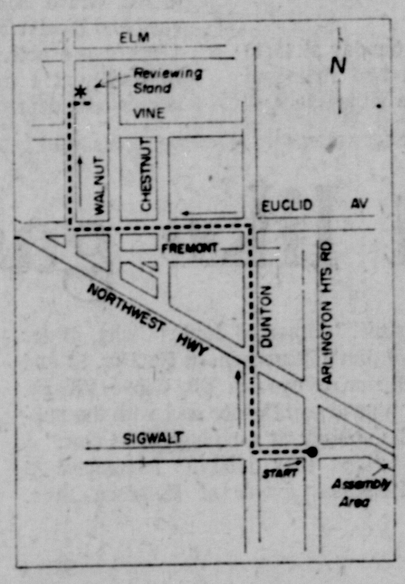
The parade will step off in front of the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., at 9:30 a.m. The floats, marching bands and rolling displays will proceed west on Sigwalt Street and then go north on Dunton Avenue to Euclid Avenue. The units will then turn west to a reviewing stand at Arlington High School.

The community celebration Festival '76 will continue with a "Walk Through Yesterday" exhibit at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St., sponsored by the Church of the Latter Day Saints.

The park, which will be the scene of most of the festivities, also will have an arts and craft display Saturday through Monday.

A DANCE REVIEW and a late night family swim at the park's heated outdoor pool will conclude Saturday's celebration.

The Fourth of July festivities will begin with a free tour and continental breakfast at Arlington Park Race Track, starting at 8 a.m. Sunday. Maxwell G, the "ageless" wonder horse, will be on hand for petting by youngsters.



ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Bicentennial Parade will step off at 9:30 a.m. today and follow this route.

A villagewide church service will be held at Recreation Park at 12:15 p.m. Worshippers may remain at the park for picnics, displays and carnival rides.

Race track activities will resume at 1:38 p.m. with a horse show featuring the United Professional Horsemen's Assn., an Appaloosa show and a U.S. Army Ranger demonstration. A Dixieland band will provide the music at the track.

The races will start at 2 p.m. with the arrival of a U.S. Army Colonial Color Guard unit and 50-state flag display.

FEATURE RACE of the day will be the 66th running of the American Derby, a $100,000 race matching some of the country's finest 3-year-olds over a mile-and-an-eighth on the grass track.

The village's celebration will shift to the race track at 8 p.m. with a free family stage show and tht Disneyworld Bicentennial fireworks show until 10 p.m.

Festival '76 will continue Monday with a handicapped children's carnival at Recreation Park starting at 10 a.m.

Arts and crafts displays, exhibits and a flea market will be the attractions during the afternoon and evening. A community dance will provide the windup of Arlington Heights' Independence Day observance from 8 until 11 p.m. at the park.

Dunne asks 1c gallon gasoline tax

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County Board Pres. George W. Dunne Friday proposed a one-cent-per-gallon county gasoline tax to replace the $3-per-month employe head tax proposal he withdrew earlier this week.

At a special meeting of the county board, Dunne proposed the tax, to become effective Oct. 1, saying it would raise about $18 million for the county budget.

A public hearing on the tax will be at 10 a.m. Monday, July 12. Dunne said he hopes the county board will approve the tax before the end of July.

Dunne said the tax will not apply to fuel oil or the diesel fuel such as that burned by trucks and buses. The one-cent tax would be in addition to 13 cents in state and federal motor fuel taxes now levied on gasoline.

THE NEW proposal immediately drew opposition from Republican Comr. Carl Hansen, officials of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce and gasoline dealers.

In proposing the gas tax, Dunne said he had considered a county sales tax, utility tax or legalization of off-track betting, but decided the gas tax was the best because it would not be difficult to collect.

He said he withdrew the employe head tax because of questions of its constitutionality and because business leaders said it would drive industry from the county. He said he believes there are no constitutional problems with the gasoline tax.

Dunne said $10 million of the $18 million raised by the tax would be used to grant cost-of-living raises for county employes for next year. Dunne's present $172.6 million budget gave no cost-of-living raises. He said $3.5 million of the new revenue will be used to pay for employes who have been added for only part of this year's budget and will work all next year.

THE COUNTY tax would be imposed only within Cook County boundaries. The Regional Transportation Authority has the power to levy a 5 per cent tax on gasoline in the six-county metropolitan area. Dunne said he "can't anticipate" whether the RTA will eventually levy such a tax.

Hansen said he believes the county tax will adversely affect the "fragile structure" of the RTA and also said he believes the county tax will send suburban drivers to neighboring counties in search of cheaper gas.

RTA Board Member Daniel Baldino said the county gas tax would "certainly create a problem" if the RTA should ever levy its own gasoline tax.

Hansen also said he wants Dunne to present the county board with alternative tax proposals and believes the county should do a long-range study of its financial needs before it adopts new taxes. He said, "We're getting one shoe dropped after another (in proposed new taxes), but we haven't looked at the long term."

Kids to celebrate birth as Americans on July 4

by DAINE MERMIGAS and DAVE GALANTI

Three-year-old Mi Mi Avery will become an American citizen on the Fourth of July, a day she's looking forward to mostly for the flag-waving and fireworks.

And Tara Olsen also will receive a special Bicentennial present July 4. She, too, will become an American citizen.

Little Mi Mi, and 6-year-old Tara were Korean orphans when they came to the United States. Robert and Patricia Avery, 1619 Thacker St., Des Plaines, adopted Mi Mi shortly after she arrived in the states in 1973, when she was only 5 months old.

Tara's adoption by Don and Belinda Olsen, 1111 Sharon Dr., Schaumburg, was a little more difficult. They had to wait 15 months before they received her, and then they found her visa and file had been lost somewhere along the way. Partly because of this, it has taken three years of paperwork and frustration to prepare for the naturalization ceremony Sunday, at the Chicago Stadium in which 1,776 persons will take part.

While little Mi Mi does not fully understand what it will mean to be naturalized, she is excited nonetheless.

"I be American," she said, often waving a miniature American flag and singing "Happy Birthday" to America.

"She has known no other family or way of life," Avery said. The Averys also adopted another Korean orphan, Amie, who was 3 months old when she arrived in April 1975. Avery said the two girls are "inseparable buddies." Both will wear matching red,

Super July 4th planned for nation's 200th birthday

In honor of the nation's 200th birthday, Northwest suburbs have scheduled an unprecedented series of ceremonies and celebrations.

Des Plaines

Des Plaines has declared this week Bicentennial Week, with the Fourth Annual Drum and Bugles Corps Contest kicking off the celebration at 7:30 tonight at Maine West High School, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines. Drum and bugle corps from four states and Canada will perform. Admission is $2.50 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

At noon Sunday there will be a coordinated ringing of church bells throughout the city, followed by the Chamber of Commerce parade at 12:30 p.m. The parade will begin at Oakton and Lee streets, north on Lee and end at the old North School Parking lot, River Road and Jefferson Street.

Yacht races and formation sailing will be held on Lake Opeka at 1:30 p.m., followed at 3 p.m. by foot races and other games for the entire family.

The Free Street Theatre will stage productions at 5 and 8 p.m. at the Military Memorial Band Pavilion at the lake with the Maine West Band performing at 7 p.m. The fireworks display will begin at 9 p.m. at the lake.

An outdoor Bicentennial Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Stephen's Church, 1267 Everett St., with a breakfast following the mass. A Kiwanis Pet and Bike Parade will begin at 1 p.m. and proceed through downtown. A musical review will be presented at the lake at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Buffalo Grove

In Buffalo Grove, the activities begin Sunday at 12:30 p.m. with a parade from Lake Cook and Arlington Heights roads, east on Lake-Cook to the village hall. A schedule of games has been planned for the afternoon at Emmerich Park. Fireworks will begin at dusk at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights also plans a six-day celebration, which began Wednesday with a carnival at Recreation Park, 500 Miner St., and will finish Monday with a community dance.

The Spirit of '76 Parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. today in front of the village hall and will go west on Sigwalt Street, north on Dunton Avenue to Euclid and then to Arlington High School. After the parade, there will be a "Walk Through Yesterday" at Recreation Park.

There will be a tour of the Arlington Park Race Track Sunday, followed by a trackside breakfast from 9 to 10:30 a.m. A community church service will be held at Recreation Park at 12:15 p.m. with a carnival and picnics in the afternoon. At noon, there will be a full program of racing at the track, preceded by marching bands and military displays.

At 8:15 p.m., the track will be opened for a free program of music, followed by Fireworks.

On Monday, the handicapped children's carnival begins at 10 a.m. at Recreation Park until noon and a community dance will begin at 8 p.m.

Elk Grove Village

In Elk Grove Village, officials are combining the nation's birthday celebration with the village's birthday and the parade for the two will be July 18, stepping off from Clearmont Drive and Ridge Avenue, going north to Elk Grove Boulevard and west on Kennedy Boulevard and Biesterfield Road to the fire station.

There are activities scheduled today at Lion's Park beginning at 1 p.m with a carnival and followed by games and demonstrations into the evening. A similar schedule is set for Sunday, with fireworks to begin at 9:30 p.m.

Prospect Heights

Prospect Heights, which hosted a series of Bicentennial events the first week in June, will have a Fourth of July parade at 11 a.m. beginning at MacArthur Junior High School and ending at Lions Park.

Wheeling

Wheeling's celebration begins at 10:30 a.m. Sunday with a water fight between firemen and village officials at 12th Street and Dundee Road, followed by greased pole and watermelon eating competition.

At 2 p.m., there will be a baby parade at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Road, followed by a carnival at 4 p.m. The fireworks will begin at dusk in the park.

Hoffman Estates

In Hoffman Estates, the parade will be Monday beginning at 10 a.m. on Payson Street. It will proceed north on Illinois Boulevard to Chino Park, where a full day of activities is scheduled.

On Sunday, drum and bugle corps competition will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Conant High School. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Fireworks will follow the competition.

A dinner dance will be held at 7:30 tonight at the Moon Lake Recreation Hall 1885 Jennifer Dr. Tickets are $6.

The mustache and beard competition judging will be held at the Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan, 140 N. Gannon Dr., Monday at Chino Park at 2:30 p.m.

Rolling Meadows

Rolling Meadows will begin its celebrations at 1 p.m. Sunday with the parade, which starts at Central Road and Jay Lane, proceeding north to Meadows Drive to Kirchoff Road and ending at the shopping center on Kirchoff.

Waterfights begin at 2 p.m. at Kimball Hill Park followed by a county fair at 3:30 p.m. Activities are scheduled through the rest of the day to the fireworks that night at the park.

Palatine

Palatine begins its celebration today at 11 a.m. with a parade beginning at Paddock School, 225 W. Washington St. Following the parade, a full day of events is scheduled at Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Road.

Sunday's events begin at Community Park at 8:30 a.m. with a interdenominational religious service. At 1 p.m., the rest of the day's events begin at the park, followed by fireworks at 8:30 p.m.

Mount Prospect

Mount Prospect festivities begin at noon today with the dedication of the Mount Prospect Historical Society Museum, 1100 S. Linneman Rd. This will be followed by a family-community picnic at 2 p.m. at Lions Park, Lincoln and Maple streets.

On Sunday, there will be a two-minute bell ringing, an art fair at the Mount Prospect State Bank parking lot, 15 E. Busse Ave.

At disk, the fireworks will begin at Lions Park, climaxing the carnival, which started midweek and runs through Monday.

The new gazebo, 100 S. Emerson, will be the site of the village concert at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The annual parade will begin Monday at 2 p.m. from Prospect High School.

We don't like gasoline tax one bit: station owners

by DAN BARREIRO

That collective moan you heard Friday was area service station owners and managers responding to Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne's new one-cent per gallon tax proposal.

How far can you go with this stuff?" lamented James Cichy, owner of Jim's Marathon, at Ill. Rte. 53 and Devon Avenue in Elk Grove Village. "Gas is such a sore spot with the public already. It's too high right now."

"Isn't that dandy?" bemoaned Al Helgesen, owner of Helgesen Bros. Standard, 2240 N. Rand Rd., Palatine. "They couldn't get the head tax through so now it's a gasoline tax. Seems like the last thing everything ends up being is a gasoline tax."

"THE BIGGEST problem we have with retail gas," said Vince Nicholas, owner of Service Standard, 1235 E. Dundee Rd., Palatine, "is the amount of taxation and taxes on taxes we pay. They're gonna kill the fringe areas."

For Nicholas, Cichy and others whose stations are located close to the Cook-DuPage or Cook-Lake county lines, the tax could have even greater significance: consumers who live close to the county lines may avoid the proposed tax by going to DuPage or Lake county stations.

Cichy's station is right across the street from DuPage County. "They're going there (to DuPage stations) right now," he said. "But I would say that they might do it more with the tax."

"It'll take some business away," said Nicholas, whose station is near the Lake County line.

NICHOLAS SAID in his case, it could be necessary for his business to absorb the one-cent tax so it would not be passed on to the consumer.

"We're going to have to pay it ourselves to keep up with competition," he said.

But Helgesen said he couldn't afford to absorb the tax.

"I happen to be the last gas station in Cook County around here before you enter Lake," he said. "And I wouldn't like the tax. But we can't afford to absorb it."

Ronald Lumley, manager of R.G. Standard, 399 E. Dundee Rd., Palatine, doesn't like the idea of a tax any more than anyone else. But Lumley, who is one mile from the Lake County Line, doesn't believe it will affect his business that much.

"It would some, but not that much because you build up regular customers," he said.

"I DON'T basically think that people would worry about a penny," Helgesen said.

Dan Rutkowski, manager of Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads, also said he wouldn't anticipate a major shift of his customers to Lake County.

"In this area," he said, "there aren't that many stations in Lake County that are close to here until you reach Mundelein or Libertyville."

Although some managers disagreed on whether consumers would head to other counties, they all agreed that the tax would cause more problems.

the chamber will oppose the tax because of its impact on gasoline dealers.

Stowe said, "I'm disappointed that the county did not really examine the economic consequences of the proposed tax. They sort of played spin the bottle and came up with the least objectionable tax politically."

Stowe said the state chamber wants a blue-ribbon committee appointed to study the county budget and propose budget cuts. He said, "We would be in opposition to any tax increase until we are convinced the county board really needs it."

Robert Jacobs, head of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Assn., vowed to fight the tax at public hearings and to organize motorists to oppose the tax.

JACOBS SAID the tax is "discriminatory" because it singles out motorists and will hurt gasoline dealers near the county boundaries because drivers will cross county lines to buy gasoline.

Robert Corbett, assistant general counsel for the Chicago Motor Club, said his group also will oppose the tax. He said, "It's grossly unfair to measure the citizens' contribution to the cost of county government by how much they use their car and that's what this will do."

Corbett said the club officials "are particularly concerned that they didn't include a tax on diesel fuel," meaning that ordinary motorists and not truckers will pay the entire tax.

white and blue outfits for Sunday's special occasion.

"They are sisters and we are a family even though we are of different backgrounds," Mrs. Avery said. For the Olsens, Tara's naturalization will be doubly special because of the problems they encountered. It has taken them 16 months to reach this point, rather than the usual five or six.

"We still don't know the whole story," said Mrs. Olsen, adding that she and her husband suspect Tara's visa may have been used for another orphan. "They finally found the file but not the visa. So they went around it."

Government officials said the delay was caused because of a backlog created by the influx of Vietnamese refugees. Still, Mrs. Olsen was forced to make "a lot of phone calls" before finally getting a hearing in April. Even so, she fears some last minute complication involving the missing visa will dash hopes for the naturalization.

Both the Averys and the Olsens will be relieved when the naturalization process is complete. It takes two years before an adopted alien is eligible for naturalization, followed by the paperwork.

"Everything will finally be finished," Mrs. Olsen said. "That will be the end of it and we finally won't have to account for anything. Tara will be completely ours.

"Until she gains citizenship, she still is theoretically under control of Korean law," she added.

"The naturalization is so important," said Avery. "Mi Mi and Amie, when she goes through it, will be free from the restrictions placed on aliens. It will mean a lot to them as they grow older."

Tara views the naturalization another way. Mrs. Olsen said Tara wondered whether she would look more like her American parents after the ceremony.

"We didn't even know that she knew she was different," Mrs. Olsen said. "We explained to her that there is no certain way an American looked because many different people are Americans."

Despite all the problems her parents have encountered, Tara is optimistic about becoming a citizen.

"Well, since everybody is American around here, I don't want to stay Korean," she said. But that does not mean she is not proud of her heritage.

For Mi Mi, who was abandoned as a baby in Korea, the naturalization is just another stepping stone in growing up in life.

Super July 4th planned for nation's 200th birthday

Des Plaines

Des Plaines has declared this week Bicentennial Week, with the Fourth Annual Drum and Bugles Corps Contest kicking off the celebration at 7:30 tonight at Maine West High School, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines. Drum and bugle corps from four states and Canada will perform. Admission is $2.50 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

At noon Sunday there will be a coordinated ringing of church bells throughout the city, followed by the Chamber of Commerce parade at 12:30 p.m. The parade will begin at Oakton and Lee streets, north on Lee and end at the old North School Parking lot, River Road and Jefferson Street.

Yacht races and formation sailing will be held on Lake Opeka at 1:30 p.m., followed at 3 p.m. by foot races and other games for the entire family.

The Free Street Theatre will stage productions at 5 and 8 p.m. at the Military Memorial Band Pavilion at the lake with the Maine West Band performing at 7 p.m. The fireworks display will begin at 9 p.m. at the lake.

An outdoor Bicentennial Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Stephen's Church, 1267 Everett St., with a breakfast following the mass. A Kiwanis Pet and Bike Parade will begin at 1 p.m. and proceed through downtown. A musical review will be presented at the lake at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Buffalo Grove

In Buffalo Grove, the activities begin Sunday at 12:30 p.m. with a parade from Lake Cook and Arlington Heights roads, east on Lake-Cook to the village hall. A schedule of games has been planned for the afternoon at Emmerich Park. Fireworks will begin at dusk at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights also plans a six-day celebration, which began Wednesday with a carnival at Recreation Park, 500 Miner St., and will finish Monday with a community dance.

The Spirit of '76 Parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. today in front of the village hall and will go west on Sigwalt Street, north on Dunton Avenue to Euclid and then to Arlington High School. After the parade, there will be a "Walk Through Yesterday" at Recreation Park.

There will be a tour of the Arlington Park Race Track Sunday, followed by a trackside breakfast from 9 to 10:30 a.m. A community church service will be held at Recreation Park at 12:15 p.m. with a carnival and picnics in the afternoon. At noon, there will be a full program of racing at the track, preceded by marching bands and military displays.

At 8:15 p.m., the track will be opened for a free program of music, followed by Fireworks.

On Monday, the handicapped children's carnival begins at 10 a.m. at Recreation Park until noon and a community dance will begin at 8 p.m.

Elk Grove Village

In Elk Grove Village, officials are combining the nation's birthday celebration with the village's birthday and the parade for the two will be July 18, stepping off from Clearmont Drive and Ridge Avenue, going north to Elk Grove Boulevard and west on Kennedy Boulevard and Biesterfield Road to the fire station.

There are activities scheduled today at Lion's Park beginning at 1 p.m with a carnival and followed by games and demonstrations into the evening. A similar schedule is set for Sunday, with fireworks to begin at 9:30 p.m.

Prospect Heights

Prospect Heights, which hosted a series of Bicentennial events the first week in June, will have a Fourth of July parade at 11 a.m. beginning at MacArthur Junior High School and ending at Lions Park.

Wheeling

Wheeling's celebration begins at 10:30 a.m. Sunday with a water fight between firemen and village officials at 12th Street and Dundee Road, followed by greased pole and watermelon eating competition.

At 2 p.m., there will be a baby parade at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Road, followed by a carnival at 4 p.m. The fireworks will begin at dusk in the park.

Hoffman Estates

In Hoffman Estates, the parade will be Monday beginning at 10 a.m. on Payson Street. It will proceed north on Illinois Boulevard to Chino Park, where a full day of activities is scheduled.

On Sunday, drum and bugle corps competition will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Conant High School. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Fireworks will follow the competition.

A dinner dance will be held at 7:30 tonight at the Moon Lake Recreation Hall 1885 Jennifer Dr. Tickets are $6.

The mustache and beard competition judging will be held at the Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan, 140 N. Gannon Dr., Monday at Chino Park at 2:30 p.m.

Rolling Meadows

Rolling Meadows will begin its celebrations at 1 p.m. Sunday with the parade, which starts at Central Road and Jay Lane, proceeding north to Meadows Drive to Kirchoff Road and ending at the shopping center on Kirchoff.

Waterfights begin at 2 p.m. at Kimball Hill Park followed by a county fair at 3:30 p.m. Activities are scheduled through the rest of the day to the fireworks that night at the park.

Palatine

Palatine begins its celebration today at 11 a.m. with a parade beginning at Paddock School, 225 W. Washington St. Following the parade, a full day of events is scheduled at Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Road.

Sunday's events begin at Community Park at 8:30 a.m. with a interdenominational religious service. At 1 p.m., the rest of the day's events begin at the park, followed by fireworks at 8:30 p.m.

Mount Prospect

Mount Prospect festivities begin at noon today with the dedication of the Mount Prospect Historical Society Museum, 1100 S. Linneman Rd. This will be followed by a family-community picnic at 2 p.m. at Lions Park, Lincoln and Maple streets.

On Sunday, there will be a two-minute bell ringing, an art fair at the Mount Prospect State Bank parking lot, 15 E. Busse Ave.

At disk, the fireworks will begin at Lions Park, climaxing the carnival, which started midweek and runs through Monday.

The new gazebo, 100 S. Emerson, will be the site of the village concert at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The annual parade will begin Monday at 2 p.m. from Prospect High School.

by DAN BARREIRO

That collective moan you heard Friday was area service station owners and managers responding to Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne's new one-cent per gallon tax proposal.

How far can you go with this stuff?" lamented James Cichy, owner of Jim's Marathon, at Ill. Rte. 53 and Devon Avenue in Elk Grove Village. "Gas is such a sore spot with the public already. It's too high right now."

"Isn't that dandy?" bemoaned Al Helgesen, owner of Helgesen Bros. Standard, 2240 N. Rand Rd., Palatine. "They couldn't get the head tax through so now it's a gasoline tax. Seems like the last thing everything ends up being is a gasoline tax."

"THE BIGGEST problem we have with retail gas," said Vince Nicholas, owner of Service Standard, 1235 E. Dundee Rd., Palatine, "is the amount of taxation and taxes on taxes we pay. They're gonna kill the fringe areas."

For Nicholas, Cichy and others whose stations are located close to the Cook-DuPage or Cook-Lake county lines, the tax could have even greater significance: consumers who live close to the county lines may avoid the proposed tax by going to DuPage or Lake county stations.

Cichy's station is right across the street from DuPage County. "They're going there (to DuPage stations) right now," he said. "But I would say that they might do it more with the tax."

"It'll take some business away," said Nicholas, whose station is near the Lake County line.

NICHOLAS SAID in his case, it could be necessary for his business to absorb the one-cent tax so it would not be passed on to the consumer.

"We're going to have to pay it ourselves to keep up with competition," he said.

But Helgesen said he couldn't afford to absorb the tax.

"I happen to be the last gas station in Cook County around here before you enter Lake," he said. "And I wouldn't like the tax. But we can't afford to absorb it."

Ronald Lumley, manager of R.G. Standard, 399 E. Dundee Rd., Palatine, doesn't like the idea of a tax any more than anyone else. But Lumley, who is one mile from the Lake County Line, doesn't believe it will affect his business that much.

"It would some, but not that much because you build up regular customers," he said.

"I DON'T basically think that people would worry about a penny," Helgesen said.

Dan Rutkowski, manager of Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads, also said he wouldn't anticipate a major shift of his customers to Lake County.

"In this area," he said, "there aren't that many stations in Lake County that are close to here until you reach Mundelein or Libertyville."

Although some managers disagreed on whether consumers would head to other counties, they all agreed that the tax would cause more problems.

the chamber will oppose the tax because of its impact on gasoline dealers.

Stowe said, "I'm disappointed that the county did not really examine the economic consequences of the proposed tax. They sort of played spin the bottle and came up with the least objectionable tax politically."

Stowe said the state chamber wants a blue-ribbon committee appointed to study the county budget and propose budget cuts. He said, "We would be in opposition to any tax increase until we are convinced the county board really needs it."

Robert Jacobs, head of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Assn., vowed to fight the tax at public hearings and to organize motorists to oppose the tax.

JACOBS SAID the tax is "discriminatory" because it singles out motorists and will hurt gasoline dealers near the county boundaries because drivers will cross county lines to buy gasoline.

Robert Corbett, assistant general counsel for the Chicago Motor Club, said his group also will oppose the tax. He said, "It's grossly unfair to measure the citizens' contribution to the cost of county government by how much they use their car and that's what this will do."

Corbett said the club officials "are particularly concerned that they didn't include a tax on diesel fuel," meaning that ordinary motorists and not truckers will pay the entire tax.

white and blue outfits for Sunday's special occasion.

"They are sisters and we are a family even though we are of different backgrounds," Mrs. Avery said. For the Olsens, Tara's naturalization will be doubly special because of the problems they encountered. It has taken them 16 months to reach this point, rather than the usual five or six.

"We still don't know the whole story," said Mrs. Olsen, adding that she and her husband suspect Tara's visa may have been used for another orphan. "They finally found the file but not the visa. So they went around it."

Government officials said the delay was caused because of a backlog created by the influx of Vietnamese refugees. Still, Mrs. Olsen was forced to make "a lot of phone calls" before finally getting a hearing in April. Even so, she fears some last minute complication involving the missing visa will dash hopes for the naturalization.

Both the Averys and the Olsens will be relieved when the naturalization process is complete. It takes two years before an adopted alien is eligible for naturalization, followed by the paperwork.

"Everything will finally be finished," Mrs. Olsen said. "That will be the end of it and we finally won't have to account for anything. Tara will be completely ours.

"Until she gains citizenship, she still is theoretically under control of Korean law," she added.

"The naturalization is so important," said Avery. "Mi Mi and Amie, when she goes through it, will be free from the restrictions placed on aliens. It will mean a lot to them as they grow older."

Tara views the naturalization another way. Mrs. Olsen said Tara wondered whether she would look more like her American parents after the ceremony.

"We didn't even know that she knew she was different," Mrs. Olsen said. "We explained to her that there is no certain way an American looked because many different people are Americans."

Despite all the problems her parents have encountered, Tara is optimistic about becoming a citizen.

"Well, since everybody is American around here, I don't want to stay Korean," she said. But that does not mean she is not proud of her heritage.

For Mi Mi, who was abandoned as a baby in Korea, the naturalization is just another stepping stone in growing up in life.

Death penalty OKd by Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Friday the death penalty does not violate the Constitution if a state provides strict guidelines for a judge and jury to exercise mercy in a murder case.

The court said capital punishment has been accepted by society as a means of deterring crime and obtaining retribution from killers, and therefore does not automatically violate the Eighth Amendment's ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

But a plurality of three justices who cast the deciding votes struck down mandatory death laws on grounds "nothing in any of our cases suggests that the decision to afford an individual defendant mercy violates the Constitution."

Legislation to give Illinois a death penalty law consistent with the Supeme Court ruling was put in a position Friday to be passed when the General Assembly returns in fall.

Rep. George Sangmeister, D-Mokena, sponsor of a capital punishment measure, said he plans to talk to Gov. Daniel Walker about calling a special session to deal with the death penalty.

Illinois has been without a capital punishment statute since late last year when the state supreme court threw out the last one passed by the General Assembly.

The court's objections in that case concerned state-related issues and could be corrected with relative ease.

Reps. Romie Palmer, R-Blue Island, and Roman Kosinski, D-Chicago, introduced new death penalty legislation in this session. The measures were held in committee, however, pending the federal court ruling.

Five cases involving six defendants decided by the U.S. Supreme Court Friday were the result of murder convictions. In a highly significant footnote, the court left open whether death laws could constitutionally be applied to rape, kidnaping or armed robbery "that does not result in the death of any human being."

In three 7-2 decisions, the justices upheld death penalty laws in Georgia, Florida and Texas which allow a judge or jury to decide, based on specific standards, whether a defendant should die or receive life in prison.

By a 5 to 4 vote, the court struck down death laws in North Carolina and Louisiana requiring the death penalty for a convicted killer without regard to the individual defendant or the seriousness of the crime.

No one has been executed in the United States since Luis Monge died in the Colorado gas chamber in 1967 for the killing of his family.

More than 600 persons are on death rows in 30 states. Four other states and the federal government have capital punishment laws which have not been exercised. The death law in Massachusetts was struck down by state courts.

Based on information supplied by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and a UPI survey of death row inmates, the laws of 18 states, with more than 300 sentenced to death, might be unconstitutional under the latest court ruling.

The laws of another 16 states, with nearly 300 more on death rows, presumably will withstand legal challenges, according to the LDF, which brought the five separate cases challenging capital punishment.

North Carolina alone had nearly one-fifth — 122 — of the nation's death row residents.

Presumably the laws of each of these other states will be challenged at the Supreme Court. Even in states where death laws are upheld, many prisoners may have additional appeals pending or claim in federal court their rights were violated by arrest and search.

Governors of each state could commute individual sentences to life.

The LDF claimed death laws violate the Eighth Amendment ban on "cruel and unusual" punishment, and that too much discretion is left with judges, juries and prosecutors to determine who shall live and who shall die for similar crimes.

Abolitionists said while capital punishment may have been appropriate in the past it fails to meet the "evolving standards of decency" in a modern society.

The arguments were directed to a 1972 decision in which the high court struck down capital punishment laws as then applied on grounds they did not provide sufficient standards for determining who suffers death.

OFFICIALS INSPECT the burnt-out wreckage of an Eastern Airlines plane that was destroyed by a bomb in Boston Friday morning. Two other bombs went off in the area, one damaging a district courthouse and the other destroying a National Guard armory truck. No injuries were reported.

$600,000 damage reported

Terror bombs rip Boston area

BOSTON (UPI) — Three bombs exploded within three hours Friday in Boston and a nearby community. The FBI feared the terrorist acts would continue.

An Eastern Airlines plane and National Guard truck were destroyed in Boston and part of an historic courthouse in Newburyport was heavily damaged in the early morning blasts.

Damage was set at about $600,000. No injuries were reported.

"There was an indication that this wasn't the end," FBI special agent Richard Bates said. "I am not optimistic that it won't happen again. . . We've been afraid of this. There have been rumors for months something like this might occur."

A series of bombings has swept eastern Massachusetts since April 22, when a bomb went off in the Suffolk County Court in downtown Boston, injuring 22 persons.

Bates said there was no specific information showing the existence of terrorist organizations in Boston.

"But there are a lot of extremist groups that have passed through Boston . . . people that are capable of doing what happened," he said.

The FBI said a man identifying himself as a member of the South Boston Defense League telephoned a television station and a newspaper claiming responsibility for the plane and truck bombings.

The caller, who said his name was Dennis Callahan, also threatened the TLL Ships which are scheduled to arrive in Boston July 10. Queen Elizabeth arrives in Boston the next day.

An FBI spokesman said he did not know if the call was a hoax and could not identify the defense league.

Another man, who identified himself as a member of the Armed Strike Unit of the Palestine Liberation Organization, telephoned United Press International to claim responsibility for all three of Friday's bombings. He said he took te action to "draw attention to the Palestinian struggle with the Jews."

The FBI, state and local police, and agents of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Administration sifted through the wreckage of the Lockheed Electra prop jet at Logan International Airport, a 2½ ton truck at the armory and the historic Essex Cuunty superior Court House in Newburyport.

FBI agents speculated the bombings of the Eastern aircraft and at the armory were linked. They said Eastern received an anonyous telephone call warning that an explosion would take place.

The explosion at Logan could be heard miles away. The bomb apparently was placed under the right front portion of the four-engine craft, officials said.

The 16-year-old plane, which seats 87 persons, was destroyed. An Eastern spokeswoman said the plan was valued at $500,000.

The plane is one of 15 that serve as backups to the Boston-New York-Washington shuttle, she said.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Port Authority, which operates the airport, said the plane was "easily accessible" and not within the main terminal area.

"The plane was standing alone and there were no other planes or buildings within a couple of hundred feet," he said. Security at the airport is provided by state police, the airlines and the Federal Aviation Administration, he added.

FAA issues airport bomb warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration said Friday it has warned all airports and airlines to take extra precautions this holiday weekend against bombings like the one that destroyed an Eastern Air Lines plane in Boston.

An FAA spokesman said his agency had not singled out any specific cities, airports or airlines as likely targets of terrorist acts during the Bicentennial July 4 holiday.

"We're going on the assumption that almost any airport anywhere could be a target," he said.

The spokesman said there is no reason, however, to assume any new bombing attempt "would be that fastidious" to avoid human injury. "What we've been saying (to air transport officials) is that your whole airport may be subject to acts of this kind and you had better be alert and fnnnprepared to prevent it," he said.

"We have been in contact with airport operators and airlines all across the country today telling them to beef up their security and be alert for something else like this to happen."

'Human bombs' wired by hijackers

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Pro-Palestinian hijackers in Uganda have divided their remaining 110 airline hostages into small groups and surrounded them with dynamite to back their demands for the release of 53 political prisoners, Ugandan President Idi Amin said Friday.

Amin, who has been directing negotiations with the terrorists at Entebbe airport, 20 miles from the capital of Kampala, flew to the island of Mauritius Friday to attend an Organization of African Unity summit meeting.

"The captives have been broken up into several groups, each of them surrounded by explosives," Amin told the OAU delegates.

Amin, who has expressed support for Palestinians in the past, said he allowed the hijacked plane to land in Uganda on "humanitarian grounds" and added, "if I had refused to negotiate, they would have killed the captives" on the spot.

He said the hostages began to cry when he left for Mauritius.

The hijackers have demanded the release of 53 prisoners from jails in five countries — including 40 in Israel. They commandeered the Air France jetliner Sunday over Greece, saying they were acting in the name of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The PFLP in Beirut has denied any connection with the hijackers, as has the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

The hijackers have released 149 passengers in two groups, but still hold 110 persons — 98 Israeli citizens and non-Israeli Jews plus the 12-member airline crew.

The Ugandan leader urged U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim, who is also at the OAU meeting, to pressure Israel into meeting the demands.

Hani-el Hassan, an adviser to Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, flew to Uganda aboard an Egyptian military aircraft Friday to join the negotiations.

Since Amin's departure, the negotiations have been handled by Somali Ambassador Hashan Abdulla Farrah. Witnesses said the negotiations often are conducted haphazardly, with a hijacker occasionally strolling over with Farrah.

The terrorists, believed to number about five, had threatened to kill all the hostages and blow up the plane Thursday, but extended the deadline after Israel agreed to negotiate the release of some of its 40 prisoners.

The hijackers also demanded freedom for prisoners in West Germany, Kenya, France and Switzerland.

They said Israel was responsible for the fate of the remaining hostages and warned they would "deal accordingly" with the captives if their demands are not met by 6 a.m. Sunday.

The Air France 300B4 airbus was reported wired with explosives.

Amin, who earlier called the guerrillas' demands "very reasonable," urged Israel and the other nations to meet them.

Lebanon fighting rages despite truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A right-wing radio station announced Friday a new cease-fire agreement between the Arab League and Christian forces, but there was no letup in Christian attacks on a Palestinian refugee camp.

The new cease-fire was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Christian forces said they penetrated the last defenses of the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp Friday, the 11th day of a mighty siege. The Palestinians denied this and said they had mounted a counter offensive to open a roadlink to the beleaguered camp.

The right-wing broadcast quoted a presidential communique as saying the latest cease-fire agreement was reached in a meeting between Christian leaders and Arab League Sec. Gen. Mahmoud Riad, who later left for Damascus.

A leftist station said Riad, while meeting with the Christian leaders, telephoned Palestinian and leftist commanders to sound them out on the possibility of a truce.

The communique came from the office of lame-duck President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian, and said the cease-fire agreement would involve carrying out the 1969 Cairo agreement between Lebanon's government and the Palestinian guerrilla movement.

The Cairo agreement bans heavy weapons in Palestinian camps and restricts the Palestinians to the camps and the Arkoub section of southeastern Lebanon.

The Palestinian camps have been the center of some of the fiercest fighting of the war.

A Palestinian radio broadcast rejected demands that the Palestinians surrender the Tal Zaatar camp.

"It is either victory or martyrdom," the broadcast said.

The leftists have pledged all-out war should the camp fall and Libya, among other Arab nations, has threatened to intervene against the Christians.

Earlier, a leftist station said any truce would "hinge on the outcome of the Tal Zaatar battle" between 6,000 armor-backed Christians and the Palestinian defenders being pounded by artillery and mortar barrages.

Palestinians said they had begun a counterattack and that their 1,000-man column was moving along a mountain road through the pine forests that lead to the southeastern outskirts of Tal Zaatar in an 11th hour attempt to reach the encircled camp. It reported fierce battles underway.

Ohio coed gets presidential gift

• President Ford has sent a letter and bracelet to the Ohio coed whose exploding camera flashbulb ignited a momentary assassination scare, White House officials have disclosed. Ford wrote Sandy Snyder of Bowling Green State University of his concern for the ordeal last month. She was trying to photograph Ford, who was making a presidential campaign appearance at the university when the flashbulb exploded in her camera. The popping noise sounded like a gunshot. White House spokesmen said Ford sent the bracelet and letter in hopes the coed's memories of the incident might have a happier ending.

• The will disbursing the estate of multi-billionaire J. Paul Getty has been admitted without a legal hitch, which puts the late Mr. Getty one up on the late Mr. Howard Hughes. "Mr. Getty was a very orderly man," said an attorney for the executors. "We expect a very orderly probate of the estate." The probate process for the Getty estate, estimated at between $2 and $4 billion, could take years, legal experts say.

• Singer Lola Falana, 33, has been fined $100 and placed on one-year probation on charges of possession and growing of marijuana. Police said they found 34 grams of marijuana and nine growing plants in her West Hollywood apartment about a year ago. An attorney for the entertainer entered a plea of "no contest" to the charges.

• Actor Jack Lemon is scheduled to appear in a Malibu, Calif. court Aug. 10 on a charge of drunken driving. Lemon, 51, was arrested as he drove north on the Pacific Coast Highway in a Rolls Royce. He was booked on the charge and released to the custody of his wife.

• Wayne Fowler, 43, is willing to go to jail to back his right to bear a bow and arrow on his own property. Fowler was ordered to jail after he admitted to authorities for a second time that he shot two arrows from a bow while on his own property, which lies within arrow's range Shaw Island School. Fowler said that he has decided to accept a 60-day jail term rather than keep his arrows in his quiver.

Carter VP list "open ended"

Jimmy Carter said Friday he is leaning toward two or three possible running mates but insisted he is keeping "an open-ended list" that will be subject to change right up to the time of the nomination in less than two weeks. The former governor of Georgia has more than enough delegates to win the Democratic presidential nomination July 16. He said he would meet later Friday with Charles Kirbo, the political adviser who has been interviewing prospective vice presidential contenders.

"I want to keep an open mind about it and I don't know how many I am going to talk to," said Carter. "The earliest that I would consider talking to anyone — I've got to go over to Westville (Ga.) for a speech — but it may be, you know, Monday or Tuesday. I haven't decided." When asked if potential running mates would be coming to Plains, Carter replied: "I am going to leave that up to them. If they want to come here, it suits me fine, if they prefer to meet me in Atlanta or Washington, or somewhere else, I will accommodate them."

Order extended; TWA strike averted

A potential holiday strike against Trans World Airlines was averted Friday when a restraining order against a work stoppage by 5,100 flight attendants was extended to July 9. The legal action, filed in U.S. District Court, New York, by TWA, charges Local 551 of the Transport Workers of America with "unlawful actions" in undermining a tentative agreement reached June 6. The membership voted to turn down the previously negotiated contract.

Insurance tiff perils flu shot plan

An insurance dispute threatened Friday to wipe out the Ford Administration's plan to inoculate every American against swine flu next fall. A House health subcommittee Thursday rejected a bill that would have let the government guarantee vaccine manufacturers protection against legal claims arising from the massive immunization program. "The companies have told me that if they can't get insurance they can't participate," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, the assistant secretary for health in the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare. Cooper termed the problem "far and away" the most serious obstacle to the $135 million immunization campaign. "The other scientific problems are all manageable impediments," he said. If the drug companies don't make the vaccine, Cooper said, even high risk groups and old persons will go without inoculations. They have been targeted for the first vaccinations early this fall.

Sudan forces crush coup

Loyalist Sudanese forces Friday crushed an attempt by "groups of armed men" to topple the military regime of President Jaafar Numeiry while he was out of the country, Arab news agencies said. It was the 15th time in seven years as leader of Africa's largest country that Numeiry has foiled either a plot or an actual attempt to overthrow his regime. The Egyptian Middle East News Agency reported "street battles lasting several hours" in the capital, Khartoum, were put down by "the people's armed forces."

The Iraqui news agency said Khartoum was rocked by the sound of exploding shells and machinegun fire and that rebel tanks had surrounded the presidential palace. "Military units moved to Khartoum airport where Numeiry was scheduled to arrive following an official visit to France," the agency said.

Carlos to name new prime minister

King Juan Carlos hopes to select a successor to Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarros as soon as possible to hasten his plans for political reform in post-Franco Spain, according to political sources. Spain's Council of the Realm met Friday to choose three candidates for consideration by the king as a replacement for Arias, 67, who resigned Thursday.

Death penalty OKd by Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Friday the death penalty does not violate the Constitution if a state provides strict guidelines for a judge and jury to exercise mercy in a murder case.

The court said capital punishment has been accepted by society as a means of deterring crime and obtaining retribution from killers, and therefore does not automatically violate the Eighth Amendment's ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

But a plurality of three justices who cast the deciding votes struck down mandatory death laws on grounds "nothing in any of our cases suggests that the decision to afford an individual defendant mercy violates the Constitution."

Legislation to give Illinois a death penalty law consistent with the Supeme Court ruling was put in a position Friday to be passed when the General Assembly returns in fall.

Rep. George Sangmeister, D-Mokena, sponsor of a capital punishment measure, said he plans to talk to Gov. Daniel Walker about calling a special session to deal with the death penalty.

Illinois has been without a capital punishment statute since late last year when the state supreme court threw out the last one passed by the General Assembly.

The court's objections in that case concerned state-related issues and could be corrected with relative ease.

Reps. Romie Palmer, R-Blue Island, and Roman Kosinski, D-Chicago, introduced new death penalty legislation in this session. The measures were held in committee, however, pending the federal court ruling.

Five cases involving six defendants decided by the U.S. Supreme Court Friday were the result of murder convictions. In a highly significant footnote, the court left open whether death laws could constitutionally be applied to rape, kidnaping or armed robbery "that does not result in the death of any human being."

In three 7-2 decisions, the justices upheld death penalty laws in Georgia, Florida and Texas which allow a judge or jury to decide, based on specific standards, whether a defendant should die or receive life in prison.

By a 5 to 4 vote, the court struck down death laws in North Carolina and Louisiana requiring the death penalty for a convicted killer without regard to the individual defendant or the seriousness of the crime.

No one has been executed in the United States since Luis Monge died in the Colorado gas chamber in 1967 for the killing of his family.

More than 600 persons are on death rows in 30 states. Four other states and the federal government have capital punishment laws which have not been exercised. The death law in Massachusetts was struck down by state courts.

Based on information supplied by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and a UPI survey of death row inmates, the laws of 18 states, with more than 300 sentenced to death, might be unconstitutional under the latest court ruling.

The laws of another 16 states, with nearly 300 more on death rows, presumably will withstand legal challenges, according to the LDF, which brought the five separate cases challenging capital punishment.

North Carolina alone had nearly one-fifth — 122 — of the nation's death row residents.

Presumably the laws of each of these other states will be challenged at the Supreme Court. Even in states where death laws are upheld, many prisoners may have additional appeals pending or claim in federal court their rights were violated by arrest and search.

Governors of each state could commute individual sentences to life.

The LDF claimed death laws violate the Eighth Amendment ban on "cruel and unusual" punishment, and that too much discretion is left with judges, juries and prosecutors to determine who shall live and who shall die for similar crimes.

Abolitionists said while capital punishment may have been appropriate in the past it fails to meet the "evolving standards of decency" in a modern society.

The arguments were directed to a 1972 decision in which the high court struck down capital punishment laws as then applied on grounds they did not provide sufficient standards for determining who suffers death.

OFFICIALS INSPECT the burnt-out wreckage of an Eastern Airlines plane that was destroyed by a bomb in Boston Friday morning. Two other bombs went off in the area, one damaging a district courthouse and the other destroying a National Guard armory truck. No injuries were reported.

$600,000 damage reported

Terror bombs rip Boston area

BOSTON (UPI) — Three bombs exploded within three hours Friday in Boston and a nearby community. The FBI feared the terrorist acts would continue.

An Eastern Airlines plane and National Guard truck were destroyed in Boston and part of an historic courthouse in Newburyport was heavily damaged in the early morning blasts.

Damage was set at about $600,000. No injuries were reported.

"There was an indication that this wasn't the end," FBI special agent Richard Bates said. "I am not optimistic that it won't happen again. . . We've been afraid of this. There have been rumors for months something like this might occur."

A series of bombings has swept eastern Massachusetts since April 22, when a bomb went off in the Suffolk County Court in downtown Boston, injuring 22 persons.

Bates said there was no specific information showing the existence of terrorist organizations in Boston.

"But there are a lot of extremist groups that have passed through Boston . . . people that are capable of doing what happened," he said.

The FBI said a man identifying himself as a member of the South Boston Defense League telephoned a television station and a newspaper claiming responsibility for the plane and truck bombings.

The caller, who said his name was Dennis Callahan, also threatened the TLL Ships which are scheduled to arrive in Boston July 10. Queen Elizabeth arrives in Boston the next day.

An FBI spokesman said he did not know if the call was a hoax and could not identify the defense league.

Another man, who identified himself as a member of the Armed Strike Unit of the Palestine Liberation Organization, telephoned United Press International to claim responsibility for all three of Friday's bombings. He said he took te action to "draw attention to the Palestinian struggle with the Jews."

The FBI, state and local police, and agents of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Administration sifted through the wreckage of the Lockheed Electra prop jet at Logan International Airport, a 2½ ton truck at the armory and the historic Essex Cuunty superior Court House in Newburyport.

FBI agents speculated the bombings of the Eastern aircraft and at the armory were linked. They said Eastern received an anonyous telephone call warning that an explosion would take place.

The explosion at Logan could be heard miles away. The bomb apparently was placed under the right front portion of the four-engine craft, officials said.

The 16-year-old plane, which seats 87 persons, was destroyed. An Eastern spokeswoman said the plan was valued at $500,000.

The plane is one of 15 that serve as backups to the Boston-New York-Washington shuttle, she said.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Port Authority, which operates the airport, said the plane was "easily accessible" and not within the main terminal area.

"The plane was standing alone and there were no other planes or buildings within a couple of hundred feet," he said. Security at the airport is provided by state police, the airlines and the Federal Aviation Administration, he added.

FAA issues airport bomb warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration said Friday it has warned all airports and airlines to take extra precautions this holiday weekend against bombings like the one that destroyed an Eastern Air Lines plane in Boston.

An FAA spokesman said his agency had not singled out any specific cities, airports or airlines as likely targets of terrorist acts during the Bicentennial July 4 holiday.

"We're going on the assumption that almost any airport anywhere could be a target," he said.

The spokesman said there is no reason, however, to assume any new bombing attempt "would be that fastidious" to avoid human injury. "What we've been saying (to air transport officials) is that your whole airport may be subject to acts of this kind and you had better be alert and fnnnprepared to prevent it," he said.

"We have been in contact with airport operators and airlines all across the country today telling them to beef up their security and be alert for something else like this to happen."

Carter VP list "open ended"

Jimmy Carter said Friday he is leaning toward two or three possible running mates but insisted he is keeping "an open-ended list" that will be subject to change right up to the time of the nomination in less than two weeks. The former governor of Georgia has more than enough delegates to win the Democratic presidential nomination July 16. He said he would meet later Friday with Charles Kirbo, the political adviser who has been interviewing prospective vice presidential contenders.

"I want to keep an open mind about it and I don't know how many I am going to talk to," said Carter. "The earliest that I would consider talking to anyone — I've got to go over to Westville (Ga.) for a speech — but it may be, you know, Monday or Tuesday. I haven't decided." When asked if potential running mates would be coming to Plains, Carter replied: "I am going to leave that up to them. If they want to come here, it suits me fine, if they prefer to meet me in Atlanta or Washington, or somewhere else, I will accommodate them."

Order extended; TWA strike averted

A potential holiday strike against Trans World Airlines was averted Friday when a restraining order against a work stoppage by 5,100 flight attendants was extended to July 9. The legal action, filed in U.S. District Court, New York, by TWA, charges Local 551 of the Transport Workers of America with "unlawful actions" in undermining a tentative agreement reached June 6. The membership voted to turn down the previously negotiated contract.

Insurance tiff perils flu shot plan

An insurance dispute threatened Friday to wipe out the Ford Administration's plan to inoculate every American against swine flu next fall. A House health subcommittee Thursday rejected a bill that would have let the government guarantee vaccine manufacturers protection against legal claims arising from the massive immunization program. "The companies have told me that if they can't get insurance they can't participate," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, the assistant secretary for health in the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare. Cooper termed the problem "far and away" the most serious obstacle to the $135 million immunization campaign. "The other scientific problems are all manageable impediments," he said. If the drug companies don't make the vaccine, Cooper said, even high risk groups and old persons will go without inoculations. They have been targeted for the first vaccinations early this fall.

'Human bombs' wired by hijackers

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Pro-Palestinian hijackers in Uganda have divided their remaining 110 airline hostages into small groups and surrounded them with dynamite to back their demands for the release of 53 political prisoners, Ugandan President Idi Amin said Friday.

Amin, who has been directing negotiations with the terrorists at Entebbe airport, 20 miles from the capital of Kampala, flew to the island of Mauritius Friday to attend an Organization of African Unity summit meeting.

"The captives have been broken up into several groups, each of them surrounded by explosives," Amin told the OAU delegates.

Amin, who has expressed support for Palestinians in the past, said he allowed the hijacked plane to land in Uganda on "humanitarian grounds" and added, "if I had refused to negotiate, they would have killed the captives" on the spot.

He said the hostages began to cry when he left for Mauritius.

The hijackers have demanded the release of 53 prisoners from jails in five countries — including 40 in Israel. They commandeered the Air France jetliner Sunday over Greece, saying they were acting in the name of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The PFLP in Beirut has denied any connection with the hijackers, as has the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

The hijackers have released 149 passengers in two groups, but still hold 110 persons — 98 Israeli citizens and non-Israeli Jews plus the 12-member airline crew.

The Ugandan leader urged U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim, who is also at the OAU meeting, to pressure Israel into meeting the demands.

Hani-el Hassan, an adviser to Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, flew to Uganda aboard an Egyptian military aircraft Friday to join the negotiations.

Since Amin's departure, the negotiations have been handled by Somali Ambassador Hashan Abdulla Farrah. Witnesses said the negotiations often are conducted haphazardly, with a hijacker occasionally strolling over with Farrah.

The terrorists, believed to number about five, had threatened to kill all the hostages and blow up the plane Thursday, but extended the deadline after Israel agreed to negotiate the release of some of its 40 prisoners.

The hijackers also demanded freedom for prisoners in West Germany, Kenya, France and Switzerland.

They said Israel was responsible for the fate of the remaining hostages and warned they would "deal accordingly" with the captives if their demands are not met by 6 a.m. Sunday.

The Air France 300B4 airbus was reported wired with explosives.

Amin, who earlier called the guerrillas' demands "very reasonable," urged Israel and the other nations to meet them.

Lebanon fighting rages despite truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A right-wing radio station announced Friday a new cease-fire agreement between the Arab League and Christian forces, but there was no letup in Christian attacks on a Palestinian refugee camp.

The new cease-fire was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Christian forces said they penetrated the last defenses of the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp Friday, the 11th day of a mighty siege. The Palestinians denied this and said they had mounted a counter offensive to open a roadlink to the beleaguered camp.

The right-wing broadcast quoted a presidential communique as saying the latest cease-fire agreement was reached in a meeting between Christian leaders and Arab League Sec. Gen. Mahmoud Riad, who later left for Damascus.

A leftist station said Riad, while meeting with the Christian leaders, telephoned Palestinian and leftist commanders to sound them out on the possibility of a truce.

The communique came from the office of lame-duck President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian, and said the cease-fire agreement would involve carrying out the 1969 Cairo agreement between Lebanon's government and the Palestinian guerrilla movement.

The Cairo agreement bans heavy weapons in Palestinian camps and restricts the Palestinians to the camps and the Arkoub section of southeastern Lebanon.

The Palestinian camps have been the center of some of the fiercest fighting of the war.

A Palestinian radio broadcast rejected demands that the Palestinians surrender the Tal Zaatar camp.

"It is either victory or martyrdom," the broadcast said.

The leftists have pledged all-out war should the camp fall and Libya, among other Arab nations, has threatened to intervene against the Christians.

Earlier, a leftist station said any truce would "hinge on the outcome of the Tal Zaatar battle" between 6,000 armor-backed Christians and the Palestinian defenders being pounded by artillery and mortar barrages.

Palestinians said they had begun a counterattack and that their 1,000-man column was moving along a mountain road through the pine forests that lead to the southeastern outskirts of Tal Zaatar in an 11th hour attempt to reach the encircled camp. It reported fierce battles underway.

Judge orders halt to landfill at well

Kane County Circuit Court Judge John Page has signed a temporary restrainingg order to stop landfill operations near South Elgin's only well. The order, signed Thursday, restrains Waste Management of Illinois Inc. and Richard Briceland, State Environmental Protection Agency director, from taking further action on the landfill. The EPA issued a permit to Waste Management to ues the 55-acre site south of the village limits for sanitary landfill operations.

The village filed a suit this week contending the landfill would be a hazard to its water supply because its only well is within 1,000 feet of the site. Two other landfill operators were fined $10,000 each three years ago for polluting the well. A hearing was set for July 8 on a motion by South Elgin attorneys for a preliminary injunction against the landfill operation.

Railroad to appeal debt ruling

An attorney representing the Rock Island Railroad's bankruptcy trustee said Friday he plans to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court a decision ordering the railroad to pay an estimated $3 million in debts.

Nicholas G. Manos, who represents trustee William M. Gibbons, said he would ask the Supreme Court to review an appeals court decision issued Friday.

The appeals court ruled Rock Island must pay debts to 20 other railroads for using their cars from Jan. 1, 1975, until the railroad filed for financial reorganization on March 17, 1975. The Interstate Commerce Commission and the other railroads appealed an order issued by U.S. District Court Judge J. McGarr, who ruled earlier the railroad could delay paying the debts until a financial reorganization plan is devised.

Daniel G. Richards, 32, Cary, was charged in the shooting death of his wife, Karen. McHenry County State's Atty. Cowlin said Richards was held on $200,000 bond in the McHenry County Jail.

Ban of film sought again

The Kane County State's Attorney's Office said Friday it will probably go to court again in an attempt to win an obscenity conviction against distributors of the film, "Naked Came the Stranger." The case was presented to a jury this week, but Kane County Circuit Court Judge Paul W. Schnake declared a mistrial after the panel said it could not reach a verdict. "Most likely we will try it again," Ric Weiland, of the state's attorney's office said.

Film from the movie was confiscated by detectives on the first night of its Elgin run Oct. 10 on grounds the movie violated Illinois' obscenity law.

Subsequently, Apache Films, Ltd., the Chicago distributor, was charged with violating state law. A three-judge federal district court panel recently ruled Illinois' obscenity law unconstitutional on grounds it was too vague. But the Illinois Supreme Court upheld the statute in May, and Weiland said none of the court action indicated law enforcement agencies cannot try cases under the current law.

Race board reports record betting rate

The Illinois Racing Board reported Friday the state's revenue from thoroughbred and trotter betting and attendance shattered all records for the first six months of the year. Figures released by the board showed that during the first six months of 1976, the state collected more than $31.7 million in revenue, or $5 million more than during the same six months last year.

Nearly three million persons went to the track between Jan. 1 and June 30, and placed $334.9 million in bets, figures released by the board showed. The board attributes the higher betting, attendance and revenue figures to the granting of an extra number of racing dates, made possible through the 1975 Illinois Horse Racing Act.

Many towns limiting water usage

Before turning the faucet on for the lawn sprinkler this Fourth of July weekend, stop and think. You probably are living in one of the eight Northwest suburbs that now have restrictions on lawn and garden sprinkling.

Local governments are attempting to emphasize water conservation this summer out of a fear that area wells are being pumped dry at an alarming rate.

Sprinkling restrictions are nothing new to Northwest suburban residents. Summer droughts almost inevitably cause periodic bans on domestic irrigation.

BUT IN MANY TOWNS, the restrictions this year are coming earlier and with greater force than in the past. Public works directors from the area will meet again July 15 to determine whether the various bans are helping, says William H. Muhlenfeld, executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference.

Public works directors are studying a regional sprinkling policy that will rotate permitted watering days among communities. A stiff fine up to $500 for violations of the proposed ordinance has been suggested.

Muhlenfeld said public works officials want to evaluate the effect of four weeks of enforcing existing ordinances before recommending new laws. They last met June 17.

Officials also plan to consider recommending changes in local water rates, Muhlenfeld said. Most rates now decrease as water usage increases.

SOME DIRECTORS think the rates should be changed so that they increase as the total amount of water increases.

Buffalo Grove has a model water-rate ordinance of this type, Muhlenfeld said.

Arlington Heights: Sprinkling permitted on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only.

Buffalo Grove: Residents with odd numbered addresses can sprinkle on Monday, Wednesday and Sunday. number addresses have sprinkling Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. There is no sprinkling permitted Friday.

Des Plaines: No restrictions.

Elk Grove Village: Total ban on all sprinkling except for new lawns, in which case a permit is required for five days of watering.

Hoffman Estates: No restrictions.

Mount Prospect: Sprinkling on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only.

Palatine: Odd numbered addresses permitted sprinkling on odd dates; even addresses on even dates.

Rolling Meadows: Sprinkling permitted only from 6 to 9 p.m.

Schaumburg: Odd-even sprinkling takes effect July 5.

Wheeling: Total ban on sprinkling.

Hearing July 9 on highway safety

A public hearing will be conducted July 9 on a U.S. Dept. of Transportation proposal to revise 15 highway safety program standards.

The all-day hearing is one of 10 scheduled across the country. It will run from 9 a.m.-noon, 1:30-4 p.m. and from 6-10 p.m. at the Ranada O'Hare Inn, 6600 N. Mannheim Rd., Des Plaines.

The standards being considered for revision deal with periodic motor vehicle inspection, motor vehicle registration, motorcycle safety, driver education, driver licensing, traffic codes and laws, traffic courts, alcohol, traffic records, emergency medical services, pedestrian safety, police traffic services, debris hazard control and cleanup, pupil transportation, and accident investigation and reporting.

Legislators end feud on collective bargaining

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois legislature, bone-weary and anxious to begin its summer vacation, Friday resolved disputes over collective bargaining and the Middle Fork Reservoir and prepared to adjourn until fall.

Barring unexpected flaps, the assembly appeared certain to end its spring session until Nov. 17, when lawmakers will return for the veto session.

The House — whose steadfast desire to fund collective bargaining agreements negotiated by state employes and the Middle Fork Reservoir project near Danville drove the session into overtime — finally yielded to Senate pressure to cut money for both.

THE MIDDLE FORK project, on the drawing board 10 years but under steady attack from environmentalists, would have cost $5.5 million in fiscal 1977. Its final price tag would be several times higher.

Backers of the Middle Fork, including the last four governors, argue it would give Danville a new water source and provide recreation. Foes say the reservoir would destroy an area of unique natural beauty.

Efforts to include Middle Fork funds were intensified by sentiment when Rep. Charles Campbell, R-Danville, fell ill and was hospitalized. Some members said the bill should be passed in his honor because he worked so long for it.

But in the end, legislators faced with the tightest state budget in years concluded the expense could not be justified.

The collective bargaining issue was resolved by giving agencies which negotiated wage agreements with state workers enough money to cover the contracts until the General Assembly comes back in November. However, the bills don't specifically say they include funds for collective bargaining.

This arrangement enables 14,000 state workers in the departments of Corrections, Mental Health and Children and Family Services to get the union-won wage hikes they anticipate.

But it also gives the legislature the chance to fund the already-signed contracts without commiting itself to the concept of collective bargaining by state employes.

The legislature has regularly rejected collective bargaining bills for state workers. The contracts that were under dispute this session stemmed from collective bargaining procedures established by Gov. Daniel Walker through executive order.

Lawmakers, with the constitutional obligation to appropriate state funds, feel they should not have to rubber-stamp wage hikes obtained through collective bargaining, particularly if they have no voice in the negotiations.

In other last-minute action, the legislature:

- Passed S1934, including $239,000 for the Illinois Prosecutor's Advisory Council. The House wanted to scuttle the agency but the Senate did not. They compromised by giving the agency less money next year than this year.
- Sent to Walker S1650 to fund the Illinois Community College Board. Its appropriation was delayed chiefly by black legislators who charge Chicago junior colleges with discrimination.

Lake water hearing scheduled July 15

A public hearing on the proposed rules governing the future allocation of Lake Michigan water will be held at :30 p.m., July 15 at the Marriott Hotel, 8535 W. Higgins Rd., Park Ridge.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation's division of water resources is expected to announce lake water allocations through 1980 by Dec. 31.

The department also is studying long-range water supply needs for northeast Illinois.

Presbyterians ponder declaration-of-faith creedal

The Southern-based Presbyterian Church in the U.S. has taken the first step toward approving a new, 20th-century creedal statement which leaders hope will provide a contemporary expression of faith to this generation.

After three hours of debate at the 900,000 member denomination's General Assembly, commissioners, as the delegates are called, voted overwhelmingly to approve the new "Declaration of Faith" and send it to the 60 prebyteries — regional groups — for their approval.

If three-fourths of the presbyteries approve the new statement, it will come back to a future General Assembly for a final vote and enactment.

THE NEW declaration is an attempt to express the historic content of the faith of the Reformed tradition in simple, contemporary language and symbols that can be easily understood by all members of a congregation.

"If we use it wisely and widely, we may come to a deeper appreciation and understading of 'the faith of our Fathers,'" says Felil B. Gear, a former moderator of the denomination.

The most unique aspect of the declaration, which has been in the works for some seven years, is that it is structured to express the faith, the experiences of the people of God, as a story.

"Jesus Christ stands at the center of a story," the declaration says. "In the biblical story, God moves with Israel and the church as Father, Son and Holy Spirit, to establish his just and loving rule in the world.

"THAT STORY still is unfolding and in faith we make it our own. It forms our memory and our hope. It tells us who we are and what we are to do. To retell it is to declare that we believe."

The declaration is divided into 10 chapters which cover most doctrines of the church: The Living God, The Maker of All (creation), God and the people of Israel, God in Christ, God the Holy Spirit, the Word of God, the Christian Church, the Christian Mission, the Christian Life and the Christian Hope.

One of most significant — and controversial — sections of the new creedal statement is a passage in the chapter on the Christian Church in which those who affirm the declaration confess the past sins of anti-Semitism.

"The followers of Jesus remained at first within the people of Israel," the declaration says. "As persons from all nations joined them, they were separated from the Jewish community" but "continued to accept Israel's story as their own" and therefore "we can never lay exclusive claim to being God's people . . ."

"WE AFFIRM that God has not rejected his people the Jews," it says while confessing "we Christians have rejected Jews throughout our history with shameful prejudice and cruelty. God calls us to dialogue and cooperation that do not ignore our real disagreements, yet proceed in mutual respect and love.

"We are bound together with them in a single story of those chosen to serve and proclaim the living God."

The new declaration will not be used by the Presbyterians in isolation. It was presented to the church within the context of a "Book of Confessions," which includes the texts not only of those key documents of the Reofmred tradition, the Westminister Confession and the Geneva Catechism, but the ancient Christian confessions of faith, the Nicene and Apostles creed as well as Luther's Large and Small Catechisms and the Barmen Confession, issued by German Christians resisting Hitler.

Two other landfill operators were fined $10,000 each three years ago for polluting the well. A hearing was set for July 8 on a motion by South Elgin attorneys for a preliminary injunction against the landfill operation.

Railroad to appeal debt ruling

An attorney representing the Rock Island Railroad's bankruptcy trustee said Friday he plans to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court a decision ordering the railroad to pay an estimated $3 million in debts.

Nicholas G. Manos, who represents trustee William M. Gibbons, said he would ask the Supreme Court to review an appeals court decision issued Friday.

The appeals court ruled Rock Island must pay debts to 20 other railroads for using their cars from Jan. 1, 1975, until the railroad filed for financial reorganization on March 17, 1975. The Interstate Commerce Commission and the other railroads appealed an order issued by U.S. District Court Judge J. McGarr, who ruled earlier the railroad could delay paying the debts until a financial reorganization plan is devised.

Wife slain; husband charged

Daniel G. Richards, 32, Cary, was charged in the shooting death of his wife, Karen. McHenry County State's Atty. William Cowlin said Mrs. Richards, 30, was shot with a rifle, apparently after an argument in the family home Thursday night. He said the couple had two children. Cowlin said Richards was held on $200,000 bond in the McHenry County Jail.

Ban of film sought again

The Kane County State's Attorney's Office said Friday it will probably go to court again in an attempt to win an obscenity conviction against distributors of the film, "Naked Came the Stranger." The case was presented to a jury this week, but Kane County Circuit Court Judge Paul W. Schnake declared a mistrial after the panel said it could not reach a verdict. "Most likely we will try it again," Ric Weiland, of the state's attorney's office said.

Film from the movie was confiscated by detectives on the first night of its Elgin run Oct. 10 on grounds the movie violated Illinois' obscenity law.

Subsequently, Apache Films, Ltd., the Chicago distributor, was charged with violating state law. A three-judge federal district court panel recently ruled Illinois' obscenity law unconstitutional on grounds it was too vague. But the Illinois Supreme Court upheld the statute in May, and Weiland said none of the court action indicated law enforcement agencies cannot try cases under the current law.

Race board reports record betting rate

The Illinois Racing Board reported Friday the state's revenue from thoroughbred and trotter betting and attendance shattered all records for the first six months of the year. Figures released by the board showed that during the first six months of 1976, the state collected more than $31.7 million in revenue, or $5 million more than during the same six months last year.

Nearly three million persons went to the track between Jan. 1 and June 30, and placed $334.9 million in bets, figures released by the board showed. The board attributes the higher betting, attendance and revenue figures to the granting of an extra number of racing dates, made possible through the 1975 Illinois Horse Racing Act.

Vandalia inmate escapes

An inmate trusty escaped from the minimum security Vandalia Correctional Center late Friday where he was imprisoned on car theft charges. Robert Denis, 32, Terre Haute, Ind., who worked in the kitchen detail, told his coworkers he was going for a walk, and never returned.

Many towns limiting water usage

Before turning the faucet on for the lawn sprinkler this Fourth of July weekend, stop and think. You probably are living in one of the eight Northwest suburbs that now have restrictions on lawn and garden sprinkling.

Local governments are attempting to emphasize water conservation this summer out of a fear that area wells are being pumped dry at an alarming rate.

Sprinkling restrictions are nothing new to Northwest suburban residents. Summer droughts almost inevitably cause periodic bans on domestic irrigation.

BUT IN MANY TOWNS, the restrictions this year are coming earlier and with greater force than in the past. Public works directors from the area will meet again July 15 to determine whether the various bans are helping, says William H. Muhlenfeld, executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference.

Public works directors are studying a regional sprinkling policy that will rotate permitted watering days among communities. A stiff fine up to $500 for violations of the proposed ordinance has been suggested.

Muhlenfeld said public works officials want to evaluate the effect of four weeks of enforcing existing ordinances before recommending new laws. They last met June 17.

Officials also plan to consider recommending changes in local water rates, Muhlenfeld said. Most rates now decrease as water usage increases.

SOME DIRECTORS think the rates should be changed so that they increase as the total amount of water increases.

Buffalo Grove has a model water-rate ordinance of this type, Muhlenfeld said.

Arlington Heights: Sprinkling permitted on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only.

Buffalo Grove: Residents with odd numbered addresses can sprinkle on Monday, Wednesday and Sunday. number addresses have sprinkling Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. There is no sprinkling permitted Friday.

Des Plaines: No restrictions.

Elk Grove Village: Total ban on all sprinkling except for new lawns, in which case a permit is required for five days of watering.

Hoffman Estates: No restrictions.

Mount Prospect: Sprinkling on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only.

Palatine: Odd numbered addresses permitted sprinkling on odd dates; even addresses on even dates.

Rolling Meadows: Sprinkling permitted only from 6 to 9 p.m.

Schaumburg: Odd-even sprinkling takes effect July 5.

Wheeling: Total ban on sprinkling.

Hearing July 9 on highway safety

A public hearing will be conducted July 9 on a U.S. Dept. of Transportation proposal to revise 15 highway safety program standards.

The all-day hearing is one of 10 scheduled across the country. It will run from 9 a.m.-noon, 1:30-4 p.m. and from 6-10 p.m. at the Ranada O'Hare Inn, 6600 N. Mannheim Rd., Des Plaines.

The standards being considered for revision deal with periodic motor vehicle inspection, motor vehicle registration, motorcycle safety, driver education, driver licensing, traffic codes and laws, traffic courts, alcohol, traffic records, emergency medical services, pedestrian safety, police traffic services, debris hazard control and cleanup, pupil transportation, and accident investigation and reporting.

Legislators end feud on collective bargaining

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois legislature, bone-weary and anxious to begin its summer vacation, Friday resolved disputes over collective bargaining and the Middle Fork Reservoir and prepared to adjourn until fall.

Barring unexpected flaps, the assembly appeared certain to end its spring session until Nov. 17, when lawmakers will return for the veto session.

The House — whose steadfast desire to fund collective bargaining agreements negotiated by state employes and the Middle Fork Reservoir project near Danville drove the session into overtime — finally yielded to Senate pressure to cut money for both.

THE MIDDLE FORK project, on the drawing board 10 years but under steady attack from environmentalists, would have cost $5.5 million in fiscal 1977. Its final price tag would be several times higher.

Backers of the Middle Fork, including the last four governors, argue it would give Danville a new water source and provide recreation. Foes say the reservoir would destroy an area of unique natural beauty.

Efforts to include Middle Fork funds were intensified by sentiment when Rep. Charles Campbell, R-Danville, fell ill and was hospitalized. Some members said the bill should be passed in his honor because he worked so long for it.

But in the end, legislators faced with the tightest state budget in years concluded the expense could not be justified.

The collective bargaining issue was resolved by giving agencies which negotiated wage agreements with state workers enough money to cover the contracts until the General Assembly comes back in November. However, the bills don't specifically say they include funds for collective bargaining.

This arrangement enables 14,000 state workers in the departments of Corrections, Mental Health and Children and Family Services to get the union-won wage hikes they anticipate.

But it also gives the legislature the chance to fund the already-signed contracts without commiting itself to the concept of collective bargaining by state employes.

The legislature has regularly rejected collective bargaining bills for state workers. The contracts that were under dispute this session stemmed from collective bargaining procedures established by Gov. Daniel Walker through executive order.

Lawmakers, with the constitutional obligation to appropriate state funds, feel they should not have to rubber-stamp wage hikes obtained through collective bargaining, particularly if they have no voice in the negotiations.

In other last-minute action, the legislature:

- Passed S1934, including $239,000 for the Illinois Prosecutor's Advisory Council. The House wanted to scuttle the agency but the Senate did not. They compromised by giving the agency less money next year than this year.
- Sent to Walker S1650 to fund the Illinois Community College Board. Its appropriation was delayed chiefly by black legislators who charge Chicago junior colleges with discrimination.

Lake water hearing scheduled July 15

A public hearing on the proposed rules governing the future allocation of Lake Michigan water will be held at :30 p.m., July 15 at the Marriott Hotel, 8535 W. Higgins Rd., Park Ridge.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation's division of water resources is expected to announce lake water allocations through 1980 by Dec. 31.

The department also is studying long-range water supply needs for northeast Illinois.

A copy of the proposed program is available at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

Presbyterians ponder declaration-of-faith creedal

The Southern-based Presbyterian Church in the U.S. has taken the first step toward approving a new, 20th-century creedal statement which leaders hope will provide a contemporary expression of faith to this generation.

After three hours of debate at the 900,000 member denomination's General Assembly, commissioners, as the delegates are called, voted overwhelmingly to approve the new "Declaration of Faith" and send it to the 60 prebyteries — regional groups — for their approval.

If three-fourths of the presbyteries approve the new statement, it will come back to a future General Assembly for a final vote and enactment.

THE NEW declaration is an attempt to express the historic content of the faith of the Reformed tradition in simple, contemporary language and symbols that can be easily understood by all members of a congregation.

"If we use it wisely and widely, we may come to a deeper appreciation and understading of 'the faith of our Fathers,' " says Felil B. Gear, a former moderator of the denomination.

The most unique aspect of the declaration, which has been in the works for some seven years, is that it is structured to express the faith, the experiences of the people of God, as a story.

"Jesus Christ stands at the center of a story," the declaration says. "In the biblical story, God moves with Israel and the church as Father, Son and Holy Spirit, to establish his just and loving rule in the world.

"THAT STORY still is unfolding and in faith we make it our own. It forms our memory and our hope. It tells us who we are and what we are to do. To retell it is to declare that we believe."

The declaration is divided into 10 chapters which cover most doctrines of the church: The Living God, The Maker of All (creation), God and the people of Israel, God in Christ, God the Holy Spirit, the Word of God, the Christian Church, the Christian Mission, the Christian Life and the Christian Hope.

One of most significant — and controversial — sections of the new creedal statement is a passage in the chapter on the Christian Church in which those who affirm the declaration confess the past sins of anti-Semitism.

"The followers of Jesus remained at first within the people of Israel," the declaration says. "As persons from all nations joined them, they were separated from the Jewish community" but "continued to accept Israel's story as their own" and therefore "we can never lay exclusive claim to being God's people . . ."

"WE AFFIRM that God has not rejected his people the Jews," it says while confessing "we Christians have rejected Jews throughout our history with shameful prejudice and cruelty. God calls us to dialogue and cooperation that do not ignore our real disagreements, yet proceed in mutual respect and love.

"We are bound together with them in a single story of those chosen to serve and proclaim the living God."

The new declaration will not be used by the Presbyterians in isolation. It was presented to the church within the context of a "Book of Confessions," which includes the texts not only of those key documents of the Reofmred tradition, the Westminister Confession and the Geneva Catechism, but the ancient Christian confessions of faith, the Nicene and Apostles creed as well as Luther's Large and Small Catechisms and the Barmen Confession, issued by German Christians resisting Hitler.

Schools are facing an uncertain future — suburbanites are defeating referendums, dropping enrollment is forcing school closings, too many teachers want too few jobs. How did the American dream come to this — how should your tax dollars be spent to get the most out of what we have? And what do we need?

Dorothy Oliver, The Herald's experienced education editor, doesn't claim to have all the answers, but she does have some insights only an insider who lives close to the issues can have. Read her penetrating comments every Saturday in Education Today in The Herald.

Parents, juveniles face traumas of arrest

Young vandals—they injure more than property

EDITOR'S NOTE: Vandalism generally touches more than one victim. For the property owner there is a monetary loss. But for the parents and children of many suburban families there is the trauma that results when a juvenile is apprehended by police in connection with an act of vandalism. Herald reporter Dave Ibata examines how police and the courts handle juvenile vandals and what steps officials in the Northwest suburbs are taking to keep first-time offenders from repeating their mistakes.

by DAVE IBATA
First of two parts

You thought it could never happen to your kid.

You answer the telephone. The voice at the other end of the line identifies itself as a youth officer for your community's police department, and your child is under arrest for vandalism.

Chances are you have a white-collar job, and have given your child a middle-class lifestyle replete with the social, material and educational advantages only the suburbs can offer. Your child is no product of poverty or prejudice.

But whether on a dare from a friend, during an outing with peers that turns from horseplay into destruction, or in a fit of anger against some brusque storekeeper, your youngster has committed a crime at someone else's expense. And in the eyes of many police officials, you're to blame.

VANDALISM STARTS in the home, where parents fail to teach young people to respect other people's property, police say. Most acts of vandalism are spur-of-the-moment, thrill crimes; most victims are strangers to the perpetrators.

Most vandals are juveniles who rarely consider the humiliation in store for themselves and their families should they be arrested.

"I suspect that about 65 per cent of vandalism is done by youths under 17 — that's an educated guess," says Deputy Chief Paul Buckholz of the Arlington Heights police. "Some kids do it just because they have energy, and others are doing it because they're angry — they're kids with problems."

Chief Jerry Bratcher of the Palatine police sys, "If a kid has decided he wants to commit vandalism, there isn't a whole lot the police or someone in the community can do to stop him."

HOW ARE VANDALS caught: To nab one in the act, police must have the aid of citizens willing to step out and notify authorities of vandalism. And if vandals get away before police arrive, witnesses must be found to come forth and provide testimony in court.

Vandals often incriminate themselves, says Chief Lewis R. Case of the Rolling Meadows police. Case says many young vandals develop guilt complexes, and will brag about their exploits just to get themselves arrested.

Boasting makes a youth look good in the eyes of his peers, Case explains, but word-of-mouth eventually will reach police youth officers. And if the youth is arrested, "he pays his dues without losing pride," Case says.

THE SHOCK OF the actual arrest — the heavy hand on your shoulder, the long ride to headquarters, the dreary minutes spent waiting in the police station for parents to arrive — this usually is sufficient cure for the first-time offender. And nearly all first-time vandlas have their cases settled out of court, police officials say.

Police prefer to handle first — and in some departments, second-and third-time offenders — through "station adjustment." A juvenile officer places the youth under his supervision and works with parents to make sure the teen stays out of trouble.

In Arlington Heights, out of 1,680 juveniles arrested for various crimes in 1975, only 175 were sent to court, Buckholz says. About 250 went into counseling and the rest just had made mistakes in judgment, and were released to parents for discipline at home, Buckholz says.

Station adjustment, Bratcher says, may include diagnosis, screening and referral to a counseling agency. Police may offer options ranging from requests for stronger discipline by parents to a recommendation of psychiatric treatment for youths and restitution to their victims.

THE JUVENILE officer's suggestions are not mandatory, Bratcher says. It's up to parents to follow through.

But if parents refuse to follow the juvenile officer's directions, police may go to court to obtain an order for parental action.

Parents should be held responsible for the crimes of their children, police agree, and police support vandalism ordinances that would make mandatory restitution to victims of vandalism. Either the youthful vandal or his parents must pay, police say.

Most parents readily agree to restitution under station adjustment, says Case. But some parents just don't care — and here police find the most disturbed, most destructive youngsters.

BUCKHOLZ SAYS he once encountered a parent who told him, "I have a right to a life of my own, and I'll be damned if I'm going to have to babysit this kid every hour of the day."

Case estimates 2 per cent to 3 per cent of young vandals are "incorrigibles" who come from broken homes, or homes lacking love and discipline.

Chief Martin Conroy, of the Schaumburg police, says, "If you think you can straighten a child out by working with a station adjustment, then I'm all for it." However, Conroy adds, in most instances youths should be prosecuted after the second arrest.

"BEYOND THAT (first arrest), we're going to crack the whip and let the child know that we mean business," Conroy vows.

The alternative to station adjustment is a petition of delinquency filed by police to the Cook County Juvenile Court. Here overworked judges must consider cases of suburban vandalism with what police estimate to be 50 per cent of the felony crimes committed in the county.

Such judges generally take a dim view of prosecution of a first-time vandalism offender, and chances of conviction are nil, police say. It's the repeat offender — the incorrigible — who faces the bench.

Three strikes and you're out, most police departments agree. After the third arrest, a youth faces detention in the Audy Home with a day in court. The state takes guardianship away from a teen's parents.

"I FEEL THESE youngsters that are caught are crying out for something," Case says. "I think they're crying out for their parents to realize they need them."

One of the most wrenching sights a juvenile officer sees, Case explains, is a youth in court, without his parents — with only some high-priced lawyer to lean on.

"When a kid goes to court, he wants to see more than anything else in the world his mother or father standing next to him," Case says.

Police say they and the state can't replace parents. The roots of vandalism lie in the home.

Mini-engine to make debut in today's holiday parade

by SCOTT HAMILTON

The Fourth of July parade today in Arlington Heights, will feature bands, floats, drum and bugle corps and fire engines, including a fire engine that's 6 feet long and 3 feet high.

The pint-sized pumper is the product of four weeks of hard work, often into the wee hours of the morning, by four employes of Chalet Ford, Arlington Heights.

George Tomaszewski, his brother Dave, Timmy Breen and Hank DeGeorge decided they wanted to build something for the handicapped kids in Arlington Heights to enjoy — and what delights a youngtser more than a fire engine, complete with horn, light, siren, ladders and water tank?

SO WITH MATERIAL and facilities provided by Chalet Ford, the four designed and built a miniature fire engine and now the Arlington Heights Fire Dept. has a new piece of equipment: Engine Co. No. 22.

Powered by the engine from a riding lawn mower, the pumper will make its debut in the Fourth of July parade.

"The sole use of the engine will be for raising funds or donations or for the enjoyment of handicapped children," said Tomaszewski.

"We wanted to get it done for the Fourth of July," Dave Tomaszewski said. "The last two weeks were rough. We worked unti four in the morning one day and two in the morning another day."

"We only finished it at two this morning (Friday)," said George. "Some of the paint is still wet."

THE FOUR WORKED on the pumper after work or on lunch hours, but they lost track of how many hours were put into the project. But none of them worried about how many hours were involved.

"We plan to make it available for the handicapped children at birthday parties," said Lt. Jerry LeLigdon of the Arlington Heights Fire Dept. He said the fire fighters' association will make it available for use at Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center, Palatine, or Little City, Palatine, for the kids' enjoyment. The ltlle pumper will even go to private homes for birthday parties of the handicapped, he said.

LeLigdon said the association also plans to create a clown that will be readily associated with the fire engine to add to the delight of the kids and help bring in donations for the handicapped.

And that is exactly what George Tomaskewski, a man who gives up his Christmas to go around to area hospitals to entertain children, wants the little engine to do.

Frisbee contest at park

The Arlington Heights Park District will sponsor a frisbee tournament at 1 p.m. Sunday at Recreation Park.

The contest is open to Arlington Heights residents between the ages of 8 and 15.

Awards will be given on the basis of distance and accuracy.

Jury to probe death of student, 14

by JOE SWICKARD

The Cook County Grand Jury is expected to reopen the investigation into the unexplained March death of a 14-year-old student at St. Viator High School.

Samuel Berkeley, an attorney with the Cook County State's Attorney's Office, said there is a "good likelihood" that the grand jury will be asked to examine the death of Ronald Matella Jr., "within the next 10 days to two weeks

"From what I've got so far, it's fairly reasonable to do that," Berkeley said Friday.

Matella, of 1708 Robbie, Mount Prospect, was discovered in the school's gym by a school priest the night of March 15. According to reports, Matella, who was two weeks away from his 15th birthday, was lying on the floor with a noose around his neck.

IN APRIL, a coroner's jury was unable to determine the cause of the youth's death. Deputy Coroner Myron Weigle said the jury was unable to establish whether Matella's death was the result of suicide or homicide.

Berkeley said the positioning of the body and other factors makes the possibility of suicide unlikely.

"This isn't an ordinary suicide. He was just lying there. There's no evidence of his falling," Berkeley said.

Arlington Heights police Det. Ronald van Raalte said the evidence uncovered so far is not consistent with suicide.

"The facts don't fit it. There are too many contradictions that can't be resolved by interviews. That's why we want to get all of these people before the grand jury," van Raalte said.

HE SAID THE investigation has been continuing since March. He said two students from the high school were interviewed and took polygraph examinations last week. He declined to comment on the examinations.

Berkeley said many witnesses, including teachers, friends and students, are to be called before the grand jury.

"We want everybody there," he said.

He said there were indications others may be involved in Matella's death. He said it is still uncertain where the youth actually died, raising the possibility he might have died elsewhere and his body moved to the gym.

He said there are further indications that someone else tied the noose around his neck after the death.

MATELLA WAS unfamiliar with ropes and knot-tying, Berkeley said.

Berkeley said there was no evidence of drugs involved in the youngster's death and the victim had no record of trouble in school or with authorities.

However, he did not rule out the possibility that Matella's death may have been the result of an accident while "fooling aound with some other kids."

"Maybe it was just kids playing around. I don't know. That's why I want to go to the grand jury with this," Berkeley said.

"I FEEL THESE youngsters that are caught are crying out for something," Case says. "I think they're crying out for their parents to realize they need them."

One of the most wrenching sights a juvenile officer sees, Case explains, is a youth in court, without his parents — with only some high-priced lawyer to lean on.

"When a kid goes to court, he wants to see more than anything else in the world his mother or father standing next to him," Case says.

Police say they and the state can't replace parents. The roots of vandalism lie in the home.

Mini-engine to make debut in today's holiday parade

by SCOTT HAMILTON

The Fourth of July parade today in Arlington Heights, will feature bands, floats, drum and bugle corps and fire engines, including a fire engine that's 6 feet long and 3 feet high.

The pint-sized pumper is the product of four weeks of hard work, often into the wee hours of the morning, by four employes of Chalet Ford, Arlington Heights.

George Tomaszewski, his brother Dave, Timmy Breen and Hank DeGeorge decided they wanted to build something for the handicapped kids in Arlington Heights to enjoy — and what delights a youngtser more than a fire engine, complete with horn, light, siren, ladders and water tank?

SO WITH MATERIAL and facilities provided by Chalet Ford, the four designed and built a miniature fire engine and now the Arlington Heights Fire Dept. has a new piece of equipment: Engine Co. No. 22.

Powered by the engine from a riding lawn mower, the pumper will make its debut in the Fourth of July parade.

"The sole use of the engine will be for raising funds or donations or for the enjoyment of handicapped children," said Tomaszewski.

"We wanted to get it done for the Fourth of July," Dave Tomaszewski said. "The last two weeks were rough. We worked unti four in the morning one day and two in the morning another day."

"We only finished it at two this morning (Friday)," said George. "Some of the paint is still wet."

THE FOUR WORKED on the pumper after work or on lunch hours, but they lost track of how many hours were put into the project. But none of them worried about how many hours were involved.

"We plan to make it available for the handicapped children at birthday parties," said Lt. Jerry LeLigdon of the Arlington Heights Fire Dept. He said the fire fighters' association will make it available for use at Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center, Palatine, or Little City, Palatine, for the kids' enjoyment. The ltle pumper will even go to private homes for birthday parties of the handicapped, he said.

LeLigdon said the association also plans to create a clown that will be readily associated with the fire engine to add to the delight of the kids and help bring in donations for the handicapped.

And that is exactly what George Tomaskewski, a man who gives up his Christmas to go around to area hospitals to entertain children, wants the little engine to do.

Frisbee contest at park

The Arlington Heights Park District will sponsor a frisbee tournament at 1 p.m. Sunday at Recreation Park.

The contest is open to Arlington Heights residents between the ages of 8 and 15.

Awards will be given on the basis of distance and accuracy.

Jury to probe death of student, 14

by JOE SWICKARD

The Cook County Grand Jury is expected to reopen the investigation into the unexplained March death of a 14-year-old student at St. Viator High School.

Samuel Berkeley, an attorney with the Cook County State's Attorney's Office, said there is a "good likelihood" that the grand jury will be asked to examine the death of Ronald Matella Jr., "within the next 10 days to two weeks

"From what I've got so far, it's fairly reasonable to do that," Berkeley said Friday.

Matella, of 1708 Robbie, Mount Prospect, was discovered in the school's gym by a school priest the night of March 15. According to reports, Matella, who was two weeks away from his 15th birthday, was lying on the floor with a noose around his neck.

IN APRIL, a coroner's jury was unable to determine the cause of the youth's death. Deputy Coroner Myron Weigle said the jury was unable to establish whether Matella's death was the result of suicide or homicide.

Berkeley said the positioning of the body and other factors makes the possibility of suicide unlikely.

"This isn't an ordinary suicide. He was just lying there. There's no evidence of his falling," Berkeley said.

Arlington Heights police Det. Ronald van Raalte said the evidence uncovered so far is not consistent with suicide.

"The facts don't fit it. There are too many contradictions that can't be resolved by interviews. That's why we want to get all of these people before the grand jury," van Raalte said.

HE SAID THE investigation has been continuing since March. He said two students from the high school were interviewed and took polygraph examinations last week. He declined to comment on the examinations.

Berkeley said many witnesses, including teachers, friends and students, are to be called before the grand jury.

"We want everybody there," he said.

He said there were indications others may be involved in Matella's death. He said it is still uncertain where the youth actually died, raising the possibility he might have died elsewhere and his body moved to the gym.

He said there are further indications that someone else tied the noose around his neck after the death.

MATELLA WAS unfamiliar with ropes and knot-tying, Berkeley said.

Berkeley said there was no evidence of drugs involved in the youngster's death and the victim had no record of trouble in school or with authorities.

However, he did not rule out the possibility that Matella's death may have been the result of an accident while "fooling aound with some other kids."

"Maybe it was just kids playing around. I don't know. That's why I want to go to the grand jury with this," Berkeley said.

American potters imitated British ironstone

with Grace Carolyn

In the year 1813 James J. Mason, a potter in the town of Fenton, Staffordshire, England, was granted a British patent for a stone china which contained powdered iron slag and was slightly graying in color, with a bluish-white glaze on the outside. Mason called his invention "ironstone." Most of the British firms got on the band wagon with ironstone of their own, and you may find backstampings of the various names they used for it: Stone China, White Granite, Royal Patent Ironstone China and Opaque Stone China, to name a few. The British held the corner on this ware for many years, but from about 1870 to 1910, it was also made in the United States.

Because Americans liked anything British (once we got rid of the troops), potters on this side of the Atlantic imitated the English markings on their china, with crowns, lions and unicorns. The word "Warranted" above or below the mark usually signifies American-made, and usually in or near Trenton, N.J. But not all china so marked seems to me to be the fine hard quality of real British ironstone. For instance, the bowl and pitcher, or wash set, in the picture, from my own collection. This set is in the popular "Moss Rose" pattern, and the outside color has a yellowish cast, rather than the bluish white. This set has the British-looking mark on the bottoms, plus "F. and T. Co." and the word "Warranted." This let me know that the set was American, and I found the mark in my book as a product of the Fell and Throop Co., Trenton, N.J. The date would be late 1800s-early 1900s.

IRONSTONE WAS decorated in various ways, including the moss rose, with spatter, tea-leaf (a small copper or gold-colored cluster), or a motif resembling Oriental Imari. Colored ironstone was exported in great quantities to America from England between 1830 and 1860, including much of the "historical" wares with transfer printed scenes of British or American places.

It is possible to assemble a complete set of ironstone in the plain white, including all sorts of interesting serving pieces such as square bowls, pitchers, covered dishes, even handleless cups and saucers. But these latter are apt to be quite expensive. The plain white wares usually have a design pressed or molded such as Bellflower, Corn and Oats, Grape, Wheat, Lily of the Valley.

Collectors search for their favorite patterns, but they all go together and mix well with other things such as copper luster, flow blue or majolica. I saw one table set with plain white ironstone and brown "Bennington" on a brown-and white checked cloth and brilliant zinnias in a brown bowl. The glassware was amber. Beautiful.

NOW I'LL TELL you about my own Bicentennial (and I promise, after tomorrow, not to use that overworked word again — but Happy Birthday to us!) luncheon. I copied some recipes from my White House Cookbook, and I'll mail a copy to anyone who wishes them, upon receipt of your request and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. I'll include a few other White House recipes too.

My table was set with white ironstone, flow blue, red checked antique tablecloth, and red glassware (Cambridge glass). The flowers were red and white striped petunias and blue bachelor buttons (or perhaps they are called cornflowers) which grow wild in the field behind my house. The main course was Martha Washington's Crab Soup, and I served fresh spinach salad, which I noted was the favorite of my favorite, Grace Coolidge. Then for dessert, Betty Ford's strawberry blitz torte. I even picked the strawberries!

For the above and some other White House recipes, you may write to me, enclosing SASE. Please address Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Cheryl Bloom–Mark Miritz

The first wedding performed in Siebert Chapel of the new fine arts building on the Carthage College campus, Kenosha, Wis., was that of Carthage graduates Cheryl Bloom and Mark Miritz. The ceremony June 5 was officiated by Mark's father, the Rev. Melvin Miritz of Racine.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Carl Bloom of Arlington Heights, is a '76 graduate of Carthage and prior to that attended Arlington High. Her uncle, Dr. Paul Hansen of Kenosha, gave her in marriage.

She and Mark met when she was a freshman at Carthage and he was a senior. He is now a sales representative for Nation's Business, a magazine published by the National Chamber of Commerce in Milwaukee.

CHERYL IS working at the Casa Capri Restaurant in Kenosha, where the couple is making their home.

The groom's mother made Cheryl's bridal gown of ivory satin with lace accents. With it she wore a short veil attached to a headpiece matching her dress, and carried white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Linda Yahr of West Bend, Wis., was maid of honor and Wendy Goodey, Hoffman Estates, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both wore ivory dresses printed in a soft burgundy, gold and green floral print. Their bouquets were of yellow roses.

Best man Tom Iverson is from Kenosha. Groomsmen were Mike Kinas and Rick Woodside, both of Kenosha and David Bauman, Racine.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Miritz

A reception at the Golden Lantern in Kenosha followed the 6 p.m. double ring ceremony. One hundred guests attended.

Marilyn Miles–Thomas L. Cuttill

Married on June 5, Marilyn and Thomas Cuttill will be making their home in Normal, Ill., while the bridegroom completes his senior year in accounting at Illinois State University.

The bride, who attended Illinois State for two years, is the former Marilyn Alyce Miles of Palatine. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Miles, and Tom's are Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Cuttill of Pontiac, Ill.

The young couple exchanged vows in Christ Lutheran Church, Palatine, and greeted 200 guests immediately following at a reception at Old Orchard Country Club. Their 5:30 p.m. candlelight wedding ceremony closed with a prayer by the bride's brother, Michael, a student at North Park Seminary, Chicago.

LINDA MILES served as her sister's maid of honor, and a cousin, Gretchen Hart, Sand Lake, Mich.; Mrs. David Bochek, Rockford; and Jill Consiglio, Palatine, were bridesmaids.

The four were gowned in melon-colored jersey, halter styled with matching bolero jackets. Their bouquets were of starburst mums, apricot roses, white carnations and ivy.

White jersey was the bride's choice for her gown, the bodice detailed with an Alencon lace and pearl motif at the high neckline. The dress had long sleeves and watteau train. A fingertip veil and Juliet cap trimmed in lace and pearls completed the bride's attire and she carried orchids, stephanotis, white roses and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Cuttill

ED KAMMERMAN, Pontiac, was Tom's best man, with John Hoesly, Pontiac; Dan Gray, Normal; and the groom's brother, Bill as groomsmen. The bride's two brothers, Michael and Jim, ushered.

After the festivities the bride and groom left for a week at Lake of the Ozarks.

Linda Joy Guerriero–Edward Becker

Linda Joy Guerriero of Arlington Heights became a bride June 5 in Norwood Gospel Chapel, Chicago. She and Edward Becker of Broadview were married at 4 p.m., then greeted 200 guests at a reception at the Golden Flame in Chicago.

Performing the double ring rites was Prof. V. Paul Flint of Emmaus Bible College in Oak Park.

Linda chose a white organza and Chantilly lace bridal gown and a full-length veil attached to a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids, gladiolus florets and baby's breath.

PRECEDING HER down the aisle as maid of honor was Linda's twin sister, Karen, who wore powder blue jersey and carried white carnations and powder blue baby's breath.

Bridesmaids, attired exactly as Karen, were Debra Carol Guerriero, another sister of the bride; Alice Bapes, LaGrange; Linda Mullins, Carpentersville; Gail Benson, Park Ridge; and Carol Sobeski, Palatine.

Also in the bridal procession were Michelle Joy Adam, Highland Park, the bride's 4-year-old niece, as flower girl and John Goeringer, 5, of Elk Grove Village, as ring bearer. Michelle's dress was in powder blue with white lace overlay, and she carried a white lace birdcage filled with blue-tipped carnations and rose petals.

THE GROOM'S brother, Tom, served as his best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brother, David; John Stevens, Modesto, Calif.; Charles Muir, Maywood; the groom's cousin, Mike Kelstrom, Elmhurst; and Ed Velasquez.

Among the special wedding guests were the bride's grandparents, the Emil Guerrieros of Barnegat, N. J.

Making their home in Mount Prospect, Linda works for Barnes and Reinecke, Elk Grove Village, and Ed for Commonwealth Edison, Maywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Becker

She graduated from Hersey High School in 1974. A Proviso East graduate, Ed then served in the Air Force.

Vicki Dellacecca – Robert Unangst III

An area couple, Vicki Dellacecca and Robert C. Unangst III who met while working at Harris Pharmacy, Arlington Heights, six years ago, were married June 5 in Faith Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dellacecca of Arlington Heights; her husband the son of former area residents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Unangst Jr. of Clearwater, Fla. The groom now lives in Rolling Meadows.

Their 11 a.m. ceremony was followed by cocktails and luncheon at the Atrium, Rolling Meadows, for 135 guests. The newlyweds then spent five days at Lake Geneva and are making their home in Rolling Meadows.

AN OLD-FASHIONED ivory organza and lace gown was Vicki's choice for her wedding, and with it she wore a short veil attached to a crown of fresh baby's breath. Her bouquet was of white carnations, tea roses and baby's breath.

Susan Meihsner, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor in a blue, bronze and white floral-printed voile and carried blue carnations, white daisies and baby's breath. Gowned identically were three bridesmaids, Kathleen Meysenburg, Lincoln, Neb.; Carol Richards, Portgage, Wis.; and Julie Weiss, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Bob was attended by John Pullman, Elgin, as best man and Jim Weigt, Palatine; John Ernst, Chicago; and Jim Pullman, Wheeling, groomsmen.

Vicki and Bob graduated from area high schools, she from Arlington High and he from Fremd. Vicki then graduated from Barat College, Lake Forest, and works for the Northern Trust Bank, Chicago. Bob attended Harper College and is with Washington Inventory Service, Elmhurst.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Unangst III

Christine Conklin–Larry Malmquist

Wearing a white chiffon gown made by her mother, Christine Ann Conklin became the bride June 5 of Larry Scott Malmquist. Christine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Conklin, Palatine, and Larry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Malmquist, Deerfield.

The double ring wedding was held at 6 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church, Palatine, with a reception for 150 following at the Hobson House in Long Grove.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Iron Mountain, Mich., and are now making their home in an Evanston apartment.

CHRISTINE, AN instructional aide in Mount Prospect School Dist. 26, is a '71 graduate of Fremd High and a '75 graduate of Illinois State University. Larry, also a '75 graduate of Illinois State, is a computer programmer for U.S. Gypsum, Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry S. Malmquist

Christine chose her sister, Barbara Jean, as her maid of honor, and Sheri Hoss, Palatine; Deborah Chase, Chicago; and Sharon Hawkins, Bloomington, as bridesmaids. They were in apricot chiffon gowns and each carried a single apricot rose.

Dennis R. Brown, Normal, Ill., was best man, and the groom's brother, Craig of Mundelein; Craig Camp, Blue Island; and Mark Clemens, Elgin, were ushers.

Charlene Raymo–Robert Paul Jr.

Eighteen months ago Robert Paul Jr., manager of the House of Vision in Mount Prospect, hired Charlene Raymo, a fellow optician, and on May 2 they were married in St. James Church, Arlington Heights.

Charlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raymo, Arlington Heights, is now employed as an aide in the office of an Arlington Heights physician.

Charlene's sister, Pat, was maid of honor for the 5:30 service and Mary Kaminski, Palatine, was bridesmaid. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Wiggins, Glenview, chose his brother, Steve Vorbau, Des Moines, Iowa, as best man, and Jim Scanlan, Palatine, as usher.

A RECEPTION for 150 guests was held in the Arlington Heights American Legion Hall, after which Charlene and Robert honeymooned in Florida. They are now residing in a Wheeling apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul Jr.

The new Mrs. Paul is a '73 graduate of Hersey High, and her bridegroom, a former resident of Palatine, is a '72 graduate of Fremd High.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry S. Malmquist

Christine chose her sister, Barbara Jean, as her maid of honor, and Sheri Hoss, Palatine; Deborah Chase, Chicago; and Sharon Hawkins, Bloomington, as bridesmaids. They were in apricot chiffon gowns and each carried a single apricot rose.

Dennis R. Brown, Normal, Ill., was best man, and the groom's brother, Craig of Mundelein; Craig Camp, Blue Island; and Mark Clemens, Elgin, were ushers.

Charlene Raymo–Robert Paul Jr.

Eighteen months ago Robert Paul Jr., manager of the House of Vision in Mount Prospect, hired Charlene Raymo, a fellow optician, and on May 2 they were married in St. James Church, Arlington Heights.

Charlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raymo, Arlington Heights, is now employed as an aide in the office of an Arlington Heights physician.

Charlene's sister, Pat, was maid of honor for the 5:30 service and Mary Kaminski, Palatine, was bridesmaid. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Wiggins, Glenview, chose his brother, Steve Vorbau, Des Moines, Iowa, as best man, and Jim Scanlan, Palatine, as usher.

A RECEPTION for 150 guests was held in the Arlington Heights American Legion Hall, after which Charlene and Robert honeymooned in Florida. They are now residing in a Wheeling apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul Jr.

The new Mrs. Paul is a '73 graduate of Hersey High, and her bridegroom, a former resident of Palatine, is a '72 graduate of Fremd High.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

What about hormone use after surgery?

What is your opinion of prescribing estrogen or hormones after a complete hysterectomy, removal of the uterus, overies and tubes?

Does it or can it make a woman more prone to have cancer? My daughter age 41 is being given hormones after a similar operation when I was 44.

There is no good conclusive evidence that female hormones cause increased cancer anywhere except perhaps in the uterus. The idea that female hormones increase the chances of having cancer of the uterus needs further study. In fact, there is data that suggests that female hormones may protect women against other cancers of the body. The real danger in the recent scare headlines about the increased risk of cancer of the uterus from taking female hormones is that eliminating the use of female hormones may expose women to a much higher risk of other cancers, perhaps lung cancer for one. It may become a case of throwing the baby out with the bath water.

When the ovaries are removed with the uterus at any age, it induces a surgical menopause if the woman has not yet gone through the change. In a young woman furnishing female hormones is really replacement therapy of her normal hormones. Obviously after the uterus has been removed any theoretical increased risk of cancer of the uterus no longer applies.

To give you more information about the menopause I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Others who wish to have this information can forward 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I wonder if you can help me out. I am a diabetic and take 40 units of insulin every day. When I go to bed, I sweat a lot and have to change shirts four or five times every night. My doctor said I don't eat the right kind of food. He is mistaken. I do eat plenty of meat, all kinds of vegetables, milk, orange juice and cereal. I talked to my diabetic nurse and she said I should try another doctor.

When I get wet from sweating, I shake all over. The doctor said it came from the diabetes. I don't believe him. I feel fine otherwise. My druggist said if he were me he would do something about this problem. I just started having the problem two weeks ago and I've had diabetes for three years.

I am inclined to agree with your nurse. You are describing what sounds like an insulin reaction. These occur when you have too much insulin and your blood sugar falls too much. Sometimes the type of insulin you are taking in relation to the way your diet is divided for different times of the day will have something to do with it.

In any case you need to be evaluated for your blood sugar levels during one of these episodes and if your level is low, then your insulin or diet or both will need to be readjusted. If you want to test the possibility that you are having an insulin reaction, you can take some orange juice with some sugar when you have a sweating and shaking episode and see if that stops it. If it does, it is pretty good proof that you are getting too much insulin for that time of day. Don't correct your own insulin, but get a doctor to help you.

Reader wants rebuttal to plea for CB radio

Dear Dorothy: Our two teenage sons have a high-pressure campaign on to induce us to install a CB radio in our car. They argue (mild word.) that these sets are far from a fad, could help all or any of us in emergencies. You check things like this. Give us some rebuttal arguments.—Mrs. Joyce Lindholm

Only rebuttal I know is the high theft rate and the prospect of kicked-up insurance bills as a result. There probably are more than 10 million of these citizens band radios in use now and, sure, for a lot of people they are simply toys. Even so, there have been enough reports of sensible utility to make your sons' arguments viable. Many CB owners have notified police of highway accidents, reported dangerous (maybe drunk) drivers, and a number of local people and truckers have aided strangers by directing them to nearby service stations, decent restaurants and motels. The theft bit is avoidable if the radio is instantly taken out of the car the moment is is parked.

Dear Dorothy: I'm chief honcho of an office party we're going to give at a restaurant. I have all the menu information, but nothing has been said about tipping. I've always been bad at this. What's the best way to handle it?—Marlene Hobbes

Usually, the restaurant manager mentions it early. You're in perfect order to ask. The nominal service charge is 15 per cent.

Dear Dorothy: A bachelor, I'm pretty good at cooking. One thing does bug me — omelets. They're always a leathery disaster, no matter whose advice I've followed. Hints?—Jerry Vergara

When you say "leathery," you are also saying you cook them at too high a temperature. It's always moderate to low heat for omelets.

Dear Dorothy: I'm getting up there in years and not a bit ashamed of it. It came as some surprise to be told at a meeting that soap is less needed at my age. Sounds a bit off-base. Can you check?—Mrs. Joanne Corbett

The information is correct enough, Mrs. Corbett. As we get older, we produce less skin oils and we need only moderate amounts of soap. It's the young who have excessive skin oil and that's why acne can occur. They need soap and scrubbing. Older we get, the less we need.

Dear Dorothy: I'm fascinated by the Venus Flytrap plant. But who wants to have flies around just to keep a plant?—Louise Pate

You don't need flies to keep a Venus thriving. It uses photosynthesis to get its food — like any plant. True, the insects seem to supply some kind of nutrient, but the plant seems to adjust without them.

"They paged me today!"

Frank Carbo of Slavin Jewelers shows his wares.

Hands of time turning back; pocket watch again in style

by LEA TONKIN

The old-timer pocket watch is back in style.

Whether the time piece is fancy or plain, brand new or newly polished, it makes a good duo with the vested look.

"I think it's primarily nostalgia," said Dave Slavin of Slavin Jewelers, Des Plaines of increasing pocket watch sales

Pocket watch buyers generally prefer old-fashioned styles, Slavin said. They'll pay $60 to $400 for a traditional watch at a time when the newer electronic watches offer greater accuracy for $100 and up.

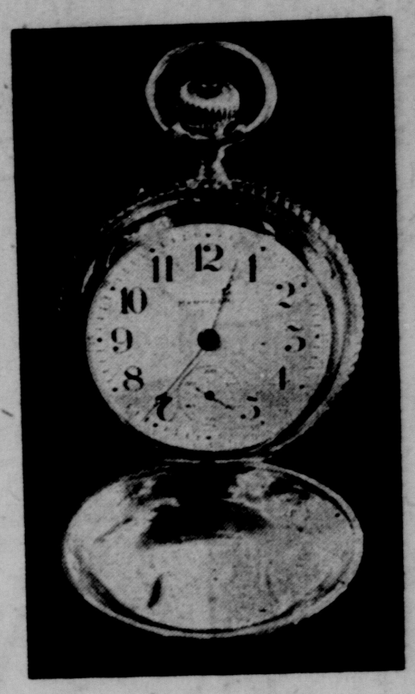
Fashion, rather than nostalgia, accounts for the revival of the venerable pocket watch, said Robert Phillips, manager of Persin & Robbin Jewelers, Arlington Heights. "We've gotten into a men's jewelry revival." The store's pocket watch sales doubled during the past three years.

"I THINK jewelry for men is here to stay," Phillips said. Pocket watch popularity is "not just the Bicentennial. Men's magazines are showing men wearing them, taking them out to look at them."

Time was, when a man would buy a case for his pocket watch in a style suited to his tastes. Then the innards of the timepiece, the chain and attached fob would be selected. Nowadays the chain may be included with the complete pocketwatch.

Phillips said the hunting case watch embellished with bas-relief detail is sought by many buyers. The pocket watch is too versatile to lump into one general category, however.

THE STYLE and construction of the case are first cnnsiderations for a would-be buyer, the jeweler said. A gold-filled or solid gold case is a good investment for durability.



It's a shiny old-timer.

The type of movement is important too. Phillips suggests the watch should have at least 17 jewels.

Men aren't the only ones interested in the pocket watch. Women wear pocket watches on chains or carry them in a purse.

Quite a few people are taking old-time pocket watches out of dusty drawers or vaults and bringing them into the store to be cleaned, Phillips continued.

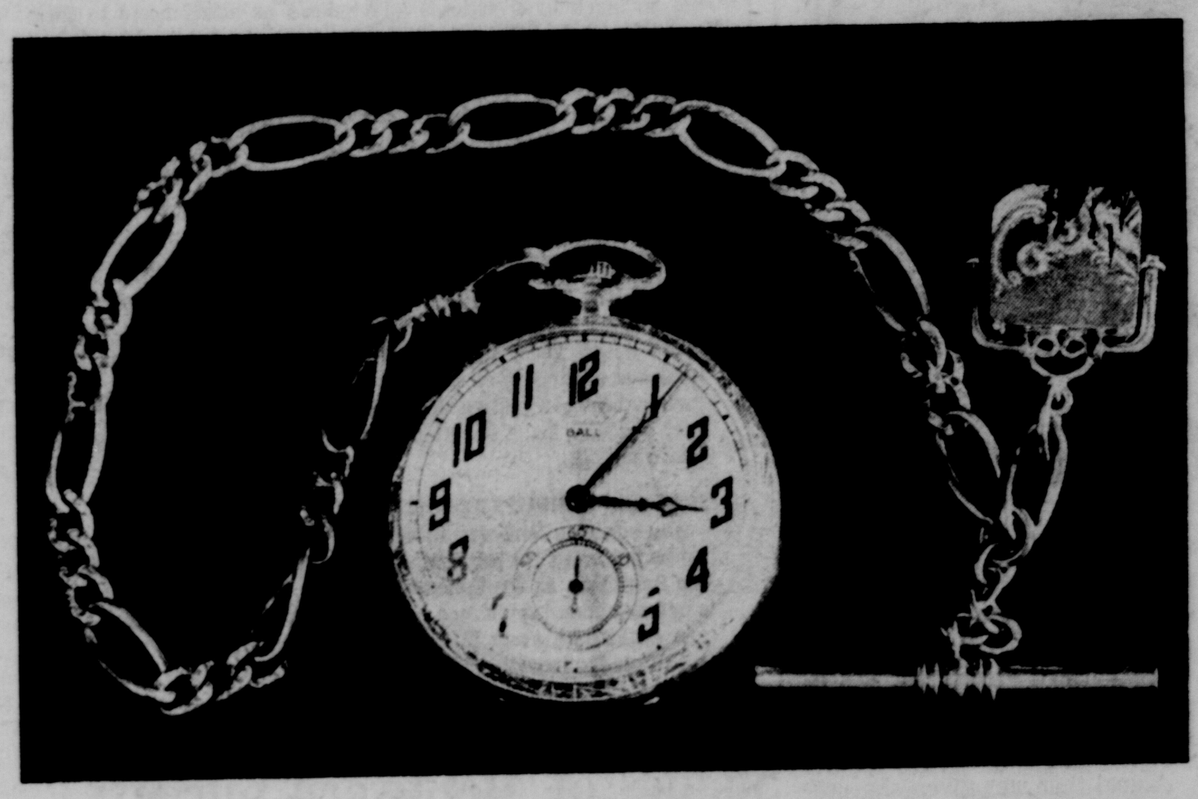
As a collector of antique watches, he's fascinated by memorabilia describing the rise and fall of pocket watch popularity. The period between the 1880s and 1920 was the heyday of the dependable timepiece.

ONE PROBLEM confronting the owner of a long-neglected pocket watch is the occasionally prohibitive cost for repairs. It's a good idea to ask for an estimate of repair costs, Phillips advised. A jeweler who specializes in antique watch repair may have to make all the parts required for renovation.

A good pocket watch will cost $50 or more when it's new, Philips said. The cost skyrockets to several hundred dollars, perhaps several thousand dollars for antiques. The quality of the case, age and the type of movement determine antique value. A pocket watch in running order is much more salable than a worn-out timepiece.

Westclox, a LaSalle, Illinois watch manufacturing company, is cashing in on the pocket watch comeback. The watchmaker is a division of General Time, a Talley Industries Company. The company's pocket watches range from trim, open-faced models to more expensive huntingg case lines.

An embossed railroad watch similar to those used by conductors and engineers in the good old days is available. Suggested retail prices start at $5.50. Although no sales figures are available from the firm, the newly expanded lines indicate the pocket watch is once again a stylish timekeeper.



One of Robert Phillips' antique pocket watches teamed with chain and locket.

6% phone increase asked by Ma Bell

Illinois Bell Telephone Friday asked the Illinois Commerce Commission for a rate hike it said would increase company revenues by 6 per cent, or $110 million. Bell Pres. James E. Olson said the increase would raise most home phone bills less than 6 per cent "because the rate changes would affect mostly those who use a lot of telephone service, or who take optional services and equipment." Olson said the request would increase the cost of Chicago suburban call-pak customers and would hike basic rates for customers in the Belleville-East St. Louis area.

Other major items in the request were:

- Long distance rates for calls within Illinois would be increased 12 per cent.
- Extension telephones in private homes would cost 20 cents a month more. Touch tone phones would cost 25 cents more.
- Charges for installing or moving telephone service would be increased. For example, Bell said, a customer who has two phones installed in an apartment with wiring already in plact would pay $9 more for the work.
- Non local coin phone calls within the Chicago metropolitan area would increase between 15 cents and 35 cents. Bell was granted a rate hike earlier this year, but said the amount was inadequate to meet rising expenses. Bell asked last year for a rate hike totaling $186 million but the ICC granted only about $70 million of that.

State enters travel agency case

The Illinois Attorney General's office has entered the Bon Voyage Travel Agency Inc. case trying to find out what happened to down payments made by about 3,000 travelers who booked trips through the company before it filed for bankruptcy. Howard Kaufman, chief of the Consumer Fraud Division, said Thursday his office has received hundreds of complaints from persons who do not know if their payments went toward securing airline and hotel reservations. Bon Voyage, based in Des Plaines, filed for bankruptcy on Tuesday in U.S. District Court.

Zion to operate at full power

Commonwealth Edison Co. Friday received Nuclear Regulatory Commission permission to operate its Zion nuclear station at full power during peak demand times. The NRC granted the utility permission to operate the station at its capacity of 1,040 megawatts o help oher generaing staions. The approval adds about 200 megawatts of electric generating to the company's system in time for record peak demands of 13,500 megawatts expected later in the ummer.

Apartment building seminar

Michael Sparks, president of Sparks & Associates in Des Plaines announced the appointment of William Monsees to direct a series of seminars for small apartment building owners. The first session of the four-week series will be held Tuesday at Sparks offices, 2600 N. River Rd. Additional information is available from the firm.

Soybean sale to Soviets

A private American grain trade firm, operating through a foreign subsidiary, has sold one million tons of soybeans worth $250 million to the Soviet Union, the Agriculture Dept. announced Friday. Officials said the firm, Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis, was expected to draw 800,000 tons of the soybeans, worth $200 million, from the 1976 American crop for shipment in the 1976-77 marketing season which begins this fall.

Gas shortage warning

The oil industry warns that nationwide gasoline shortages may occur if the Environmental Protection Agency issues new rules within two weeks forcing too quick a reduction in the amount ol lead used in gasoline. Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, wrote EPA officials that a sudden cut in lead additive levels would place too much strain on existing supplies of natural high octane gasoline.

6.8% state jobless rate now lowest in 15 months

Every major metropolitan area in Illinois showed an improved employment picture in June and the statewide unemployment rate fell below 7 per cent for the first time in 15 months, the Illinois Dept. of Labor reported Friday.

The national unemployment rate rose to 7.5 per cent in June in its first significant increase since the depths of the recession 13 months ago, th United States Labor Dept. said Friday.

The unemployment rate for the state in June was 6.8 per cent, down from May's 7.2 per cent. The decreasing state rate was contrary to the national average, which went up significantly for the first time in 13 months, from 7.3 per cent in May to 7.5 in June. For Illinois, the new figure meant that an additional 23,000 persons either found jobs or en off unemployment rolls for other reasons during June. A total of 339,800 remained out of work in the state. Seasonally adjusted figures show the last time the unemployment rate in Illinois was below 7 per cent was in March 1975,when it was 6.5 per cent. At the peak of the recession last October the Labor Dept. said the state unemployment rate was 8.1 per cent. It was 7.9 per cent in January.

The improved picture for June showed the six-county Chicago area at 6.8 per cent in June, down from 7.3 per cent in May.

Dow just misses 1,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market registered a modest pre-Bicentennial holiday gain Friday, as the Dow Jones industrials just missed cracking the 1,000 level in easier trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow average, a 7.94-point loser Thursday, gained 5 points to 999.84 despite earlier selling prompted by the Labor Dept. report unemployment rose to 7.5 per cent in June from 7.3 per cent the month before. For the week, the average finished unchanged.

On a broader scale, the NYSE common stock index rose 0.26 to 55.57 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased 17 cents.

Advances topped declines, 887 to 522, among the 1,821 issues crossing the tape. but the 412 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

Volume totaled 16,730,000 shares, down from the 21,130,000 traded Thursday.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by four cents. Volume totaled 1,900,000 shares, compared with 2,340,000 traded Thursday.

Pocket watch buyers generally prefer old-fashioned styles, Slavin said. They'll pay $60 to $400 for a traditional watch at a time when the newer electronic watches offer greater accuracy for $100 and up.

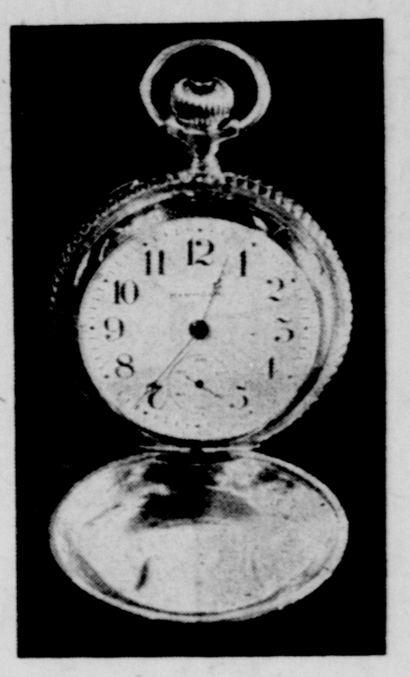
Fashion, rather than nostalgia, accounts for the revival of the venerable pocket watch, said Robert Phillips, manager of Persin & Robbin Jewelers, Arlington Heights. "We've gotten into a men's jewelry revival." The store's pocket watch sales doubled during the past three years.

"I THINK jewelry for men is here to stay," Phillips said. Pocket watch popularity is "not just the Bicentennial. Men's magazines are showing men wearing them, taking them out to look at them."

Time was, when a man would buy a case for his pocket watch in a style suited to his tastes. Then the innards of the timepiece, the chain and attached fob would be selected. Nowadays the chain may be included with the complete pocketwatch.

Phillips said the hunting case watch embellished with bas-relief detail is sought by many buyers. The pocket watch is too versatile to lump into one general category, however.

THE STYLE and construction of the case are first cnnsiderations for a would-be buyer, the jeweler said. A gold-filled or solid gold case is a good investment for durability.



It's a shiny old-timer.

The type of movement is important too. Phillips suggests the watch should have at least 17 jewels.

Men aren't the only ones interested in the pocket watch. Women wear pocket watches on chains or carry them in a purse.

Quite a few people are taking old-time pocket watches out of dusty drawers or vaults and bringing them into the store to be cleaned, Phillips continued.

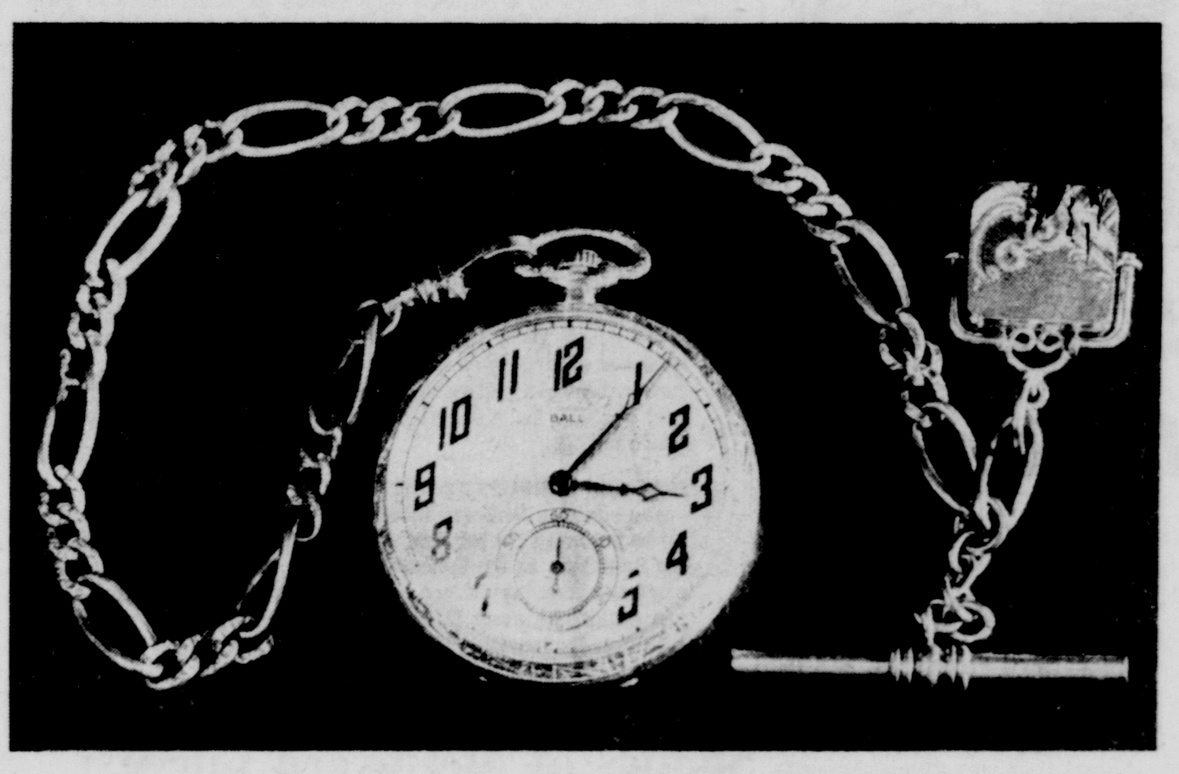
As a collector of antique watches, he's fascinated by memorabilia describing the rise and fall of pocket watch popularity. The period between the 1880s and 1920 was the heyday of the dependable timepiece.

ONE PROBLEM confronting the owner of a long-neglected pocket watch is the occasionally prohibitive cost for repairs. It's a good idea to ask for an estimate of repair costs, Phillips advised. A jeweler who specializes in antique watch repair may have to make all the parts required for renovation.

A good pocket watch will cost $50 or more when it's new, Philips said. The cost skyrockets to several hundred dollars, perhaps several thousand dollars for antiques. The quality of the case, age and the type of movement determine antique value. A pocket watch in running order is much more salable than a worn-out timepiece.

Westclox, a LaSalle, Illinois watch manufacturing company, is cashing in on the pocket watch comeback. The watchmaker is a division of General Time, a Talley Industries Company. The company's pocket watches range from trim, open-faced models to more expensive huntingg case lines.

An embossed railroad watch similar to those used by conductors and engineers in the good old days is available. Suggested retail prices start at $5.50. Although no sales figures are available from the firm, the newly expanded lines indicate the pocket watch is once again a stylish timekeeper.



One of Robert Phillips' antique pocket watches teamed with chain and locket.

6% phone increase asked by Ma Bell

Illinois Bell Telephone Friday asked the Illinois Commerce Commission for a rate hike it said would increase company revenues by 6 per cent, or $110 million. Bell Pres. James E. Olson said the increase would raise most home phone bills less than 6 per cent "because the rate changes would affect mostly those who use a lot of telephone service, or who take optional services and equipment." Olson said the request would increase the cost of Chicago suburban call-pak customers and would hike basic rates for customers in the Belleville-East St. Louis area.

Other major items in the request were:

- Long distance rates for calls within Illinois would be increased 12 per cent.
- Extension telephones in private homes would cost 20 cents a month more. Touch tone phones would cost 25 cents more.
- Charges for installing or moving telephone service would be increased. For example, Bell said, a customer who has two phones installed in an apartment with wiring already in plact would pay $9 more for the work.
- Non local coin phone calls within the Chicago metropolitan area would increase between 15 cents and 35 cents. Bell was granted a rate hike earlier this year, but said the amount was inadequate to meet rising expenses. Bell asked last year for a rate hike totaling $186 million but the ICC granted only about $70 million of that.

State enters travel agency case

The Illinois Attorney General's office has entered the Bon Voyage Travel Agency Inc. case trying to find out what happened to down payments made by about 3,000 travelers who booked trips through the company before it filed for bankruptcy. Howard Kaufman, chief of the Consumer Fraud Division, said Thursday his office has received hundreds of complaints from persons who do not know if their payments went toward securing airline and hotel reservations. Bon Voyage, based in Des Plaines, filed for bankruptcy on Tuesday in U.S. District Court.

Zion to operate at full power

Commonwealth Edison Co. Friday received Nuclear Regulatory Commission permission to operate its Zion nuclear station at full power during peak demand times. The NRC granted the utility permission to operate the station at its capacity of 1,040 megawatts o help oher generaing staions. The approval adds about 200 megawatts of electric generating to the company's system in time for record peak demands of 13,500 megawatts expected later in the ummer.

Apartment building seminar

Michael Sparks, president of Sparks & Associates in Des Plaines announced the appointment of William Monsees to direct a series of seminars for small apartment building owners. The first session of the four-week series will be held Tuesday at Sparks offices, 2600 N. River Rd. Additional information is available from the firm.

Soybean sale to Soviets

A private American grain trade firm, operating through a foreign subsidiary, has sold one million tons of soybeans worth $250 million to the Soviet Union, the Agriculture Dept. announced Friday. Officials said the firm, Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis, was expected to draw 800,000 tons of the soybeans, worth $200 million, from the 1976 American crop for shipment in the 1976-77 marketing season which begins this fall.

Gas shortage warning

The oil industry warns that nationwide gasoline shortages may occur if the Environmental Protection Agency issues new rules within two weeks forcing too quick a reduction in the amount ol lead used in gasoline. Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, wrote EPA officials that a sudden cut in lead additive levels would place too much strain on existing supplies of natural high octane gasoline.

6.8% state jobless rate now lowest in 15 months

Every major metropolitan area in Illinois showed an improved employment picture in June and the statewide unemployment rate fell below 7 per cent for the first time in 15 months, the Illinois Dept. of Labor reported Friday.

The national unemployment rate rose to 7.5 per cent in June in its first significant increase since the depths of the recession 13 months ago, th United States Labor Dept. said Friday.

The unemployment rate for the state in June was 6.8 per cent, down from May's 7.2 per cent. The decreasing state rate was contrary to the national average, which went up significantly for the first time in 13 months, from 7.3 per cent in May to 7.5 in June. For Illinois, the new figure meant that an additional 23,000 persons either found jobs or en off unemployment rolls for other reasons during June. A total of 339,800 remained out of work in the state. Seasonally adjusted figures show the last time the unemployment rate in Illinois was below 7 per cent was in March 1975,when it was 6.5 per cent. At the peak of the recession last October the Labor Dept. said the state unemployment rate was 8.1 per cent. It was 7.9 per cent in January.

The improved picture for June showed the six-county Chicago area at 6.8 per cent in June, down from 7.3 per cent in May.

Dow just misses 1,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market registered a modest pre-Bicentennial holiday gain Friday, as the Dow Jones industrials just missed cracking the 1,000 level in easier trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow average, a 7.94-point loser Thursday, gained 5 points to 999.84 despite earlier selling prompted by the Labor Dept. report unemployment rose to 7.5 per cent in June from 7.3 per cent the month before. For the week, the average finished unchanged.

On a broader scale, the NYSE common stock index rose 0.26 to 55.57 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased 17 cents.

Advances topped declines, 887 to 522, among the 1,821 issues crossing the tape. but the 412 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

Volume totaled 16,730,000 shares, down from the 21,130,000 traded Thursday.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by four cents. Volume totaled 1,900,000 shares, compared with 2,340,000 traded Thursday.

America: A noble idea that worked

Freedom. That is what America is all about. That is what caused our founding fathers to declare our independence of Great Britain. That is what has sustained for 200 years the nation they created.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

A radical declaration on July 4, 1776. A declaration that gave independence to America and freedom to her oppressed people. That shook Europe's establishment and thrilled her common people.

A radical declaration, still, on July 4, 1976. A document, and a living example, that still frightens those who hold power in many lands around the globe. That still creates admiration and envy in the hearts of common people of other countries.

Freedom. A truly precious and rare commodity. Unsecured to most people of the world and not even fully secured to all our people.

Not perfectly executed. But a goal clearly stated and forcefully pursued for 200 years.

A goal that was given sharper definition by the U.S. Constitution of 1789, which outlined the functions and roles of government and spelled out in 10 original amendments such basics of freedom as: Freedom of religion, of speech and of press and the right of petition; freedom from unreasonable search and seizure; the rights of due legal process; the right to a speedy and public trial; freedom from excessive fines and cruel or unusual punishment; and retention of power by the people.

A goal that was fought for in the Civil War and further secured by the 13th, 14th, 15th, 19th and 24th Amendments.

A goal clearly upheld as recently as Wednesday when the U.S. Supreme Court supported press freedom in the face of a growing threat by lower courts to impose prior restraints on reporting.

The American ideal has grown more hardy through the years. But it could be crushed without the vigilance and commitment of our people and our leaders.

Freedom in the sense that we enjoy it exists only in a few countries; in most, the freedom that exists is a gift of the government, not a right of the people.

America is a noble idea that worked and continues to work. That is why our Bicentennial is such a joyous time for celebration and thanksgiving.

A time for renewed determination that freedom be secured for those who follow, as it was for us.

What values does American society need to survive?

Henry Steele Commager

"America in its third century: What prospects?" is debated by historian Henry Steele Commager and Clare Booth Luce, author and diplomat. This article is adapted from the National Town Meeting, which is held each Wednesday in Washington, D.C., at the Kennedy Center where public figures debate and answer questions from the audience.

Clare Boothe Luce

HOW DOES THE FUTURE LOOK TO YOU?

We are now in one of the great climaterics of our history — a climateric which differs fundamentally from those of the American Revolution, the Civil War and other things. There is no really major problem confronting our people that can be solved by any one nation. The prospect of a population of 8 billion in 50 years; the prospect of the erosion of energy; the prospect of widespread starvation; the prospect of pollution which may destroy air and water; the prospect of biological or nuclear warfare—no one nation can solve any of these problems by itself. So what we must consider — what our candidates are so unwilling to consider — (is the creation) of some kind of international organization, some fabric, which can at least get to work in an effective manner on these problems. The road we must take must be an abatement of national sovereignty. And, perhaps, an abatement of traditional control of those natural resources which belong, not to any one people, but to posterity. And a revival, therefore, of what we have most conspicuously lost in our generation, that sense of obligaton to posterity. If we have that sense of obligation, perhaps other nations will share it.

WHAT ROLE FOR THE UNITED NATIONS?

If we want to make the UN work, we can make it work. It's working now in specialized areas. It works to some extent in stopping major wars. The way to go about (using the United Nations) is by working through specialized agencies which for 25 or 30 years have been doing a marvelous job — the World Health Organization, the World Food Organization, UNESCO, and so forth. There are 80 or 90 of them. You create networks of scientists, of experts, who do not so much have national attachments as attachments to their problems. I don't think by tinkering (with the UN itself) you can get very far. It is like tinkering with the Constitution. People always want to add things that don't belong there. It wasn't the Constitution that failed us in the 1960s and 1970s, it was Mr. Nixon. The UN is not working well — the League of Nations didn't either — but we can make it work. You do it, not by magnificent movements, but by creating networks dealing with specific problems, like population or pollution.

WHAT SHOULD THE NEXT GENERATION'S GOALS BE?

It is much better to work on specific goals — to work on saving, let us say, whales and seals in the ocean. Get people who know how to do it, get them together and get it done. I think you make whatever advances you make by working on specific issues, day by day, rather than putting up large goals of justice, honor, or whatever you will. Have something to attach yourself to that is greater than yourself.

HOW CAN CORRUPTION BE ELIMINATED?

You can go a long way toward solving the problem of corruption by taxing away 100 per cent of everything over a certain point, as the British do, as the Danes do. There is still some corruption. You can't eliminate it in human nature. But by the use of the tax dollar, you could take away the incentive for making more money and substitute the incentive for public service.

HOW DOES THE FUTURE LOOK TO YOU?

It seems to me that all extrapolations of present trends give us cause to wonder if the next century will not be a bit of a hell. What we need is the wisdom to apply our knowledge and that wisdom comes not from science or technology but it comes from a transcendental or, if you prefer, religious view of man and his nature. I will suggest that the likelihood of nuclear war within 35 years is very great. (But) there is only one thing you can be certain about the future — that is that it's uncertain. That being the case, good things as well as bad can happen. Here is a fanciful idea of mine. (Suppose) the President of the United States sends out a message to the United Nations saying,, "It is a matter of life and death that the head of every state appear in New York within 48 hours." When they were all there, the President rises and says, "Our astronomers have had a direct message from the nearest star outside our solar system. They have been surveying the earth and noticed this enormous build-up of nuclear weapons. They plan to destroy all nuclear weapons in one country or the other. They will not decide which nation to remove from the face of the earth, they will let that up to the United Nations." The President makes his presentation and the Soviets make theirs and the other nations settle down to debate. My perhaps optimistic view is that faced with that, they would urge the great powers to send back the message that they themselves would destroy all nuclear weapons in both countries.

WHAT ROLE FOR THE UNITED NATIONS?

If you were to knock the United Nations down tomorrow, you would have to start putting it together the day after tomorrow. It's because of these agencies. It isn't well enough known what a lot of good they have done. Many of them were leftovers from the League of Nations. They were so useful that they survived the death of the League and probably would survive the death of the United Nations. As far as what goes on in the General Assembly — Churchill used to say, "Jaw, Jaw, better than War, War." So there probably is no harm in letting them carry on that way. I think the UN is the beginning.

WHAT SHOULD THE NEXT GENERATION'S GOALS BE?

You have to define your goals, then you take a serious look at your means, (asking) whether I have what it takes to reach my goals. One of the difficulties it seems in the United States today is that we do not, as a nation, have very clear goals. Each person wants to raise his own living standards and very often at the expense of other people in the community. Any one good goal will, in and of itself, lead to many other useful activities or projects. One could begin by saving whales and find yourself saving the whole ocean.

HOW CAN CORRUPTION BE ELIMINATED?

There are few historians who will deny the enormous impact on a civilization when its moral system or moral values collapse. That is what is happening throughout the entire West. Our founding fathers were men of faith — they must be credited with believing that there was an authority even above that of the state. But the moral order is collapsing. Why should anyone be surprised by a Nixon when corruption is so widespread in all areas of our life?

Shades of McGovern purge

GOP luminaries denied seating

by IRA R. ALLEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The joyful whoops and backslapping that erupted on the floor of the 1972 Democratic convention when Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and his minions were deprived of their credentials was a key act in the downhill plunge of the George McGovern campaign.

This year, with the Republicans seeming intent on devouring themselves as only Democrats were thought capable of doing, another symbolic purge is occurring.

Although no one individual in the GOP is as colorful or powerful as Daley is in his party, dozens of big name Republicans have been denied delegate seats at the Kansas City convention by Ronald Reagan-controlled state conventions.

The most embarrassing loss to Ford was in Texas, where Reagan won all 100 delegates, thus shutting out Sen. John Tower who was to have been the President's convention floor manager.

The Democrats, to avoid having another convention without the elder statesmen, old line state chieftains and officeholders, made provisions for getting them onto the convention floor without having to sacrifice the party's commitment to the women, the black and the young.

Party rules allowed for at-large delegates — the establishment party leaders — to be selected after other delegates were chosen in primaries or state conventions. They also provided for senators, congressmen, governors and other elected officials who are not delegates to have floor privileges.

IN THE REPUBLICAN battle, however, Reagan forces are taking every opportunity — and doing so gleefully — to keep the GOP personalities out of the convention, not so much to overthrow the structure as to make sure President Ford has no more support on the floor than he is entitled to.

In state after state where the Reagan people have controlled the delegate selection process they have either refused to give the Ford people representation outright or put their own people into delegate slots that are committed to vote for Ford.

The reason is that after one or two ballots, if it comes to that, legal requirements to vote for Ford will disappear and the individuals may vote their conscience. Also, Reagan forces will need every man and woman for credentials and platform fights leading up to the nomination.

The list of GOP luminaries denied delegates seats, including those who would have gone to Kansas City having to vote for Reagan, include, besides Tower:

Sens. Barry Goldwater and Paul Fannin of Arizona, Sen. Pete Domenici and Rep. Manuel Lujan of New Mexico, Govs. James Holshouser of North Carolina and Dan Evans of Washington, former Gov. Stan Hathaway of Wyoming, U.S. Treasurer Francine Neff and more than a dozen congressmen and state party officials.

Ford campaign chairman Rogers C. B. Morton warned, "The Republican Party must be unified to elect our candidate in the general election. Denying party leaders, governors, senators and congressmen seats at the convention will make that unificatin much more difficult."

BUT MORTON'S complaint rang somewhat hollow, coming as it did, when Ford backers were changing the Minnesota convention rules to help the President and the pro-Ford Republican National Committee installed Ford men as national convention officials.

The delegate seating issue, as it was with the Democrats four years ago, is not a matter of hurt feelings — it is a question of each side trying to maximize its support in a close race.

But what the Reagan campaign may not have considered in purging the party stalwarts is that the officeholders who won't go to Kansas City are among those few Republicans who have actually won elections against Democrats — and that should have merited some reward.

The most embarrassing loss to Ford was in Texas, where Reagan won all 100 delegates, thus shutting out Sen. John Tower who was to have been the President's convention floor manager.

The Democrats, to avoid having another convention without the elder statesmen, old line state chieftains and officeholders, made provisions for getting them onto the convention floor without having to sacrifice the party's commitment to the women, the black and the young.

Party rules allowed for at-large delegates — the establishment party leaders — to be selected after other delegates were chosen in primaries or state conventions. They also provided for senators, congressmen, governors and other elected officials who are not delegates to have floor privileges.

IN THE REPUBLICAN battle, however, Reagan forces are taking every opportunity — and doing so gleefully — to keep the GOP personalities out of the convention, not so much to overthrow the structure as to make sure President Ford has no more support on the floor than he is entitled to.

In state after state where the Reagan people have controlled the delegate selection process they have either refused to give the Ford people representation outright or put their own people into delegate slots that are committed to vote for Ford.

The reason is that after one or two ballots, if it comes to that, legal requirements to vote for Ford will disappear and the individuals may vote their conscience. Also, Reagan forces will need every man and woman for credentials and platform fights leading up to the nomination.

The list of GOP luminaries denied delegates seats, including those who would have gone to Kansas City having to vote for Reagan, include, besides Tower:

Sens. Barry Goldwater and Paul Fannin of Arizona, Sen. Pete Domenici and Rep. Manuel Lujan of New Mexico, Govs. James Holshouser of North Carolina and Dan Evans of Washington, former Gov. Stan Hathaway of Wyoming, U.S. Treasurer Francine Neff and more than a dozen congressmen and state party officials.

Ford campaign chairman Rogers C. B. Morton warned, "The Republican Party must be unified to elect our candidate in the general election. Denying party leaders, governors, senators and congressmen seats at the convention will make that unificatin much more difficult."

BUT MORTON'S complaint rang somewhat hollow, coming as it did, when Ford backers were changing the Minnesota convention rules to help the President and the pro-Ford Republican National Committee installed Ford men as national convention officials.

The delegate seating issue, as it was with the Democrats four years ago, is not a matter of hurt feelings — it is a question of each side trying to maximize its support in a close race.

But what the Reagan campaign may not have considered in purging the party stalwarts is that the officeholders who won't go to Kansas City are among those few Republicans who have actually won elections against Democrats — and that should have merited some reward.

Dorothy Meyer's column

You did good job, guys

Once upon a time — 200 years ago, more or less — a bunch of guys got together and waved a magic wand called the Declaration of Independence and presto! — more or less — there was a new country called the United States of America.

Today — and tomorrow and Monday — people all over the country will be celebrating that wondrous occasion and there will be noise and jubilation upon the land. Today and/or tomorrow and/or Monday.

Lord knows this poor little 200-year-old baby has had enough detractors lately and I do not mean to join their chorus. However, I do have one small complaint.

HOW COME our founding fathers, with all their brilliant hindsight and foresight, were so nearsighted when it came to 1976? Why didn't they consult Poor Richard's Almanac and discover that the Bicentennial observance of their handiwork would fall on the Sabbath?

On the other hand, they couldn't know that the Congress they would eventually prescribe would diddle up various holidays anyway, even without having a 200th birthday anniversary occur on a Sunday. Or that the labor movement would decree that when a holiday falls on a Sunday workers shall then also have Monday off. Or that when the Holiday is a biggie, like the 200th Fourth of July, and it falls on a Sunday, there would be not only noise and jubilation upon the land but also some confusion.

They couldn't have realized, for instance, that the religious community — rightfully claiming a prominent place in the founding of America — might object to parades being held when people ought to be in church. And that veteran's organizations — with an equally just claim — might object to the objections about patriotic parades, being held during worship services.

Therefore, some parades are today with fireworks tomorrow, others are tomorrow with fireworks today, and the rest are Monday with fireworks. today — or tomorrow or Monday. None of which is as bad as the year that the Fourth of July parade was held on the 26th of June because that was the only day the governor could make it.

AND I BET the Founding Fathers never thought that their efforts would cause someone in 1976 to dream up a "hands across the nation" project, calling for people to hold hands in an unbroken line from coast to coast.

Fortunately, that project didn't get anywhere. If it had I might have joined it and then had to drop out at the last minute. With a broken thumb here's no way I'm going to hold hands with anybody (the possible exception being Charlton Heston) until it mends.

Right now I can hear Benjamin Franklin snorting, "Picky, picky, picky," and he's right.

Sorry, Ben. You really did a great job and I'm grateful.

Happy Birthday, America.

How serious, how wrong: questions on Harper cars

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

It's only a couple of car rides — a courtesy here and there.

Since the stories broke on alleged abuses of official college vehicles at Harper College by board members and administrators, I've heard a number of comments along this line. While some people are outraged that a college official may be taking advantage of his position of power to call upon staff members to do his bidding, others react with a yawn at the triviality of it all.

Employes have charged that Robert Lahti, Harper president, has used the public safety department employes and vehicles for personal errands including picking up his son at soccer games and bringing him home, delivering papers to his home, helping his wife who was stranded at Woodfield and driving Lahti and other administrators to restaurants, waiting while they ate.

Board members have been picked up at train stations and brought to board meetings and driven home when their cars weren't available, the employes said.

THE PUBLIC SAFETY department is responsible for patroling the campus, employes say, not accommodating the whims of officials.

One Buffalo Grove woman viewed the situation philosophically. "It happens in any big organization," she said. "The people on the top ask for a favor, and who's going to refuse them. Certainly not the little guy who owes his paycheck and job to the man who's asking.

"In my husband's company if the chairman of the board walked in the door and asked someone to pick his Aunt Gladys up at the airport he'd probably have seven volunteers, smiling and waving their hands. Sure they'd gripe afterwards, but no one stood them in front of a firing squad and said, 'Do it'."

An elementary school board member wasn't the least bit surprised by the allegations at Harper. "It could happen anywhere and to any of us," he said.

"YOU'RE IN A bind — maybe your car broke down and there's practically no way you can get to a committee meeting — and you think, who can I call.

"If the superintendent said Miss Secretary can pick you up, you'd probably jump at the chance. Sometimes we don't think that maybe Miss Secretary cringes when her boss tells her to go and pick up a board member. Sometimes, maybe we think of our own importance rather than that we are infringing on someone else."

Both people are right. No doubt in business if the president of a company needs something done he will call on an employe to do it. That doesn't make it right. And there is a difference, when you talk about a public institution, that depends on tax dollars out of your pocket and mine, using funds or people or equipment for such personal benefit.

YES, IT HAPPENS. And that's the problem. A Wayne Hays puts his alleged mistress on the public payroll and, while some can smile, others have the right to question if this is a proper use for that portion of your paycheck and mine designated "Fed W/H."

A Robert Lahti has his son driven around by college employes (allegedly), and while some can brush it off others have the right to question if this is a proper use for that portion of your property tax bill and mine that is sent to Harper College Dist. 512.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Des Plaines Dist. 62 board meetings have attracted large numbers of residents at recent meetings. Many of those people have come to complain or pressure, and while there is nothing wrong with making your feelings knows, there is a good and bad way of going about it.

SOME MEETINGS in these two districts, and others in the midst of controversy, resemble a bar room brawl more than a board of education meeting.

Full-grown adults hiss, boo, stamp their feet, yell out catcalls, break into applause, cheer.

You wouldn't allow your child to act in that manner in a public forum. Adults should be able to act like adults.

Supreme Court: No tools to deal with corrupt, incompetent judges

Watch on Washington

by Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The United States Supreme Court has refused to investigate allegations of political corruption in the United States District Courts in Pennsylvania in a manner that points up a serious weakness in the federal court system

What is more important, the clerk of the Supreme Court has written a Pennsylvania businessman that the highest court in the federal system cannot even suggest an investigative body to make inquiry into the allegations.

Without going into the details of the specific evidence or the names of the judges against whom the allegations have been made, it should be sufficient to explain that they are serious charges involving an important congressional figure whose activities have been under some scrutiny by the Office of the Special Watergate Prosecutor.

THE COMPLAINTS by John A. Nard, a Sewickley, Pa., businessman, also involve allegations of impropriety and abuses of power by a high Department of Justice official and the Internal Revenue Service.

While Nard and his lawyers may have overdrawn conclusions of a political conspiracy from a series of truly unusual events, there should be some federal investigative body with enough authority and interest to try to make at last a preliminary probe of the charges of corruption and abuse of judicial power.

Unsuccessful in efforts to get the Congress to make any serious investigative effort and convinced that no objective Justice Department investigation is possible because of the high office held by one of the alleged conspirators, Nard wrote to Justice William Brennan, whose circuit court responsibilities include the administration of the federal court system in Pennsylvania.

THE REPLY NARD received from Supreme Court Clerk Michael Rodak Jr. stated: "I regret to inform you that this court has no authority to institute or conduct investigations as mentioned in your letter. Neither can we suggest an investigative body."

It was an amazing reply, particularly in the light of Chief Justice Warren Burger's recent efforts to promote higher ethical standards in the federal courts as essential to a continuing public confidence in the federal court system.

If Nard's complaint stood alone in the wake of Watergate corrupton, it would merit serious investigation. But it does not stand alone, and Nard and his lawyers are not the only people concerned about the problem of uninvestigated charges of corruption against sitting federal judges.

Serious articles in the American Judicature Society publications have dealt with the inadequacy of the federal system and have pointed up the need for adequate investigations of corrupton, mismanagement and incompetence on all court systems.

Most of these learned articles have dealt with the theoretic problem of corrupton in the federal courts, and have avoided dealing with the shocking examples that are a matter of public record.

THE CLEAREST documented case involves the allegations of corruption made by United States District Judge Stephen Chandler of Oklahoma City, who contended that at least two other federal judges had tried to persuade him to fix cases involving big oil interests.

These alleged efforts included propositions that involved the splitting of thousands of dollars in bribe money. Judge Chandler called these circumstances to the attention of the Justice Department but failed to stimulate an investigation. His efforts to get a congressional investigation were equally futile, as was a petition to the United States Supreme Court.

Similarly, the late United States District Judge Robert Tehan of Milwaukee was nominated and confirmed despite the fact that he had paid no federal or state taxes for an eight-year period prior to the time he was elevated to the federal bench.

Judge Tehan proceeded to sit in judgment involving charges of criminal tax evasion by other citizens, under circumstances indicating that he used his court for political favoritism and shakedown.

EVEN THE PERSISTENT complaints of former Senator John J. Williams (Rep., Del.) and former Representative H. R. Gross (Rep., Ia.) did not move the chairmen of the Senate or House Judiciary Committees to conduct a serious investigation, and the Supreme Court failed to exhibit any interest in this sad reflection on the integrity of the courts.

Even after the late Seventh Circuit Judge Otto Kerner of Illinois was convicted of 17 counts of conspiracy, fraud, perjury, bribery and income tax evasion, no one in the federal court system challenged Kerner's right to continue as a sitting judge.

It was the force of public opinion rather than anything initiated by the federal courts that caused Kerner to take a leave of absence with full pay while the conviction was being appealed. It was not until Kerner began serving his three-year prison term in July, 1974, that he resigned from the bench.

The judiciary has stoutly resisted all efforts to establish an outside policing authority for the courts on grounds that it would represent an interference with the independence of the judicary and that the impeachment process established in the Constitution is adequate.

IT HAS LONG been argued by some lawyers and political figures that the impeachment proceeding is too cumbersome to deal with the minor matters of incompetence and corruption that plague many federal courts and that some alternative method is needed to remove misbehaving or disabled federal judges.

In the wake of Watergate, Senator Sam Nunn (Dem., Ga.) has taken the initiative on behalf of a few of his colleagues to propose a judicial tenure act, pointing out that "although the abuses of Watergate were centered in the executive branch of government, we must remember that no branch of government is immune to an abuse of power . . . Our appointed federal judges . . . have a high degree of independence and are not accountable to the people through the periodic election process."

While paying tribute to the general high quality of men on the federal bench, he noted that there are cases of dishonesty and incompetence.

"One such judge can undermine the public trust in the efforts of 100 good judges," he said, and added that impeachment "is not a real deterent to misconduct on the bench."

Nunn noted that in the nation's history only nine federal judges have been impeached in the House, and only four convicted in the Senate. The lst impeachment trial was in 1936.

"I BELIEVE THAT few people would contend that all of our federal judges since 1936 have maintained the constitutional criteria of 'good behaviro,'" Nunn said in putting in his pitch for a Council on Judicial Tenure with responsibility to receive and investigate any written claims of misconduct or disability and to make recommendations for actions to the already established Judicial Conference.

The legislation, also sponsored by Senators James Allen (Dem, Ala.) and Jake Garn (Dem, Utah), would empower the Judicial Conference to sit as a court and decide whether the judge should be disciplined or removed.

Unfortunately, Senator Nunn's proposal has been languishing in the Senate Judiciary Committee for more than a year while the United States informs complaining citizens it cannot investigate court corruption or even suggest a forum empowered to investigage.

Let's be proud of our heritage!

I am becoming concerned after being involved in and overhearing conversations regarding our nation's Bicentennial celebration. Many believe our Bicentennial is nothing more than commercialism which will increase profits for many businesses. I believe, we as a nation, have every right to celebrate this 200th birthday in a very big way. What other nation can proudly display its Constitution which has stood for nearly 200 years?

If a person is upset over the red, white and blue mania, let him also remember our constitutional right of freedom of choice. We can choose to go the commercial route or choose to refuse it. In any case, we as Americans should be proud of our country and the ability of its citizens to achieve together a common goal.

We are,, however, constantly reminded of our inability to do this in every case. Imagine the exciting charge of our nation joined from coast to coast by the "Hands Across America" movement which now will appear as a dotted line. We should also be concerned about the inability to mobilize to protect ourselves against the swine flu virus due to skepticism and fear of lawsuits.

Let's be proud of our American heritage and celebrate this 200th birthday in a very big way; but let us also keep in mind there is more work to be done.

Employes have charged that Robert Lahti, Harper president, has used the public safety department employes and vehicles for personal errands including picking up his son at soccer games and bringing him home, delivering papers to his home, helping his wife who was stranded at Woodfield and driving Lahti and other administrators to restaurants, waiting while they ate.

Board members have been picked up at train stations and brought to board meetings and driven home when their cars weren't available, the employes said.

THE PUBLIC SAFETY department is responsible for patroling the campus, employes say, not accommodating the whims of officials.

One Buffalo Grove woman viewed the situation philosophically. "It happens in any big organization," she said. "The people on the top ask for a favor, and who's going to refuse them. Certainly not the little guy who owes his paycheck and job to the man who's asking.

"In my husband's company if the chairman of the board walked in the door and asked someone to pick his Aunt Gladys up at the airport he'd probably have seven volunteers, smiling and waving their hands. Sure they'd gripe afterwards, but no one stood them in front of a firing squad and said, 'Do it'."

An elementary school board member wasn't the least bit surprised by the allegations at Harper. "It could happen anywhere and to any of us," he said.

"YOU'RE IN A bind — maybe your car broke down and there's practically no way you can get to a committee meeting — and you think, who can I call.

"If the superintendent said Miss Secretary can pick you up, you'd probably jump at the chance. Sometimes we don't think that maybe Miss Secretary cringes when her boss tells her to go and pick up a board member. Sometimes, maybe we think of our own importance rather than that we are infringing on someone else."

Both people are right. No doubt in business if the president of a company needs something done he will call on an employe to do it. That doesn't make it right. And there is a difference, when you talk about a public institution, that depends on tax dollars out of your pocket and mine, using funds or people or equipment for such personal benefit.

YES, IT HAPPENS. And that's the problem. A Wayne Hays puts his alleged mistress on the public payroll and, while some can smile, others have the right to question if this is a proper use for that portion of your paycheck and mine designated "Fed W/H."

A Robert Lahti has his son driven around by college employes (allegedly), and while some can brush it off others have the right to question if this is a proper use for that portion of your property tax bill and mine that is sent to Harper College Dist. 512.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Des Plaines Dist. 62 board meetings have attracted large numbers of residents at recent meetings. Many of those people have come to complain or pressure, and while there is nothing wrong with making your feelings knows, there is a good and bad way of going about it.

SOME MEETINGS in these two districts, and others in the midst of controversy, resemble a bar room brawl more than a board of education meeting.

Full-grown adults hiss, boo, stamp their feet, yell out catcalls, break into applause, cheer.

You wouldn't allow your child to act in that manner in a public forum. Adults should be able to act like adults.

New home buyer has choice

Builder offers landscape plans

Most single-family homes are sold with a minimum of landscaping. It's up to the buyer to do the landscaping after he moves in. The results are unpredictable, depending on whether the buyer does it himself or hires a professional landscape architect.

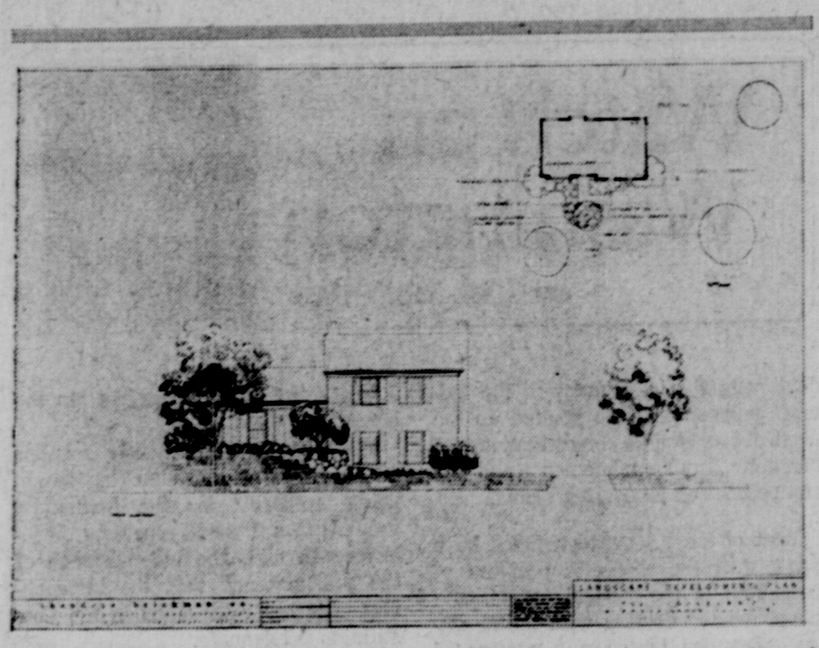
Now a Chicago area builder has come up with a plan to make it simple for a new home-buyer to get exactly the kind of landscaping he wants when he buys the home.

At The Crossings in Buffalo Grove, The Richards Group of Illinois is offering buyers of its new single-family homes a choice of landscaping options, varying in price from $500 to $2,000. Each is designed and will be installed by Theodore Brickman Co., landscape architects and contractors, which has done the overall landscaping for the community.

"WE THINK this approach gives our buyers a choice of landscaping plans that are tailored to the design of the homes and the community, so the results will be a more unified look rather than a hodge-podge," said Arthur B. Gingold, president of The Richards Group.

The program also enables the buyer to select a landscape package that he feels financially comfortable with. The landscaping can be purchased separately or can be included on the mortgage if bought with the home.

"Most important, these options make it possible for the buyer to enjoy the beauties of landscaping quickly," said Gingold. "The buyer doesn't have to wait for months to decide what he wants and then search around for someone to do it."



A LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT'S drawing of a landscape option offered homebuyers at The Crossings near Long Grove. Three plans have been prepared by Theodore Brickman Co., varying in price from $500 to $2,000 to enable buyers to enjoy the beauties of landscaping quickly.

The Crossings currently is offering five single-family home models priced from $57,000 to $67,500. Sodded lawns, front and back, are included in the price.

AS DESCRIBED by Mark Hunner of the Brickman organization, the three landscaping options are as follows:

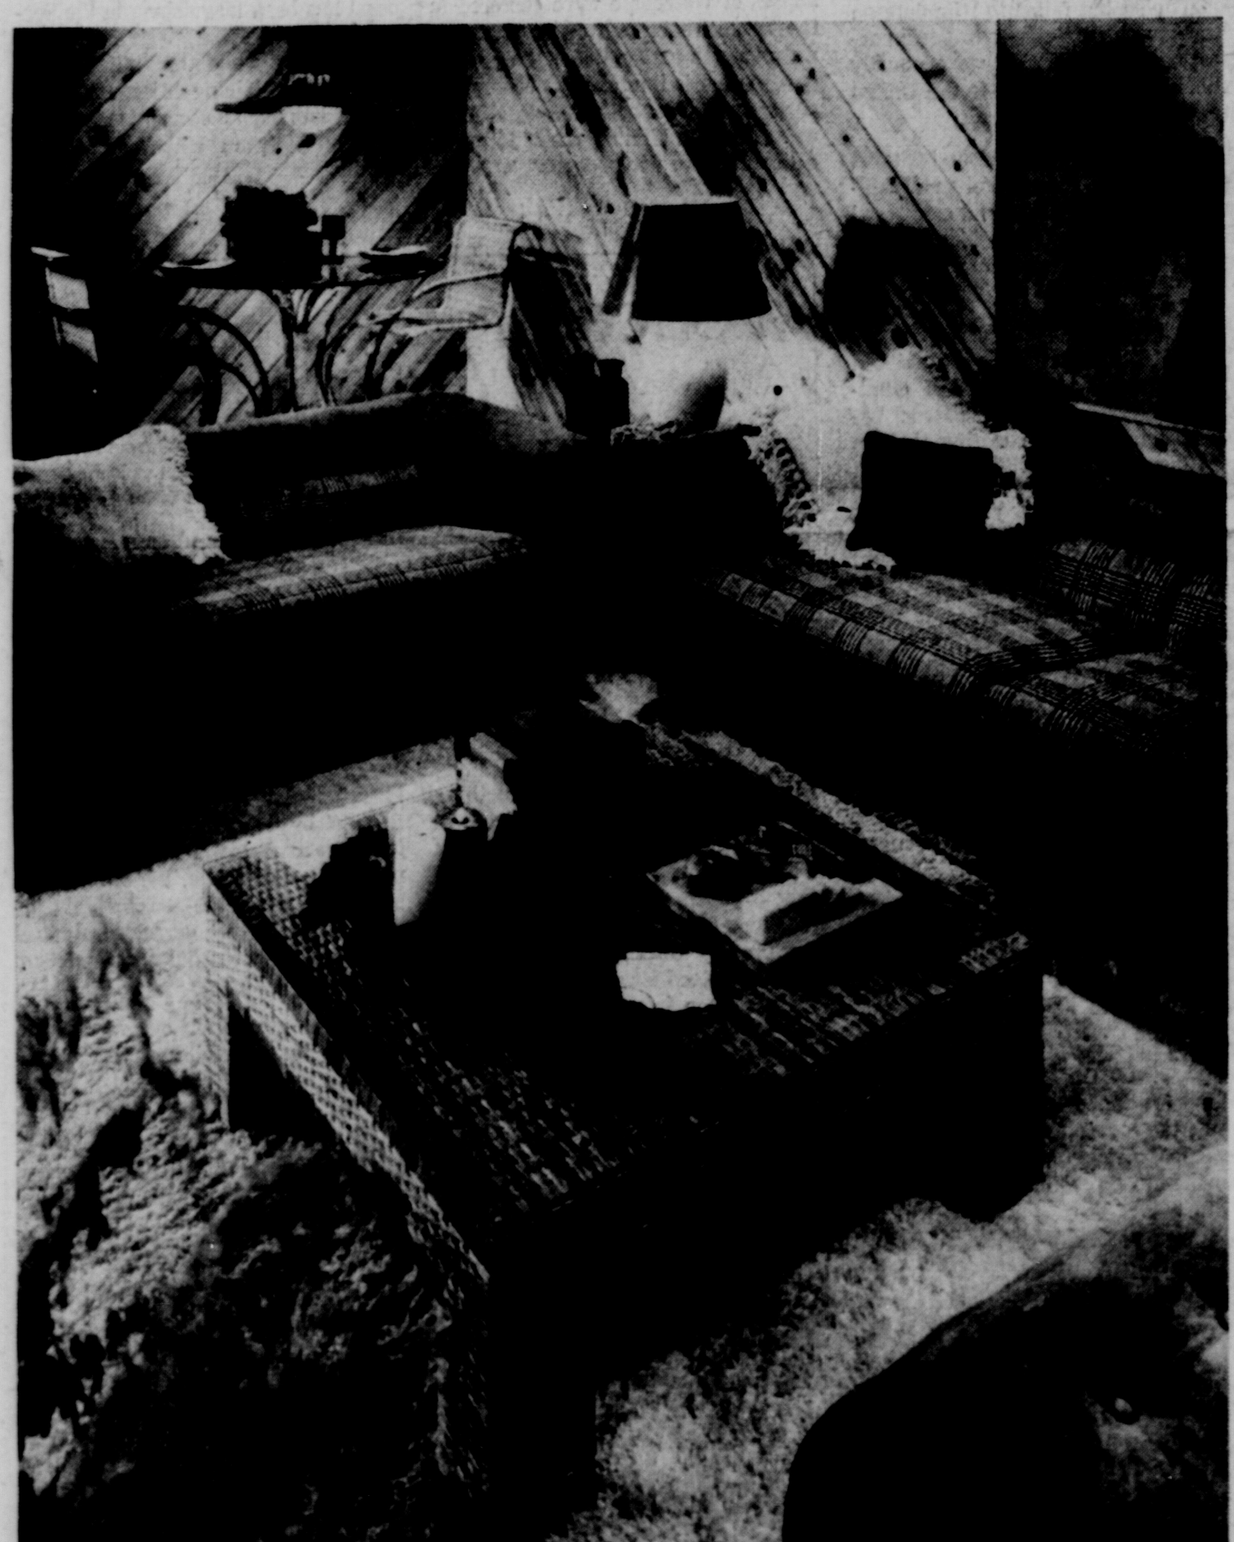
Package 1 — A sidewalk and driveway configuration tailored to the architecture and layout of the home, some providing entry courts, plus numerous foundation plantings around the house to give it an established appearance, and a specimen shade tree, approximately 15-20 feet tall.

Package 2 — Package 1, plus an ornamental tree such as flowering crab for accent and evergreen specimens to augment the foundation plantings. This package softens the lines of the home and blends it with its surroundings.

Package 3 — Package 2, plus a well-developed shade tree approximately 20-25 feet tall, extensive hedge plantings, more elaborate foundation plantings and raised planters constructed of granite boulders or railroad ties.

"Each of these packages is designed so it can be expanded later if desired," Hunner said.

The Crossing already has won awards for its landscaping, and Gingold feels this single-family home landscaping approach will make the community even more attractive.



SUPER MIX — Leather, wood, glass with family-installed wall texture (thanks to some subflooring-grade lumber) and designer-mixed fabrics on Selig's seating, this room bridges any warm-cold gap that might exist in today's housing.

Despite ecology fears

Public favors wood, naturalism

With all the discussion about ecology and preservation of nonrenewable resources, it's surprising to notice how most consumers are hooked on wood surfaces and natural materials such as wicker and rattan for home furnishings.

What the late-20th century homeowner has done is merge the naturals with a variety of slicker surfaces. And it's an effective solution to warming up less-than-individual apartment interiors and townhouses. The room shown today shows hoe one can take shown today shows how one can take new environment.

Bare plaster walls have been covered with inexpensive subflooring to provide a textural change of pace. Hammered into place diagonally, it gives this city dwelling some connection to its country cousins.

Not breaking with the warm look, the owners then chose a pair of Selig seating units upholstered in suede and plaid menswear fabric. The suede is soft to the head and arms, the menswear durable where much abrasion occurs. To double the effectiveness, the suede has been treated with a stain-repellent Zepel treatment.

The chrome-and-glass dining table, chrome-and-reed chairs and the low Parsons-type table with its glass top keep the texture-smooth concept going. These last are part of Selig's Wickertree collection which includes some Italian imports for a contemporary mix.

Although the dining area has been raised through the use of more of that sub-flooring, the chairs are handily available for use as confersation pull-ups.

Wimbledon women's singles champion Chris Evert.

by ALEX FRERE

WIMBLEDON (UPI)—Chris Evert said she clinched her second Wimbledon title by winning a "battle of the minds'' with Australia's Evonne Goolagong Friday in a match she had been thinking about all year.

"I think it was just a battle of the minds, who was going to hang in there longer rather than any of the actual tennis I played," said Evert of her 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 win.

"I had been thinking about this match all year and I just stayed in there and gutsed it out. It was a matter of who was going to play the big points better and I think I played smart tennis on the pressure points," she said.

The turning point came after 4-4 in the final set, she said, when she came up to the net and put pressure on the Australian. "I don't think she was used to seeing me at the net and I think it put her off."

Evert won Goolagong's service to go up 5-4 but the Australian broke back to make it 5-5. "I rushed it a little bit," Evert admitted.

"But I never gave up. Before on grass I would give up mentally when she would hit a streak and go right through me."

But Evert said she would not return next year to defend her title "unless the All-England Club grants the women parity in prize money."

The Ft. Lauderdale player said she rated her win higher than her victory in 1974 when she beat Russia's Olga Morozova because the opposition was stronger.

She sahd she thought Goolagong did not appear to be in peak form, "I looked across the net one time after a point and Evonne seemed really relaxed, maybe too relaxed."

The Autralian said she was not as aggressive as in her previous matches with Evert and thought they both had played "very tentatively."

Goolagong, often pegged to the baseline by Evert's deep groundstrokes, said she lost confidence going to the net when Evert passed her early on. "I also did not feel as confident with my volleying as I have done in the last two weeks," she said.

The match, played in comfortable 80 degree temperatures, lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes and was a curious mixture of the best of the women's game and some of its less exciting elements — soft services and indecision in shot-making.

Evert twice lost valuable points by failing to hit overheads against a defensive lob, electing to fall back to the baseline for the return.

Goolagong, with one of the best services in women's tennis, used it at full stretch only in the later stages of the match while Evert, who had practiced her service all year so it would be a deterrent rather than just a way to start rallies, returned to her old habit of simply tapping it over the net. She tried a few hard serves but six doublefaults decided her to play safe and rely on her tried and trusted baseline game.

Evert broke service at love to 2-0 in the opening set when Goolagong doublefaulted at game point. The Australian broke back immediately, going to 0-40 on two errors by Evert and forehand placement from the net.

The pattern of the entire match was set right there. Evert worked to force the exchanges at long range, Goolagong kept trying to come in to the net.

Derby lights Sunday racing fuse

by JIM COOK
Turf Editor

A Sabbath Spectacular is shaping up for the 66th running of the $100,000-added American Derby Sunday at Arlington Park Race Track.

Illinois' oldest race will continue to make history as the feature contest in the first Sunday thoroughbred program ever conducted in the state.

And the fireworks may erupt before dusk when a field of 12 three-year-olds enters the starting gate for the 1-1/8 mile test on the grass course.

Invading Life's Hope, champion of Illinois and Jersey Derbys already this year, will be the starting American Derby high weight with 122 pounds.

Unraced as a two-year-old, Life's Hope has amassed earnings this year of $265,575. In addition to his twin derby conquests, he has earned laurels in the Las Ciengegas Stakes while running second in both the Santa Catalina Stakes and Hollywood Derby and third in the Santa Anita Derby.

You can't miss his barn. The gelding has two buckets suspended by ropes hanging from the ceiling in his stall to prevent him from walking around.

Play The Red, who entered the national limelight with his second place finish in the Preakness Stakes, also finished eighth in the Kentucky Derby and sixth in the Belmont.

The Triple Crown grind apparently hasn't hampered the chestnut colt's ability as he finished a strong second in the recent Ak-Sar-Ben Omaha Gold Cup to raise his record to 1-3-1 in nine starts.

"Play The Red ran a good race in Omaha,'' trainer Jack Weipert agreed. "He probably should have won it. he got into some trouble early, then had to circle the field turning for home, yet he was only beaten 2½ lengths."

The big question, however, is whether Play The Red can handle the turcourse, a footing foreign to the dirttrack router.

Despite a disappointing 10th in the Omaha Gold Cup, Skerry Knight won fits first turf test with a 2½-length triumph at Hawthorne earlier this year in allowance companay. The lightest impost in the race (106 pounds) may help the colt.

Rule The Ridge, beaten one-half length by Honest Pleasure in last year's Arlington - Washington Futurity, finished second in his latest appearance on Arlington's inner grass ovel.

A skinny, but tough Archie Beamish will be coupled in the betting interests with Play The Red. Unraced as a two-year-old, the gelding has won four, placed second three times and added two thirds this year for earnings of $37,820.

Fifth Marine has garnered top honors in both the Annapolis Handicap and Hill Prince Handicap this season and will lug 121 pounds to post in Sunday's headliner.

El Portugues will run under the common interest of trainer Laz Barrera who will also saddle Life's Hope. The winner of nearly $60,000 this year, El Portugues was stakes placed three times — in the Baldwin Stakes at Santa Anita, the Withers and Peter Pan Stakes at Belmont.

The biggest firecracker in the racing secretary's office, however, was the last-minute entry to Swaps Stakes winner Majestic Light would arrive today for the grass event.

Assigned 121 pounds, Majestic Light has earned $146,908 this year gleaned from four wins and three thirds in 10 starts. His record is an unblemished 2-for-2 on the turf.

Lancing Cut Off captured Arlington Park's Olympia Stakes in June, but flopped in his next outing, the Dr. Fager Stakes.

Name O' Fortune and Romeo will be coupled, but don't figure to challenge this star-studded field. Fightmaster beat allowance company at 1-1/16 miles and owns a big, late run.

If all dozen horses go postward, the race will grost $134,400 with the winner cashing a handsome $94,400 paycheck.

Who said, "Never on Sunday."

ARCHIE BEAMISH, with Earlie Fires in the irons, is expected to draw heavy betting support when he and stablemate Play The Red challenge a field of 12 in the $100,000-added American Derby Sunday.

Storied American Derby tradition unfolded in 1884

(Editor's Note: This is one observer's account of the inaugural running of the American Derby, Saturday, June 28, 1884.)

In the year 1883, a group of the elite of Chicago founded the Washington Park Jockey Club. This group was headed by Lieutenant General Phil H. Sheridan, hero of Winchester. He was elected the first President and J. E. Brewster, Secretary.

The latter assumed the role of Racing Secretary. Its membership was limited to 800. On its rolls were the names of the first families of the western metropolis. A site was selected at 61st and Cottage Grove Avenues, in the city limits of Chicago. It was General Sheridan who insisted upon the Derby being named the American Derby.

Opening day dawned bright. All Chicago bedecked itself in its finery. All South Park Drive was agog as about 11:00 a.m. the pageant began. There was a constant stream of equipages passing in the centre drive so that the crowded stoop fronts might gape 'mid mingled "Ohs" and "Ahs."

There were Sulkys, Teams, Four in Hands, Broughams, Langhams, Dog Carts, Tallyhos. Along came the gay blade, driving his spanking team, and atop a spiffy vehicle aglisten with nine coats of Valentine Varnish.

After arriving at the grounds of the Racing Association, the wheeled turnouts would spend another half-hour driving round and round the driving paths to the left of the club house. Here they would put the spirited animals through their paces.

How they would wheel and turn to the lure of those dapper hands up on the box, prancing high and flecking foam! They had an appreciative audience, too, for the crowd came early. 'Twas as good as a horse show.

Then at half after noon, they would drive to the rear of the club area, where grooms would unhitch the glistening steeds from the shafts and lead them to shaded stalls in the rear to cool and feed. The elegant occupants would dismount while the gentleman would step in front of the carriage to guard his lady ere she trip and perchance have one of her swishy taffeta petticoats catch. Yes, the blades nearby might even arch an eyebrow if a pair of lisle hose peeped out o'er the top of a trim pair of nineteen button shoes.

Walking slowly to the club veranda, one could hear the strains of Johnny Hand's band. He was the current sweet note dispenser. Oft times, too, Professor Ennis would oblige with his trombone solos, perhaps the hit tune that summer, "What the Birdies Sang," or mayhap an exceept from Kera Bela.

Luncheon would be served, if you were fortunate enough to have had a reservation. If not, footmen would unhand those hampers you brought along, full of viands and victuals. Maybe your tallyho was parked in the infield because it was jollier there. One could spread a paisley on the verdant green and gaze over the track at the parade.

Ah, but Hark! What's this? My! Just fancy! Ten (count them), ten buglers, gaily attired, come on the track and lift trumpets to the stands and sound Boots and Saddles. (Ah, there Santa Anita, they had you topped, for you only had six when you opened in 1934.)

And see, too, General Sheridan is affixing the little silken purse with the money in it to the arm in front of the judges' stand. The winning jockey will lift it as he comes back to the winner's circle. Ladies would confess they were aflutter. "I'll wager you my new gloves or a box of bon bons that the pretty number three is the winner." Goodness! Some fair occupant in one of the boxes has fainted. Gentlemen retired discreetly as her long sleeves were folded back and her wrists bared, and vive cologne applied.

Bedlam and bustling were heard under the stands. Bookmakers' slates were hoisted. Each had his own line of patter. Maybe you would like to do your wagering with Charlie Stiles, Ira Bird, or perhaps Charles Busch. There were 24 in action for those who cared to take a thrust at the puckish little fellow called Luck.

But they're on the track for the third race, the first running of the American Derby, a sweepstakes for three-year-olds exclusively. Twelve have accepted the issue. You can wager in auction pools, books, or those new-fangled things called Paris Mutuels, but it will cost you five dollars to try the latter.

Starter James Sheridan is seen over there on the back stretch where it starts. This is a one-mile oval, and the race is at one mile and a half. He steps to his starting platform, while his assistants are encouraging the animals to walk up slowly. If he gets them walking in line, he will shout, "Come on!" He will then drop his red flag as they scurry away.

When the riders note his assistant some hundred yards up the field drop his yellow flagstick to the ground and scurry backward to the outer fence, they will understand that the race is on. If they note the man down the track with his yellow flag still aloft, they will understand it signifies a recall, turn about and again attempt a start.

There were two false breaks and then they went away in good order, with Richard L showing the way to the mile. Templehof, Bob Cook, and Modesty were in close attendance. At the far turn, Kosciusko (formerly known as Louisville) rushed up from the rear and was joined by Bob Cook as they set out to the lead, with Modesty third.

They sped that way on the turn; Kosciusko near the rail by a head; three feet alongside was Bob Cook; one length away was Modesty. Isaac Murphy was still biding time. Into the stretch they swept.

The two as mentioned were the same way. Modesty started, cutting them down foot by foot with one hundred yards to go. Murphy wouldn't or couldn't go around. There was no room for use of the whip.

Murphy came to their heels — they opened up, he split them and went through them. And there was the wire. Modesty won by about eight inches, Kosciusko was second by another head, Templehof was fourth behind Bob Cook. The Kentucky Derby winner favorite, Bob Miles, finished tenth.

Isaac Murphy (the colored Archer), born 1860, rode his first winner, Glentina, at the Crab Orchard, Kentucky track, in 1875; died at Lexington, Kentucky, of pneumonia, 1896. He had won the Kentucky Derby a few weeks before with Buchanan. Incidentally, he won the Latonia Derby four times as well as the American Derby four times.

Kosciusko later won the U.S. Hotel Stake at Saratoga, which was then for three-year-olds, and Powhattan III won the Kenner stakes that same August. Bob Miles later went on and proved to be a router, winning among several distance races the Saratoga Cup, 1¾ miles, and the Latonia Cup, 2¼ miles.

Modesty was sold as a yearling to C. H. Clay, who sold her as a two-year-old to Corrigan for $5,000. She started 18 times at two years of age, winning three races, including two stakes; prior to the American Derby at three, she started five times and won three — (The Oaks, Moet and Chandon, and Nantura stakes).

The officials were: Steward — General Phil Sheridan; assistants — General Robinson and Major J. F. Clark; starter — James Sheridan.

The winning time was 2:42.3 and Modesty returned $17 for a winning mutuel ticket. The gross value of the race was $12,000, with $10,700 going to the winner.

Wimbledon women's singles champion Chris Evert.

by ALEX FRERE

WIMBLEDON (UPI)—Chris Evert said she clinched her second Wimbledon title by winning a "battle of the minds'' with Australia's Evonne Goolagong Friday in a match she had been thinking about all year.

"I think it was just a battle of the minds, who was going to hang in there longer rather than any of the actual tennis I played," said Evert of her 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 win.

"I had been thinking about this match all year and I just stayed in there and gutsed it out. It was a matter of who was going to play the big points better and I think I played smart tennis on the pressure points," she said.

The turning point came after 4-4 in the final set, she said, when she came up to the net and put pressure on the Australian. "I don't think she was used to seeing me at the net and I think it put her off."

Evert won Goolagong's service to go up 5-4 but the Australian broke back to make it 5-5. "I rushed it a little bit," Evert admitted.

"But I never gave up. Before on grass I would give up mentally when she would hit a streak and go right through me."

But Evert said she would not return next year to defend her title "unless the All-England Club grants the women parity in prize money."

The Ft. Lauderdale player said she rated her win higher than her victory in 1974 when she beat Russia's Olga Morozova because the opposition was stronger.

She sahd she thought Goolagong did not appear to be in peak form, "I looked across the net one time after a point and Evonne seemed really relaxed, maybe too relaxed."

The Autralian said she was not as aggressive as in her previous matches with Evert and thought they both had played "very tentatively."

Goolagong, often pegged to the baseline by Evert's deep groundstrokes, said she lost confidence going to the net when Evert passed her early on. "I also did not feel as confident with my volleying as I have done in the last two weeks," she said.

The match, played in comfortable 80 degree temperatures, lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes and was a curious mixture of the best of the women's game and some of its less exciting elements — soft services and indecision in shot-making.

Evert twice lost valuable points by failing to hit overheads against a defensive lob, electing to fall back to the baseline for the return.

Goolagong, with one of the best services in women's tennis, used it at full stretch only in the later stages of the match while Evert, who had practiced her service all year so it would be a deterrent rather than just a way to start rallies, returned to her old habit of simply tapping it over the net. She tried a few hard serves but six doublefaults decided her to play safe and rely on her tried and trusted baseline game.

Evert broke service at love to 2-0 in the opening set when Goolagong doublefaulted at game point. The Australian broke back immediately, going to 0-40 on two errors by Evert and forehand placement from the net.

The pattern of the entire match was set right there. Evert worked to force the exchanges at long range, Goolagong kept trying to come in to the net.

Derby lights Sunday racing fuse

Turf Editor

A Sabbath Spectacular is shaping up for the 66th running of the $100,000-added American Derby Sunday at Arlington Park Race Track.

Illinois' oldest race will continue to make history as the feature contest in the first Sunday thoroughbred program ever conducted in the state.

And the fireworks may erupt before dusk when a field of 12 three-year-olds enters the starting gate for the 1-1/8 mile test on the grass course.

Invading Life's Hope, champion of Illinois and Jersey Derbys already this year, will be the starting American Derby high weight with 122 pounds.

Unraced as a two-year-old, Life's Hope has amassed earnings this year of $265,575. In addition to his twin derby conquests, he has earned laurels in the Las Ciengegas Stakes while running second in both the Santa Catalina Stakes and Hollywood Derby and third in the Santa Anita Derby.

You can't miss his barn. The gelding has two buckets suspended by ropes hanging from the ceiling in his stall to prevent him from walking around.

Play The Red, who entered the national limelight with his second place finish in the Preakness Stakes, also finished eighth in the Kentucky Derby and sixth in the Belmont.

The Triple Crown grind apparently hasn't hampered the chestnut colt's ability as he finished a strong second in the recent Ak-Sar-Ben Omaha Gold Cup to raise his record to 1-3-1 in nine starts.

"Play The Red ran a good race in Omaha,'' trainer Jack Weipert agreed. "He probably should have won it. he got into some trouble early, then had to circle the field turning for home, yet he was only beaten 2½ lengths."

The big question, however, is whether Play The Red can handle the turcourse, a footing foreign to the dirttrack router.

Despite a disappointing 10th in the Omaha Gold Cup, Skerry Knight won fits first turf test with a 2½-length triumph at Hawthorne earlier this year in allowance companay. The lightest impost in the race (106 pounds) may help the colt.

Rule The Ridge, beaten one-half length by Honest Pleasure in last year's Arlington - Washington Futurity, finished second in his latest appearance on Arlington's inner grass ovel.

A skinny, but tough Archie Beamish will be coupled in the betting interests with Play The Red. Unraced as a two-year-old, the gelding has won four, placed second three times and added two thirds this year for earnings of $37,820.

Fifth Marine has garnered top honors in both the Annapolis Handicap and Hill Prince Handicap this season and will lug 121 pounds to post in Sunday's headliner.

El Portugues will run under the common interest of trainer Laz Barrera who will also saddle Life's Hope. The winner of nearly $60,000 this year, El Portugues was stakes placed three times — in the Baldwin Stakes at Santa Anita, the Withers and Peter Pan Stakes at Belmont.

The biggest firecracker in the racing secretary's office, however, was the last-minute entry to Swaps Stakes winner Majestic Light would arrive today for the grass event.

Assigned 121 pounds, Majestic Light has earned $146,908 this year gleaned from four wins and three thirds in 10 starts. His record is an unblemished 2-for-2 on the turf.

Lancing Cut Off captured Arlington Park's Olympia Stakes in June, but flopped in his next outing, the Dr. Fager Stakes.

Name O' Fortune and Romeo will be coupled, but don't figure to challenge this star-studded field. Fightmaster beat allowance company at 1-1/16 miles and owns a big, late run.

If all dozen horses go postward, the race will grost $134,400 with the winner cashing a handsome $94,400 paycheck.

Who said, "Never on Sunday."

Storied American Derby tradition unfolded in 1884

(Editor's Note: This is one observer's account of the inaugural running of the American Derby, Saturday, June 28, 1884.)

In the year 1883, a group of the elite of Chicago founded the Washington Park Jockey Club. This group was headed by Lieutenant General Phil H. Sheridan, hero of Winchester. He was elected the first President and J. E. Brewster, Secretary.

The latter assumed the role of Racing Secretary. Its membership was limited to 800. On its rolls were the names of the first families of the western metropolis. A site was selected at 61st and Cottage Grove Avenues, in the city limits of Chicago. It was General Sheridan who insisted upon the Derby being named the American Derby.

Opening day dawned bright. All Chicago bedecked itself in its finery. All South Park Drive was agog as about 11:00 a.m. the pageant began. There was a constant stream of equipages passing in the centre drive so that the crowded stoop fronts might gape 'mid mingled "Ohs" and "Ahs."

There were Sulkys, Teams, Four in Hands, Broughams, Langhams, Dog Carts, Tallyhos. Along came the gay blade, driving his spanking team, and atop a spiffy vehicle aglisten with nine coats of Valentine Varnish.

After arriving at the grounds of the Racing Association, the wheeled turnouts would spend another half-hour driving round and round the driving paths to the left of the club house. Here they would put the spirited animals through their paces.

How they would wheel and turn to the lure of those dapper hands up on the box, prancing high and flecking foam! They had an appreciative audience, too, for the crowd came early. 'Twas as good as a horse show.

Then at half after noon, they would drive to the rear of the club area, where grooms would unhitch the glistening steeds from the shafts and lead them to shaded stalls in the rear to cool and feed. The elegant occupants would dismount while the gentleman would step in front of the carriage to guard his lady ere she trip and perchance have one of her swishy taffeta petticoats catch. Yes, the blades nearby might even arch an eyebrow if a pair of lisle hose peeped out o'er the top of a trim pair of nineteen button shoes.

Walking slowly to the club veranda, one could hear the strains of Johnny Hand's band. He was the current sweet note dispenser. Oft times, too, Professor Ennis would oblige with his trombone solos, perhaps the hit tune that summer, "What the Birdies Sang," or mayhap an exceept from Kera Bela.

Luncheon would be served, if you were fortunate enough to have had a reservation. If not, footmen would unhand those hampers you brought along, full of viands and victuals. Maybe your tallyho was parked in the infield because it was jollier there. One could spread a paisley on the verdant green and gaze over the track at the parade.

Ah, but Hark! What's this? My! Just fancy! Ten (count them), ten buglers, gaily attired, come on the track and lift trumpets to the stands and sound Boots and Saddles. (Ah, there Santa Anita, they had you topped, for you only had six when you opened in 1934.)

And see, too, General Sheridan is affixing the little silken purse with the money in it to the arm in front of the judges' stand. The winning jockey will lift it as he comes back to the winner's circle. Ladies would confess they were aflutter. "I'll wager you my new gloves or a box of bon bons that the pretty number three is the winner." Goodness! Some fair occupant in one of the boxes has fainted. USA may walk out on Olympics

The United States, which will field the largest foreign contingent at Montreal, Friday threatened to walk out of the Olympic Games unless the Canadian government permits athletes from the Republic of China to compete as representatives of that country.

In a telegram to Roger Rousseau, president of the Organizing Committee, Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said:

"The U.S.O.C. strongly protests and urges immediate reconsideration of the action taken by the Canadian government to restrict the participation of the Taiwanese National Olympic Committee, a member in good standing of the IOC, in the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

"If the Games are declared by the IOC not to be 'official,' I seriously question United States of America participation. The Games must remain free from international politics."

The action threatened by the U.S.O.C. was the most serious by any country following Thursday's disclosure by the International Olympic Committee that athletes from the Republic of China (Taiwan) will not be granted Canadian entry visas if they insist on marching in the July 17 opening ceremony as the "Republic of China" and behind their national standard.

The IOC said this was unacceptable as it was in direct violation of "fundamental Olympic principles" which guarantee free entry to members in good standing "regardless of race, color, creed or political affiliation."

Canada warned IOC in 1969

OTTAWA — An External Affairs spokesman said Friday the International Olympic Committee was warned in 1969 that Canada could impose conditions on entry of athletes for the Summer Games, but the IOC never inquired about it.

The spokesman said that because it had no response to the letter Canada had agreed to accept unconditionally all delegations approved by the Olympic governing body.

The Spokesman said that because it had no response to the letter of warning in 1969, it took it upon itself to inform the IOC in May last year that Canada would impose the condition that Taiwan not call itself China at the Games.

Zoeller leads Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE — Second-year pro Fuzzy Zoeller, making so many birdies he "didn't know what to think," Friday took the second-round lead in the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Zoeller had eight birdies and two bogeys as he shot his second straight six under-par 66 for a 132 total and a one-stroke lead over veteran Dave Hill. They had been tied for second after the first day. Hill shot a 67 Friday.

Zoeller easily overtook first-round leader Ken Still, who slipped to a 73 after firing a 64 in the opening round. He was at 137 and tied for fifth with Ed Sneed, Bruce Crampton, Homer Blancas and Jerry Heard.

Johnny Jacobs and Mac McLendon both shot 69s Friday and were tied for third at 136.

A total of 83 golfers survived for the final two rounds with the cutoff at one-over-par 145. Going into the final two rounds, 66 pros were at par or better.

Not all bad news for Snyder

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Frustrated in the attempt to sell his National Basketball Association team to Florida investors, Buffalo Braves' owner Paul Snyder can't say everything has gone wrong for him lately.

Snyder bought a $50 raffle ticket and won a Jaguar XJS coupe this week in a benefit for the "Dr. I Fund Foundation," which aids an intensive care unit of a New York City hospital.

Sets dubious British Open mark

FORMBY, England — Maurice Flitcroft set a record Friday in the qualifying round for the British Open golf championship. Nobody has ever done worse.

Flitcroft, a 40-year-old crane operator, entered as an unattached professional, but after his round of 121-49 over par — he admitted he'd never really played a full 18 holes before.

"I have made a lot of progress in the last few months," he said after the round. "I was trying too hard, but was beginning to put it together at the end."

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club tightened its entry rules for the qualifying tournament after 1965, when a Milwaukee mailman named Walter Danecki carded 108 in a first round and 113-41 over par-in his second. But Flitcroft apparently slipped through the net.

Ali suffering severe leg damage

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali is suffering from severe muscle damage in his left leg and anemia and will remain at St. John's hospital for several days, a hospital spokeswoman said Friday.

Ali's attending physician, Dr. Robert Kositchek, said the champion is in good condition despite his leg injury and anemia. Ali underwent tests Friday morning, but the results weren't complete.

The spokeswoman said there was also a possibility of phlebo thrombosis (blood clot) in the leg. She did not know when Ali would be released.

NCAA censures University of Hawaii

MISSION, Kan. — The NCAA Committee on Infractions announced Friday the University of Hawaii has been reprimanded and censured for violations of NCAA legislation in playing ineligible athletes and other infractions.

The committee said the action resulted primarily from involvement of members of the university's basketball squad in certain commercial advertisements and the school's violation of NCAA regulations in enabling four ineligible students to play in a basketball game.

In addition, the committee said two basketball squad members received expenses during a team road trip.

Arlington Associates

Marilyn Bies, Nanci Horten and Peg Ambrosio had the lowest scores on the 10th, 15th and 18th holes to win the weekly event in their flights this week at Arlington Country Club.

Jean Ryan breezed through the A flight with low gross (50), low net (33), and 15 putts.

In B flight, Nanci Horten had low gross (63), low net (34) and 17 putts.

Marian Michalski borrowed her friend's 5-wood and came in for flight C with low gross (70), low net (34) and 16 putts.

Pars were frequent on Tuesday with Bies scoring (3), Ryan and Thomas (2), while Anderson, Cavicchioni, Galvanoni, Horten and Mendl recorded one each.

Lions fall 7-2 to Park Ridge

Park Ridge scored seven runs in the first two innings against Logan Square and then coasted to a 7-2 victory Thursday night.

Jim Simmerman started the game for the Lions and was subjected to three unearned runs in the first. Four walks and three hits led to four Park Ridge runs in the second.

Dan Stoltz replaced Simmerman and pitched 5-2/3 hitless innings. The Lions scored their runs in the fourth when Mike Dooley and Kevin O'Brien doubled and Jim Thompson singled.

USA may walk out on Olympics

The United States, which will field the largest foreign contingent at Montreal, Friday threatened to walk out of the Olympic Games unless the Canadian government permits athletes from the Republic of China to compete as representatives of that country.

In a telegram to Roger Rousseau, president of the Organizing Committee, Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said:

"The U.S.O.C. strongly protests and urges immediate reconsideration of the action taken by the Canadian government to restrict the participation of the Taiwanese National Olympic Committee, a member in good standing of the IOC, in the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

"If the Games are declared by the IOC not to be 'official,' I seriously question United States of America participation. The Games must remain free from international politics."

The action threatened by the U.S.O.C. was the most serious by any country following Thursday's disclosure by the International Olympic Committee that athletes from the Republic of China (Taiwan) will not be granted Canadian entry visas if they insist on marching in the July 17 opening ceremony as the "Republic of China" and behind their national standard.

The IOC said this was unacceptable as it was in direct violation of "fundamental Olympic principles" which guarantee free entry to members in good standing "regardless of race, color, creed or political affiliation."

Canada warned IOC in 1969

OTTAWA — An External Affairs spokesman said Friday the International Olympic Committee was warned in 1969 that Canada could impose conditions on entry of athletes for the Summer Games, but the IOC never inquired about it.

The spokesman said that because it had no response to the letter Canada had agreed to accept unconditionally all delegations approved by the Olympic governing body.

The Spokesman said that because it had no response to the letter of warning in 1969, it took it upon itself to inform the IOC in May last year that Canada would impose the condition that Taiwan not call itself China at the Games.

Zoeller leads Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE — Second-year pro Fuzzy Zoeller, making so many birdies he "didn't know what to think," Friday took the second-round lead in the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Zoeller had eight birdies and two bogeys as he shot his second straight six under-par 66 for a 132 total and a one-stroke lead over veteran Dave Hill. They had been tied for second after the first day. Hill shot a 67 Friday.

Zoeller easily overtook first-round leader Ken Still, who slipped to a 73 after firing a 64 in the opening round. He was at 137 and tied for fifth with Ed Sneed, Bruce Crampton, Homer Blancas and Jerry Heard.

Johnny Jacobs and Mac McLendon both shot 69s Friday and were tied for third at 136.

A total of 83 golfers survived for the final two rounds with the cutoff at one-over-par 145. Going into the final two rounds, 66 pros were at par or better.

Not all bad news for Snyder

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Frustrated in the attempt to sell his National Basketball Association team to Florida investors, Buffalo Braves' owner Paul Snyder can't say everything has gone wrong for him lately.

Snyder bought a $50 raffle ticket and won a Jaguar XJS coupe this week in a benefit for the "Dr. I Fund Foundation," which aids an intensive care unit of a New York City hospital.

Sets dubious British Open mark

FORMBY, England — Maurice Flitcroft set a record Friday in the qualifying round for the British Open golf championship. Nobody has ever done worse.

Flitcroft, a 40-year-old crane operator, entered as an unattached professional, but after his round of 121-49 over par — he admitted he'd never really played a full 18 holes before.

"I have made a lot of progress in the last few months," he said after the round. "I was trying too hard, but was beginning to put it together at the end."

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club tightened its entry rules for the qualifying tournament after 1965, when a Milwaukee mailman named Walter Danecki carded 108 in a first round and 113-41 over par-in his second. But Flitcroft apparently slipped through the net.

Ali suffering severe leg damage

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali is suffering from severe muscle damage in his left leg and anemia and will remain at St. John's hospital for several days, a hospital spokeswoman said Friday.

Ali's attending physician, Dr. Robert Kositchek, said the champion is in good condition despite his leg injury and anemia. Ali underwent tests Friday morning, but the results weren't complete.

The spokeswoman said there was also a possibility of phlebo thrombosis (blood clot) in the leg. She did not know when Ali would be released.

NCAA censures University of Hawaii

MISSION, Kan. — The NCAA Committee on Infractions announced Friday the University of Hawaii has been reprimanded and censured for violations of NCAA legislation in playing ineligible athletes and other infractions.

The committee said the action resulted primarily from involvement of members of the university's basketball squad in certain commercial advertisements and the school's violation of NCAA regulations in enabling four ineligible students to play in a basketball game.

In addition, the committee said two basketball squad members received expenses during a team road trip.

The advertising violation involved seven athletes permitting their pictures to be used to advertise and promote a commercial product.

Lions fall 7-2 to Park Ridge

Park Ridge scored seven runs in the first two innings against Logan Square and then coasted to a 7-2 victory Thursday night.

Jim Simmerman started the game for the Lions and was subjected to three unearned runs in the first. Four walks and three hits led to four Park Ridge runs in the second.

Dan Stoltz replaced Simmerman and pitched 5-2/3 hitless innings. The Lions scored their runs in the fourth when Mike Dooley and Kevin O'Brien doubled and Jim Thompson singled.

The captain

Skotarek gets a boot from his hobby

by DON FRISKE

When Alex Skotarek was going through high school in Chicago, most of his friends failed to understand his interest in soccer.

They were busy playing football, basketball and other more popular sports at Lane Tech while Skotarek and four others worked at sharpening their soccer skills.

"We'd come back after a weekend of playing, discuss our games, and people wouldn't know what we were talking about," Skotarek said.

As captain of the Chicago Sting, Skotarek can look back at those times with a smile. He is one of the best defenders in the country in a sport that continues to expand, especially at the most important level — with the youth.

He was a member of Team America, a select group put together for the Bicentennial to play national teams from four countries last May. During that time, he became good friends with Pele and other international soccer stars.

Skotarek, who moved to Arlington Heights last February, gave most of the other sports a chance. He played park district football and little league baseball. He also tried track for awhile.

"When I was 12, I made the decision to go into soccer," he said. "On the last day before the last game of the football season, I fractured my collarbone, which put me out for about 12 weeks."

After this, Skotarek figured he might as well forego the joy of playing many sports and chose to stick with soccer.

When Skotarek was 3 years old his parents immigrated from Germany. He grew up with the sport, watching his father play for a local team in Chicago.

Following 15 years as a center forward, Skotarek changed to defense.

"I found that my attributes were greater as a defensive player because I could read the game better there," Skotarek said. "I made a good move when I came back to defense because I can see the whole game from that position."

The 6-foot-1, 175-pound defender considers himself somewhat of a soccer oddity in that he was trained in this country and then recruited to play in Europe, where the sport is watched by almost everyone. He returned to Chicago two years ago to play for the Sting.

Soccer is continually gaining status in this country and Skotarek said he thinks the signing of international stars like Pele, Giorgia Chinaglia and George Best has a lot to do with it.

"These superstars give the league status and other countries are realizing that there is a future for soccer in America," Skotarek said. "The eventual superstars of soccer will come from this country. You can see kids everywhere playing the sport and enjoying it."

There is one major difference in the young people playing soccer today from those who were doing the same during Skotarek's childhood.

They are well aware of the fact that there is money to be made in professional soccer and the knowledge of this has helped cause the recent boom.

"When I was growing up, we were playing it just for a hobby. Money wasn't going through my head at all," Skotarek said. "Today, kids are interested in how much you are making and what kind of career they can have in soccer."

The interest in career goals, however, is merely a spark to get the kids involved in the sport. According to Skotarek, the key to soccer's development is coaching.

In Europe, children playing soccer are at least five years ahead of those in America in terms of mastering the basic skills.

"Proper coaching in this country could eliminate five years of just drifting and not knowing where they are going for these kids," Skotarek said. "It is not a question of inferiority at any angle. It's just a question of being taught properly at a proper age.

"The kids want to prove they can be better than anybody else at something."

Skotarek is considering a coaching position himself for this fall. Hinsdale Central High School offered him a job about four weeks ago as a para-professional and assistant soccer coach.

"I'm sort of in an indecisive period," he said. "The national team will get together for about six weeks at just the same time Hinsdale has their season so this presents a conflict. That's what I would eventually like to do — either coaching or managing."

Skotarek, along with other members of the Sting, give soccer clinics on demand throughout the year. This past week, they were instructing Palatine youngsters.

"The purpose of the clinics is to introduce soccer more than to just show it. Kids are enthusiastic and this is where it is important because by the time they reach high school they are usually more oriented to other sports," Skotarek said.

He also said he is awaiting the approach of soccer as a science, with each position being studied separately and collectively as part of a team effort. Then it will be considered on the same level as other professional sports in America today.

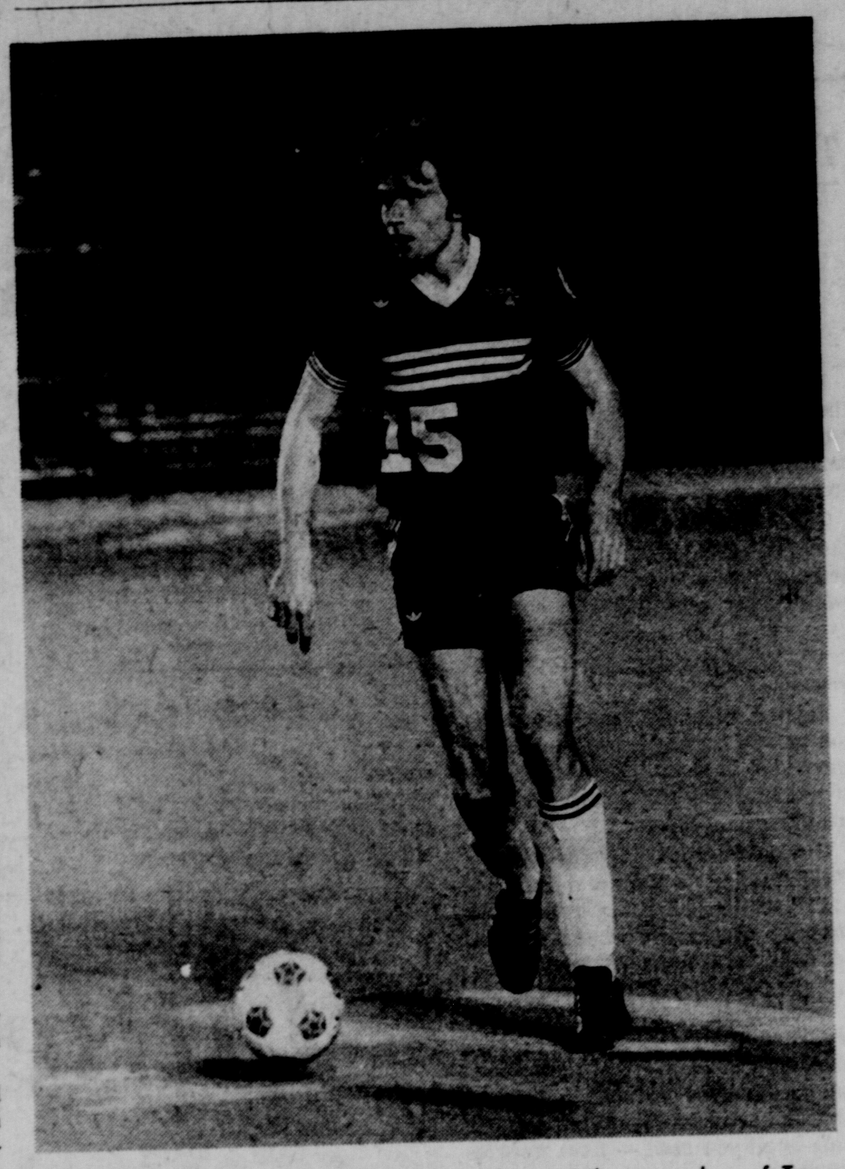
"Public demand will determine how long that will take. You can throw millions and billions of dollars into the sport, but it will not grow unless it catches on with the public," Skotarek said.

He plans on playing as long as possible. Soccer has provided him with a career in something he enjoys doing.

"As long as I can be of use, I'll continue as a player. If I find I am a hindrance in any way, I'll stop playing," he said.

When that time comes, it will be a major shift in Skotarek's lifestyle because he said soccer is more than his job.

It is also his hobby.



CHICAGO STING captain Alex Skotarek, recently a member of Team America, is considered one of the best soccer players in the country. Born in Germany, Skotarek moved with his parents to Chicago in 1952. He has purchased a home in Arlington Heights.

Streaking Mets top Cubs, 2-1

From The Herald wire services

Jerry Koosman fired a three-hitter and got a sixth inning run-scoring single from Ron Hodges to lead the New York Mets to a 2-1 win over the Chicago Cubs Friday, the Mets' eighth win in a row.

Koosman held the Cubs to a single by Jerry Morales in the first inning and singles by Bill Madlock and Morales in the ninth. He struck out 12 batters and walked one in going the distance for his eighth win in 14 decisions.

The Mets scored the winning run in the sixth when Bruce Boisclair led off with a single, stole second, went to third on an infield out and came home on Hodges' single to right. The Mets also scored in the first inning when Mike Phillips, who had singled, came all the way around when Morales misplayed a Felix Millan line drive into a two-base error.

The Cubs scored in the first when Jose Cardenal walked, went to third on the single by Morales and scored on a passed ball by Hodges.

The Cubs put up a mild threat in the top of the ninth inning after Koosman had retired 24 of the last 25 batters he faced.

With two out Bill Madlock, who had been the Cubs' lone base runner in that streak when he was hit by a pitch, singled.

Jerry Morales followed that with a single to left but the rally and game ended when Manny Trillo popped up to first baseman Ed Kranepool for the final out.

Koosman's strikeout total of 12 was the highest number of batters fanned in the National League this year.

The Cubs also got some good pitching news when Steve Stone, who had not worked since April, put in a solid four innings of work, allowing only three hits and one unearned run.

Mike Adams was sent to Wichita to make room for Stone on the Cub roster.

Johnson has the goods as Sox cool Texas, 1-0

by BOB GALLAS

The White Sox and the Rangers, who have clawed, bitten and scratched their way through 10 games so far this season, went at it again at Comiskey Park Friday night and for the sixth time, the Sox came out on top, this time by a score of 1-0.

Bart Johnson, Sox righthander who looks at Texas like a snake charmer would look at a cobra went the distance for the shutout and the win, his third in a row.

Bert Blyleven, wh come into the game after winning back to back, 10-inning, 1-0 games, was the victim of Johnson, who is now 7-0 lifetime against the Rangers.

The Sox scored a run in the first inning and made it hold up. The win broke a three game Sox losing streak and snapped a nine game Sox losing skein at home.

Johnson, who in 26-1/3 innings against Texas this year, has given up but two runs, was in trouble in only two innings, when the Rangers put together back to back singles. Johnson gave up only five hits and is now 6-7 on the season.

The Sox-Texas clashes this season have been anything but dull. In the 10 games between the two clubs, six have been decided by one run and five times that winning run has come in the final inning. Four games between the two have gone into extra innings.

The Sox run in the first was scored by leadoff man Chet Lemon, who singled off Blyleven to open the game. Lemon moved to second on a sacrifice by Rich Coggins, then came home on Jorge Orta's single.

The run broke a string of 20 scoreless innings thrown by Blyleven, who beat the Sox the last time out by a 1-0 score in 10 innings.

Johnson, who struck out four and walked three, could be a Hall of Famer if he only faced Texas. Johnson came into the game with an ERA of 5.25.

The Sox, who have now scored but one run in each of their last four games, gave Johnson minimum support and threatened to score only twice after the first inning.

Johnson shrugged off his apparent strangle hold on the Rangers. "It's just the breaks," he said while soaking his arm in ice following the game.

"Actually, I think I pitched better against Minnesota."

Nobody got past second base for the Rangers against Johnson, who said he was tiring in the seventh inning.

Sox manager Paul Richards was in a mellow mood following the game even though his charges have found runs hard to come by of late.

"I told him (Johnson) 'There's your run, boy, so go get 'em. That's all we can do,' " Richards said as he puffed on a holder-held cigarette.

"We finally convinced him (Johnson) that he could be a super pitcher if he threw a hard curve instead of that lollipop he had," Richards said.

Jack Brohamer singled to lead off the second inning and got to second base on a bunt by Kevin Bell, but Brohamer went no further.

In the eighth, the Sox loaded the bases with two out when Pat Kelly and Jim Spencer singled and Bucky Dent was hit by a pitch from Blyleven, who also went the distance.

But Blyleven got Brohamer to fly out to center to end the inning.

The Sox win spoiled another plan by Sox owner Bill Veeck. "If we had lost that would have been 10 straight losses at home," said Veeck. "I was going to let everyone here tonight in free tomorrow morning and so on until we won."

Big Fourth of July card at Waukegan Speedway

A 50-lap model event Saturday under the lights, five features including a 25-lap and a 50-lap super-modified race Sunday and the All-Star 200 Monday night are on tap this Fourth of July weekend at Waukegan Speedway.

Hobby stock cars will race all four nights and the first race starts at 8 p.m. each night, except Monday when the scheduled starting time for the first race is 7 p.m.

The late models get their final tune-up for Monday's special when they take to the track for their annual "Firecracker 50" with increased prize money at stake Saturday night.

Sunday's special super-modified card picked up two more races due to stormy weather which hit the track last Sunday night before the modified and hobby features could be run.

According to the Waukegan track rules, the rained out features are run as the first races seven days later so the modifieds will race in a 25-lap feature (from last Sunday), all their preliminaries, and then run in the 40-lap holiday race. Also on the card are two 12-lap hobby features and a 15-lap, mini-Indy car main event.

All sorts of records are likely to be set Monday night as the "All-Star 200" is run at the Waukegan oval. The program is comprised of 200-laps of racing including a 100-lap late model feature, a 25-lap super-modified feature and a 15-lap hobby feature.

One of the largest crowds in the track's 27-year history is anticipated. time trial runs at 6 p.m. and the first race at 7 p.m. A demolition derby will close the card.

The lure that catches from tarpon to panfish

Pro's guide to Rapala fishing

Fishermen are very sensitive about their sport. Much of their knowledge comes from long, lonely hours of personal experience. Little, if any, is store bought.

Their experiments, innovations and discoveries are often highly-treasured secrets. You wouldn't expect a time-worn angler who limits out on walleyes every day to become the town crier, revealing his hot spots and techniques.

But the Normark Corp., makers of the proven Rapala fishing lure, have succeeded in setting the hook into 19 of the nation's most respected and trusted fishing experts.

The joint effort is "The Rapala Fishing Guide," (1976 Normark Corp., $2.75), an intriguing and informative 200-page compilation of the extreme versatility of the famous Rapala lure.

If the paperback does have a pitfall, it would seem to be the lopsided emphasis of a single lure. No fisherman has just one plug in his tackle box, but the hard-sell approach to the book almost convinces its reader the Rapala is all you need — from muskies to sunfish.

The deis of authors is peerless — a real Who's Who of angling. Gracing the pages with tips, hints and anecdotes are such hook and line legends as Buck Perry, Al Lindner, Roland Martin, Ray Ostrom, Stu Apte and Buck Rogers.

These grizzled veterans have probably spent as much time on the water as on terra firma. Reading their features is like listening to E. F. Hutton talk stocks.

Lindner, a three-time world fishing champion, examines methods for taking walleyes and northern pike in his native Wisconsin and Minnesota lakes.

His techniques of rigging line to lures with particular knots and strategically attaching weight to the line at specific places all are subtle, but valuable pointers.

Perry, affectionately called the "Father of Structure Fishing," talks of control factors in the presentation of lures.

The variables he describes include depth, speed, size, color and action and how they apply to being at the right place at the right time and fishing in the right manner.

Martin is the all-time top point champion of the National BASS Tournament and ranks as the all-time money-winner on the competitive trail with $47,823.80 in earnings.

His specialty is obviously bigmouth bass and although spinnerbaits and plastic worms play an important role in the basscaster's tackle selection, Martin informs the reader of the Pattern System (spawning, summer and lunker) and which Rapala model to use in different cover, depth and structure.

Ray Ostrom is the muskie master of the authors and rates the no. 18 Rapala floater as his number one choice for the most prized fresh-water game fish.

Among Ostrom's hints are that weather conditions and the time of day mean 90 per cent of fishing success for muskies.

The ideal conditions, Ray says, would be the advent of a low pressure area with heavy overcast and warm temperature. Add just a little mist or slight amount of warm rain off and on during the day plus just enough wind to drift the boat slowly.

Ostrom suggests cutting off the last two or three feet of line several times a day and re-tying the knot. He never uses anything heavier than 17-pound test monofilament.

Stu Apte's selections "Taking Giant Tarpon" will appeal to Florida's saltwater anglers. Particularly interesting is the section of tying shock leaders which help cushion the vicious attack of a striking tarpon.

The holder of more than 20 world records on light tackle, including a 154-pound tarpon on a fly rod with 12-pound test, Apte includes diagrams for all types of knots he uses.

Buck Rogers preaches conservation in the form of releasing fish that will not show up on the dinner plate or the den wall. In his "Release Your Fish Alive" section, Buck establishes a list of criteria that must be executed to insure the survival of hooked fish.

'Little T' has 8 months to live

by CARL A. VINES

GREENBACK, Tenn. — "If science set out to develop the ideal trout stream, they couldn't do better than the Little Tennessee River," says Knoxville lawyer Joe Congleton.

In fact it was an industry, the Aluminum Company of America, that developed the "Little T" as it is today. Several years ago the firm built a series of dams on the "Little T" to provide power for its East Tennessee operations.

Before those dams, the Little Tennessee, which rises in north Georgia and rambles across the corner of western North Carolina through Fontana reservoir into Tennessee, was a walleye river, and a good one. Some trophy-size walleye lived in its waters.

But early next year the Tennessee Valley Authority will close Tellico Dam at Lenoir City — a 3,200-foot earth and concrete barrier shaped roughly like a hockey stick — and the last 32 miles of the river will become anoter TVA lake, a $100 million project which began in 1967.

The 537-foot concrete portion of the dam was completed in 1969. The 2,700 feet of earthworks will be completed about Dec. 1. A canal, 1,000 feet long and 500 feet wide, will join the new lake with Fort Loudoun reservoir so water from the Little Tennessee can add to hydroelectric generation at Loudoun Dam and barges can reach potential industrial sites along the Tellico reservoir.

The "Little T" has less than eight months to live.

The last court battle of the Little Tennessee is in the appeals stage after a ruling by U.S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor, dismissing an environmentalist suit against TVA based on the endangered species act.

This second major court battle against TVA centered on a two-inch fish discovered in the river in 1973 and named the "snail darter" because it feeds mainly on small river snails.

Everybody who's ever been on the "Little T" has a favorite story, like Congleton's hour-long battle with a five-pound brown trout he finally brought under control after nightfall one evening. He took a picture of the prize catch using the headlights of a car for illumination, then released it.

I remember floating with a friend on the river once, spinner fishing with a two-inch spoon cast close to the bank and watching a 23-inch rainbow follow the wobbly lure almost to the boat before he struck.

Late this spring, on the most unpromising day imaginable, I drove to the "Little T" in the rain and found half a dozen fishermen there ahead of me.

And on Memorial Day, at the spot where Hoss Holt ran a small store and service station for 16 years, a young couple pulled in a 24-inch rainbow. They were fishing with worms, using spinning rods from the bank to get lead weighted lines close to the bottom.

Most fish caught on the "Little T" are taken on such bait, or canned sweet corn fished from a boat with spinning rods.

Congleton, a Kentucky native who says he settled in Knoxville in 1972 because of the Little Tennessee 35 miles away, is downright poetic about fly fishing on the "Little T."

I've never had any luck with flies, maybe because I've never caught the river at a good wading level. Mostly I've been on the river when the water was high, running just right for boating or floating.

But Congleton, an amateur entomologist who ties his own flies to match whatever hatch he finds, says there's no other stream like it this side of Montana. "The experience of fishing the Little Tennessee is like fishing a really large western trout stream," he says.

What makes it unique? "The bottom content, with a lot of small stone, aquatic vegetation and constant water temperature. There's a tremendous insect population in the river — mayflies, caddis flies. It's very rich."

The "Little T" is a couple of rivers, at least, in character. Just below Chilhowee Dam, the stream is overshadowed by heavily wooded mountain slopes. Floaters, putting in below the dam, have about 10 miles of mountain river before them, with rocky shoals and rapids to negotiate.

Then, near Greenback and Vonore, the valley widens into farm country and the river is a more leisurely flow, where you can lie back and let your canoe find its own way. There are still rocky shoals, but the pace of the river has slowed considerably.

Hoss Holt's place is just a concrete slab now, the store torn down to make way for highway improvement along the river. He still has his house on the other side of the road and hopes to continue renting boats to fishermen even when the lake is filled.

Much of the lower river has had its timber stands cut away in preparation for filling the reservoir. In some places the natural beauty of the river has already been lost to construction activities.

Fishermen will never agree that the new lake is fair exchange for the lost river it will replace.

Smallmouth on decline in Kankakee

A monthly monitoring of fish in the Kankakee River by an Illinois Department of Conservation fishery biologist indicates the propulation of smallmouth bass may be dwindling in that river.

That rather startling finding is the result of a two-year-old study undertaken to determine movements and growth patterns of popular sport fish in the Kankakee. Northern pike, walleye, smallmouth bass, and channel catfish are the main fish being studied by fishery biologist James Langbein.

Over the past five years, smallmouth seem to have slipped to second place in abundance behind the catfish, Langbein said. Also, fewer smallmouth of adult size are being seen, he said.

The decline of the smallmouth is due to a combination of habitat destruction and overfishing, Langbein said. New catch limits or other fishing regulations pertaining to the taking of smallmouth could ultimately result if further analysis of his findings indicates regulation is necessary.

Channelization of those tributary streams and increased winter plowing, thereby increasing the silt load is the primary factor in the decline on the smallmouth bass population. Discharge of hot water into the tailwaters of the Kankakee by Commonwealth Edison's Braidwood station and heavy fishing of smallmouth during their spring spawning run up tributaries of the Kankakee could also be factors.

The basic purpose of the survey is to establish normal growth rates for various species of fish in the Kankakee. Any large deviation from the norm observed in the future could be a warning of environmental disruption, Langbein said.

Langbein temporarily removes fish from four check points along the river. An electric shock placed in the water stuns the fish so they float to the surface of the water and are easily netted. The four check stations along the river are at the Indiana-Illinois state line, the confluence of the Kankakee and Iroquois Rivers, Kankakee River State Park, and the Des Plaines Conservation Area.

Each of the fish taken in the survey is gill tagged, weighed, measured, and aged before being thrown back into the river. Aging is done through scale samples. When viewed through a microscope, scales reveal the age of the fish just as the rings of a tree stump reveal its age.

A few of the tagged fish are caught again and subsequently measured. It is hoped that fishermen will send the tags back to the Department of Conservation.

Another find of the monthly survey has been the discovery of a river red horse, an endangered specie formerly believed to exist in the Kankakee River.

During the middle of July, when the river is in no danger of flooding and most fish have completed spawning, the study is expanded to include 13 check stations at five-mile intervals along the river. This more intensive sampling is done annually to supplement the monthly survey.

Boats await introduction of new non-fouling paint

V. J. Castelli, a chemist at the Naval Ship Research and Development Center in Annapolis, Md., recently disclosed that Navy chemists have devised a new bottom coating for boats that may rid ships of barnacles and other marine growth for up to four years.

In a report on the new coatings, Castelli said the new paint consists of toxic organic and other substances chemically bonded to polymers and acrylics, vinyls, epoxies and polyesters. The difference from conventional bottom coatings is that the coated surface is inherently toxic with a minimum of leeching of the toxic property.

In tests in heavy-fouling waters in the Atlantic Ocean off Miami, Fla., Castelli said that panels coated with the preparation remained clear of baracles after four years.

"The panels are so clear it is unbelievable," Castelli said. "Some of the panels are plexiglas and you can see right through them."

Castelli said the coatings on the four-year-old panels still are highly toxic to marine growth and almost as thick as when they were applied.

The Navy is expected to share its research results with private industry and already has invited manufacturers' inquiries. The Navy research is not finished, however, and no tentative date for the availability of the paint to the general public has been made. But it is expected to come, and sometime in the near future, according to published reports.

There was no speculation on how much the long-lasting bottom coating would cost per gallon, but if it lasts four years without loss of toxic qualities, it will be expensive.

Castelli said the Navy began research into bottom coatings to save fuel in fleet operations.

Barnacles and other marine growth slow ships and waste fuel. The estimated loss from wasted fuel, hauling and scraping and repainting, is in the millions of dollars annually.

Castelli, whose report was presented at a recent meeting of the American Chemical Society, also said that the new coatings would result in minimal environmental impact as well as offer large fuel savings.

National Safe Boating Week

President Ford has proclaimed the week of July 4 as National Safe Boating Week.

"As the popularity of boating grows," the President said in issuing the proclamation, "so does the need to emphasize safety in boating activities."

The President, who is expected to be on board the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Forrestal on July 4 to view Operation Sail, the multinational nautical salute to the United States' 200th birthday, urged all who take part in boating to learn the safety rules and obey them.

"We must recognize a mutual responsibility for our safety and the safety of others so that enjoyment of our country's natural and man-made resources does not have to be marred by tragedy," President Ford said.

The lure that catches from tarpon to panfish

Pro's guide to Rapala fishing

Fishermen are very sensitive about their sport. Much of their knowledge comes from long, lonely hours of personal experience. Little, if any, is store bought.

Their experiments, innovations and discoveries are often highly-treasured secrets. You wouldn't expect a time-worn angler who limits out on wall-eyes every day to become the town crier, revealing his hot spots and techniques.

But the Normark Corp., makers of the proven Rapala fishing lure, have succeeded in setting the hook into 19 of the nation's most respected and trusted fishing experts.

The joint effort is "The Rapala Fishing Guide," (1976 Normark Corp., $2.75), an intriguing and informative 200-page compilation of the extreme versatility of the famous Rapala lure.

If the paperback does have a pitfall, it would seem to be the lopsided emphasis of a single lure. No fisherman has just one plug in his tackle box, but the hard-sell approach to the book almost convinces its reader the Rapala is all you need — from muskies to sunfish.

The deis of authors is peerless — a real Who's Who of angling. Gracing the pages with tips, hints and anecdotes are such hook and line legends as Buck Perry, Al Lindner, Roland Martin, Ray Ostrom, Stu Apte and Buck Rogers.

These grizzled veterans have probably spent as much time on the water as on terra firma. Reading their features is like listening to E. F. Hutton talk stocks.

Lindner, a three-time world fishing champion, examines methods for taking walleyes and northern pike in his native Wisconsin and Minnesota lakes.

His techniques of rigging line to lures with particular knots and strategically attaching weight to the line at specific places all are subtle, but valuable pointers.

Perry, affectionately called the "Father of Structure Fishing," talks of control factors in the presentation of lures.

The variables he describes include depth, speed, size, color and action and how they apply to being at the right place at the right time and fishing in the right manner.

Martin is the all-time top point champion of the National BASS Tournament and ranks as the all-time money-winner on the competitive trail with $47,823.80 in earnings.

His specialty is obviously bigmouth bass and although spinnerbaits and plastic worms play an important role in the basscaster's tackle selection, Martin informs the reader of the Pattern System (spawning, summer and lunker) and which Rapala model to use in different cover, depth and structure.

Ray Ostrom is the muskie master of the authors and rates the no. 18 Rapala floater as his number one choice for the most prized fresh-water game fish.

Among Ostrom's hints are that weather conditions and the time of day mean 90 per cent of fishing success for muskies.

Ask Andy

Whale pregnant 10 to 17 months

HOW LONG IS A WHALE'S GESTATION PERIOD?

The huge blue whale is not only the largest animal alive today — it is also the largest animal that has ever lived. Reaching lengths of up to 100 feet and weighing more than 100 tons, you would expect this leviathan of the deep to produce a whopper of a baby. And this she does. A baby blue whale at birth spans 20 feet — longer than a good-size automobile.

Gestation is the period of time that females carry their unborn young inside their bodies. Large mammals that usually bear only one offspring at a time have long gestation periods. Smaller mammals with litters of several young have shorter gestation periods. For example, the elephant cow carries her young between 20 and 22 months, while the gestation period of a arbbit is only about 30 days.

There are many different species, or types, of whales. The length of gestation periods depends on which species you are referring to. The gestation period for most whales is between 10 and 17 months. In the case of the sperm whale, the mother, called a cow, carries the baby, or calf, for about 16 months. For a blue whale the period is about 11 months, and the gray whale about 12 months.

Little is known about the courtship and mating habits of the larger whales. One observer of an amorous bull humpback whale, however, reported that the male performed a series of acrobatic feats that ranged from standing on his head to leaping out of the water in an attempt to impress his lady love. This was followed by a series of playful slaps with their huge flippers that could be heard miles away.

A female gives birth to a single calf every two or three years. Twins are very rare. The youngster is ready to swim as soon as he is born and is able to keep up with his mother. The mother nurses the calf for six to eight months with super-rich milk. On this diet, a blue whale calf that is about 20 feet long at birth will grow to more than 50 feet in length by the time it is weaned.

The life span of whales ranges from 20 to 40 years. They do not appear to fight among themselves, and their only natural enemy is the killer whale which is a type of porpoise. Man, however, is even a greater enemy. Men have hunted whales for hundreds of years for the rich oils found in their bodies.

BICENTENNIAL GAMES

During our Bicentennial month, we'll tell you how to play some old-time games. Your grandparents or great grandparents may have enjoyed these games, too. The first one is Red Hot Potato.

Tie a knot in a handkerchief or scarf to make the "potato." Players sit in a circle. One player kneels in the middle, holding the potato. He tosses it to a player in the circle. That player tosses it to someone else. The potato must keep moving.

The player in the middle, still kneeling, tries to grab the potato. If he succeeds, the last person to toss the potato trades places with him. The game then starts again.

Ask Andy

Whale pregnant 10 to 17 months

HOW LONG IS A WHALE'S GESTATION PERIOD?

The huge blue whale is not only the largest animal alive today — it is also the largest animal that has ever lived. Reaching lengths of up to 100 feet and weighing more than 100 tons, you would expect this leviathan of the deep to produce a whopper of a baby. And this she does. A baby blue whale at birth spans 20 feet — longer than a good-size automobile.

Gestation is the period of time that females carry their unborn young inside their bodies. Large mammals that usually bear only one offspring at a time have long gestation periods. Smaller mammals with litters of several young have shorter gestation periods. For example, the elephant cow carries her young between 20 and 22 months, while the gestation period of a arbbit is only about 30 days.

There are many different species, or types, of whales. The length of gestation periods depends on which species you are referring to. The gestation period for most whales is between 10 and 17 months. In the case of the sperm whale, the mother, called a cow, carries the baby, or calf, for about 16 months. For a blue whale the period is about 11 months, and the gray whale about 12 months.

Little is known about the courtship and mating habits of the larger whales. One observer of an amorous bull humpback whale, however, reported that the male performed a series of acrobatic feats that ranged from standing on his head to leaping out of the water in an attempt to impress his lady love. This was followed by a series of playful slaps with their huge flippers that could be heard miles away.

A female gives birth to a single calf every two or three years. Twins are very rare. The youngster is ready to swim as soon as he is born and is able to keep up with his mother. The mother nurses the calf for six to eight months with super-rich milk. On this diet, a blue whale calf that is about 20 feet long at birth will grow to more than 50 feet in length by the time it is weaned.

The life span of whales ranges from 20 to 40 years. They do not appear to fight among themselves, and their only natural enemy is the killer whale which is a type of porpoise. Man, however, is even a greater enemy. Men have hunted whales for hundreds of years for the rich oils found in their bodies.

Thompson warchest near a million

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson announced Friday he has collected almost $1 million for his campaign against Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Thompson said 6,328 persons have contributed $910,288 to his campaign through the middle of the week.

Earlier in the week, Thompson, the former U.S. attorney from Chicago, won the endorsement of the Independent Voters of Illinois for the November election.

Tax group cites Crane

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has been given the Illinois Fiscal Integrity Award for 1976 by the National Taxpayer's Union.

The award is given to a congressman or senator based on their ratings on 21 key spending votes. Crane was cited for achieving the best rating of any member of Congress from Illinois and one of the highest ratings in the Congress.

House bars aid to Angola

The U.S. House recently adopted by voice vote an amendment to the foreign aid appropriations bill sponsored by Crane which bars aid to either Angola or Mozambique.

Crane argued that aid to either nation would be providing taxpayers dollars to finance a race war in Rhodesia. Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, during a recent trip to Africa, promised $12.5 million to Mozambique.

Correction

The fees for Summerfest now through July 11 in Milwaukee were incorrectly printed in The Herald's travel section Tuesday.

Admission to the festival is $2.50 for adults per day. Entertainment is free.

Political briefs

Young to meet chiefs

Republican 10th District congressional candidate Samuel H. Young has announced he will meet with each of the 15 police chiefs in the district to discuss law enforcement problems.

Young said he expects the meetings to be "extremely valuable in learning about the problems caused by the rapid rise of crime in the suburbs." He had similar meetings with local police chiefs during his successful 1972 campaign for Congress.

Young, who served in Congress during 1973 and 1974, is running against U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, who defeated him in the 1974 election.

Thompson warchest near a million

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson announced Friday he has collected almost $1 million for his campaign against Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Thompson said 6,328 persons have contributed $910,288 to his campaign through the middle of the week.

Earlier in the week, Thompson, the former U.S. attorney from Chicago, won the endorsement of the Independent Voters of Illinois for the November election.

Tax group cites Crane

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has been given the Illinois Fiscal Integrity Award for 1976 by the National Taxpayer's Union.

The award is given to a congressman or senator based on their ratings on 21 key spending votes. Crane was cited for achieving the best rating of any member of Congress from Illinois and one of the highest ratings in the Congress.

House bars aid to Angola

The U.S. House recently adopted by voice vote an amendment to the foreign aid appropriations bill sponsored by Crane which bars aid to either Angola or Mozambique.

Crane argued that aid to either nation would be providing taxpayers dollars to finance a race war in Rhodesia. Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, during a recent trip to Africa, promised $12.5 million to Mozambique.

Correction

The fees for Summerfest now through July 11 in Milwaukee were incorrectly printed in The Herald's travel section Tuesday.

Admission to the festival is $2.50 for adults per day. Entertainment is free.

Political briefs

Young to meet chiefs

Republican 10th District congressional candidate Samuel H. Young has announced he will meet with each of the 15 police chiefs in the district to discuss law enforcement problems.

Young said he expects the meetings to be "extremely valuable in learning about the problems caused by the rapid rise of crime in the suburbs." He had similar meetings with local police chiefs during his successful 1972 campaign for Congress.

Young, who served in Congress during 1973 and 1974, is running against U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, who defeated him in the 1974 election.

ON SUNDAY, Americans will celebrate 200 years of freedom. The revolutionaries of 1776 will be remembered — they gave America its beginning. But others have kept the country going. Eighty-four-year-old Floyd Bates, World War I veteran, knows. He remembers.

What this country needs . . .

Lucey calls out Guard, vows to enforce 55 limit

by United Press International

Planes, trains and, most of all, cars have replaced the horses and buggies of revolutionary times and millions of Americans take to the highways to begin Bicentennial holiday jaunts to beaches, barbeques, historic monuments or the homes of friends and relatives.

Police beefed up patrols to snare speeders and braced for the usual holiday round of traffic pileups.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, anticipating heavy traffic in the resort state, declared a state of emergency to allow use of National Guard troops and extra police for highway patrol duties. He said enforcement of the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit would be "stricter than ever" during the holiday weekend.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 530 and 630 persons could die in traffic accidents during the holiday period, which begins at 6 p.m. today and ends at midnight Monday. Another 25,000 to 30,000 could suffer disabling injuries, the council said.

THE COUNCIL said motorists could drive 17.3 billion miles over the 78-hour weekend compared to 16 billion miles over last year's Fourth of July holiday.

Iowa state police anticipated the heaviest holiday traffic in years and braced for the onslaught of motorists.

"You always try to be os visible as possible on heavily traveled highways on holiday weekends," said Robert Hoeltz, Iowa's depty commissioner of public safety.

Airlines and Amtrak, the National Rail Passenger Corp., also predicted heavy travel loads and Amtrak put on extra cars on many of its runs for the holiday weekend.

Plenty of room at the inns around '76 tourist spots

by United Press International

From the front door of the Sheraton Inn in Charlottesville, Va., lines of Bicentennial tourists can be seen queued up before Monticello, home of founding father Thomas Jefferson.

But a look through that front door shows only a half empty lobby, a clerk with plenty of available rooms and a bewildered manager, W. F. Hall.

"For a year we were told we'd have all the business we could handle," he said, "but we haven't gotten it. We are running only about 80 per cent of occupancy. We were told there'd be 1,400 people a day visiting the city, but I don't know where they're staying."

Hall's lament was being echoed by hotel and motel managers throughout the area in which the nation was born 200 years ago. The stream of visitors to such historic sites as Monticello, Mt. Vernon, George Washington's northern Virginia Home, and Williamsburg where the Declaration of Independence was drafted is up from 30 to 50 per cent, but the tourists aren't staying.

"The Bicentennial people in Washington said they expected 40 million this summer," said John J. Nelson, director of tourist development for the state of Maryland. "That scared the pants off everybody in the trade, but we know it will be roughly 17 million, if that."

"THEY COME to see Washington," he said of tourists in the Bicentennial year. "The spinoff is to us. There is bound to be an increase (in tourism) to this part of the country . . . after all, it happened here. They want to see where it happened."

If Nelson is looking for the spinoff from Washington, D.C., however, hotel and motel owners in the nation's capital are simply looking for tourists.

"Since Memorial Day, it's been downhill," said Leonard Hickman, director of the Washington hotel association. "We're not having what we expected. I've been getting comments and complaints from managers of virtually every hotel in the area, and they're reporting cancellations from tour groups and a large percentage of no-shows."

The situation was the same just across the river from Washington, in historic Alexandria, Va., where Innkeeper Paul Weimer had plenty of rooms and a growing case of gloom.

"WE ARE RUNNING 70 to 75 per cent occupancy when we expected to have 90 to 100 per cent occupancy," he said. "After driving 400 to 600 miles to get here, they (tourists) are afraid they will not have a place to stay. It's not true, but it's what they believe."

In Boston, innkeepers were as gloomy as their Virginia colleagues.

"It looks pretty quiet around here for the Fourth of July," said Don Walsh, assistant general manger of the Howard Johnson's Hotel in downtown Boston. He said he still had weekend rooms available.

In New York City, where millions were expected to watch the majestic sailing ships from around the world pass in parade July 4, innkeepers said there still were rooms available in all price ranges.

Philadelphia reported a somewhat brighter scene.

Al Hornstein, director of tourism for the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau, said room bookings were 90 per cent in the city and 80 to 85 per cent in the metropolitan area, including Valley Forge.

What this country needs . . .

ON SUNDAY, Americans will celebrate 200 years of freedom. The revolutionaries of 1776 will be remembered — they gave America its beginning. But others have kept the country going. Eighty-four-year-old Floyd Bates, World War I veteran, knows. He remembers.

Lucey calls out Guard, vows to enforce 55 limit

by United Press International

Planes, trains and, most of all, cars have replaced the horses and buggies of revolutionary times and millions of Americans take to the highways to begin Bicentennial holiday jaunts to beaches, barbeques, historic monuments or the homes of friends and relatives.

Police beefed up patrols to snare speeders and braced for the usual holiday round of traffic pileups.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, anticipating heavy traffic in the resort state, declared a state of emergency to allow use of National Guard troops and extra police for highway patrol duties. He said enforcement of the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit would be "stricter than ever" during the holiday weekend.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 530 and 630 persons could die in traffic accidents during the holiday period, which begins at 6 p.m. today and ends at midnight Monday. Another 25,000 to 30,000 could suffer disabling injuries, the council said.

THE COUNCIL said motorists could drive 17.3 billion miles over the 78-hour weekend compared to 16 billion miles over last year's Fourth of July holiday.

Iowa state police anticipated the heaviest holiday traffic in years and braced for the onslaught of motorists.

"You always try to be os visible as possible on heavily traveled highways on holiday weekends," said Robert Hoeltz, Iowa's depty commissioner of public safety.

Airlines and Amtrak, the National Rail Passenger Corp., also predicted heavy travel loads and Amtrak put on extra cars on many of its runs for the holiday weekend.

Plenty of room at the inns around '76 tourist spots

by United Press International

From the front door of the Sheraton Inn in Charlottesville, Va., lines of Bicentennial tourists can be seen queued up before Monticello, home of founding father Thomas Jefferson.

But a look through that front door shows only a half empty lobby, a clerk with plenty of available rooms and a bewildered manager, W. F. Hall.

"For a year we were told we'd have all the business we could handle," he said, "but we haven't gotten it. We are running only about 80 per cent of occupancy. We were told there'd be 1,400 people a day visiting the city, but I don't know where they're staying."

Hall's lament was being echoed by hotel and motel managers throughout the area in which the nation was born 200 years ago. The stream of visitors to such historic sites as Monticello, Mt. Vernon, George Washington's northern Virginia Home, and Williamsburg where the Declaration of Independence was drafted is up from 30 to 50 per cent, but the tourists aren't staying.

"The Bicentennial people in Washington said they expected 40 million this summer," said John J. Nelson, director of tourist development for the state of Maryland. "That scared the pants off everybody in the trade, but we know it will be roughly 17 million, if that."

"THEY COME to see Washington," he said of tourists in the Bicentennial year. "The spinoff is to us. There is bound to be an increase (in tourism) to this part of the country . . . after all, it happened here. They want to see where it happened."

If Nelson is looking for the spinoff from Washington, D.C., however, hotel and motel owners in the nation's capital are simply looking for tourists.

"Since Memorial Day, it's been downhill," said Leonard Hickman, director of the Washington hotel association. "We're not having what we expected. I've been getting comments and complaints from managers of virtually every hotel in the area, and they're reporting cancellations from tour groups and a large percentage of no-shows."

The situation was the same just across the river from Washington, in historic Alexandria, Va., where Innkeeper Paul Weimer had plenty of rooms and a growing case of gloom.

"WE ARE RUNNING 70 to 75 per cent occupancy when we expected to have 90 to 100 per cent occupancy," he said. "After driving 400 to 600 miles to get here, they (tourists) are afraid they will not have a place to stay. It's not true, but it's what they believe."

In Boston, innkeepers were as gloomy as their Virginia colleagues.

"It looks pretty quiet around here for the Fourth of July," said Don Walsh, assistant general manger of the Howard Johnson's Hotel in downtown Boston. He said he still had weekend rooms available.

In New York City, where millions were expected to watch the majestic sailing ships from around the world pass in parade July 4, innkeepers said there still were rooms available in all price ranges.

Philadelphia reported a somewhat brighter scene.

Al Hornstein, director of tourism for the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau, said room bookings were 90 per cent in the city and 80 to 85 per cent in the metropolitan area, including Valley Forge.

Is there softball after death?

If there isn't, area softball zealots just may refuse to die. To call organized softball popular in the Northwest suburbs would be like saying Jimmy Carter has teeth.

The latest American Softball Assn. figures are staggering. Nearly 17,500,000 persons try to be a hero in organized leagues each year. In the Northwest suburbs, some 8,000 persons participate in local park district programs. One Chicago softball pundit estimates that the metropolitan area is saturated with about 4,000 teams.

Many of the area teams are content to play once or twice a week. But with some, this thirst for softball is practically insatiable. "I play softball five times a week," says 41-year-old Ron Bernardini, before a game in the Elk Grove Park District League. Bernardini has played softball for 25 years. Any normal human being might ask how Ron manages to find the time to play five times a week. Don't.

"In the summer," he says, "you MAKE the time for softball."

There are plenty more where Bernardini comes from. They play for different reasons, some just because they've been raised on the sport, others because they're too old to play baseball. Many softball officials say some persons just want the chance to stop spectating and start participating.

"You can only sit and watch the Cubs and White Sox for so long," said Rick Pyle, recreational supervisor for the Mount Prospect Park District, "before you get that itch. Instead of just throwing the ball around, softball gives you the opportunity to go to the ball

Nature's fight against man

The 60-year battle over use of the Indiana dunes may at last be over

The Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore stretches from Gary to Michigan City, Ind.

Nowhere has civilization and nature collided with more controversy than at the Indiana dunes where the rolling remnants of ancient Lake Michigan shorelines and one of the nation's most heavily industralized centers stand nose-to-nose in uneasy coexistence.

Man has been fighting with himself over the use of the dunes for at least 60 years. The result is an imperfect compromise between industrial growth and spiritual retreat.

The dunes is 5,300 acres called the National Lakeshore, 2,200 acres of state park and 4,600 acres of proposed additional park nestled at the southern tip of Lake Michigan in the midst of 12 million people.

The dunes is a place to swim, camp, picnic and hike. On a weekday it can be almost a retreat — a place where there is room to be alone and surrender yourself willingly to nature. On summer weekends, the beaches and dunes that back them up look like ant hills.

Don Castleberry, assistant superintendent of the Dunes National Lakeshore, uses the word "fragile" when he talks about the dunes. It is a good word because the dunes are caught in multiple crossfires. There is constant tension between public access to the dunes and the urge to preserve them as a pristine lakefront feature. And the battles over existing and proposed electric power plants, steel mills and shipping terminals in the vicinity of the dunes have been fierce.

The National Lakeshore, which stretches intermittently from Gary to Michigan City, Ind., was dedicated in September 1972 but has been slow to develop.

But improvements are under way and by the end of this summer, the National Lakeshore is expected to come into its own as a recreational area, Castleberry says. At West Beach, just west of Gary, a $2 million beach improvement project is in progress. A large bathhouse, parking for 600 cars and a man-made beach will make West Beach the most intensively developed section of the Lakeshore.

Traveling east on U.S. 12, the concrete backbone of the dunes, leads just past Midwest Steel Co., Burns Harbor, Bethlehem Steel Co. and a Northern Indiana Public Service Co. electric power station to Mineral Springs Road. North Mineral Springs Road goes to Dune Acres, an exclusive residential section that is not part of the National Lakeshore and to which there is no public access. But by heading south on Mineral Springs, you can reach U.S. 20 and the Bailly Homestead, the 1822 home of Joseph Bailly, one of northwest Indiana's earliest settlers.

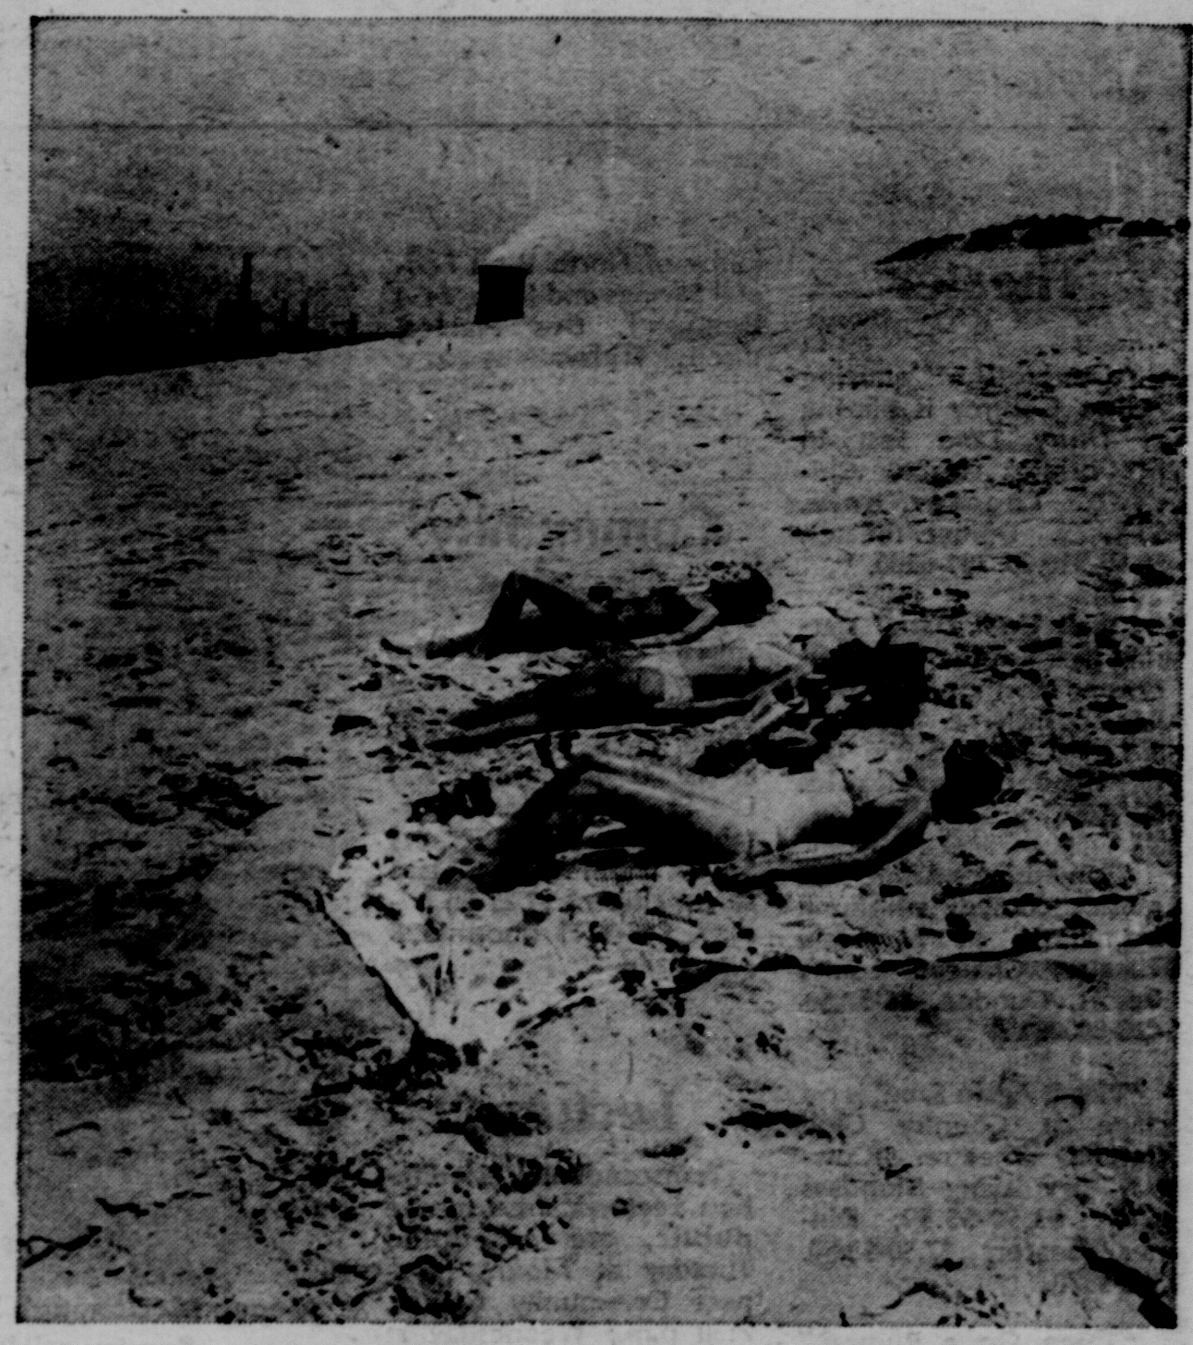
Bailly Homestead, now being restored, consists of the main house, a brick house, a log chapel, a two-story log house, a log cabin and the Bailly family cemetery. Northeast of the Bailly Homestead sits Chellberg Farm, also a part of the National Lakeshore. Although now abandoned, long-range plans are to restore and operate it as a living farm of the pre-mechanized 19th century era.

Continue east on U.S. 12 and you encounter State Road 49 and the impressive entrance to the Indiana Dunes State Park, what Castleberry calls "the heartland of the dunes." Established in 1925, the state park is the best-known and most heavily used part of the dunes.

Statistics tell part of the story. There are more than three miles of beaches, 1800 wooded acres, drifting dunes and marshes and 10 hiking trails. There are 311 camp sites arranged in suburban subdivision fashion in one corner of the park.

You will pay to use the Indiana Dunes State Park. Admission to the park is $1.25 per car. Camping costs $2.60 a night; $3.12 at camp sites with electricity. All of the National Lakeshore is free.

A National Lakeshore visitor center stands at the intersection of U.S. 12 and Kemil Road, three miles east of the state park entrance. Parking, picnicking and a 3.5 mile horse trail through the inland dunes are available near the visitor center, which is open daily from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.



Sun seekers sleep on the slope of Mt. Baldy.

Near U.S. 12 and Broadway is the Dunes Art and Ecology Center — a small gift shop of paintings, photographs and crafts related to the dunes. It is also headquarters for the Save the Dunes Council, a citizens group dedicated to expanding and preserving the Lakeshore.

A short drive north off of U.S. 12 will lead you to beaches and Lake Shore Drive which continues east through the community of Beverly Shores.

The beach and homes on the north side of Lake Shore Drive are part of the National Lake Shore. Homes on the south side of the drive are not now part of the national park, but are included in a Congressional bill that would add 4,600 acres more land to the Lakeshore.

The next stop past Beverly Shores and the eastern outpost of the National Lakeshore is Mt. Baldy, a 123 foot-high "living dune" whose steep southern slope of sand makes for a difficult climb. Easiest access is along a fire road trail which comes up on Mt. Baldy from the west. You will find a small parking lot near the dune by taking Rice Street north off of U.S. 12.

The top of Mt. Baldy offers a wide-angle view of Lake Michigan and the southern beaches. The dune falls away gently to the lake in a vast incline of fine textured light brown sand. Baldy is called a "living dune" because the twin forces of wind and water continue to push the mountain of sand southward about four feet each year.

East of Baldy looms another Northern Indiana Public Service Co. electric plant, this one with a concrete cooling tower that steams like a boiling cauldron. The face off between dune and power station is emblematic of the sweet and sour story of the area.

Some 12 million people live and work within a 90-minute drive of the dunes. There is a historic pattern of urban and industrial development in the area that Climbing the dunes can be a real workout even for youngsters eager to reach the top.

Nowhere has civilization and nature collided with more controversy than at the Indiana dunes where the rolling remnants of ancient Lake Michigan shorelines and one of the nation's most heavily industralized centers stand nose-to-nose in uneasy coexistence.

Man has been fighting with himself over the use of the dunes for at least 60 years. The result is an imperfect compromise between industrial growth and spiritual retreat.

The dunes is 5,300 acres called the National Lakeshore, 2,200 acres of state park and 4,600 acres of proposed additional park nestled at the southern tip of Lake Michigan in the midst of 12 million people.

The dunes is a place to swim, camp, picnic and hike. On a weekday it can be almost a retreat — a place where there is room to be alone and surrender yourself willingly to nature. On summer weekends, the beaches and dunes that back them up look like ant hills.

Don Castleberry, assistant superintendent of the Dunes National Lakeshore, uses the word "fragile" when he talks about the dunes. It is a good word because the dunes are caught in multiple crossfires. There is constant tension between public access to the dunes and the urge to preserve them as a pristine lakefront feature. And the battles over existing and proposed electric power plants, steel mills and shipping terminals in the vicinity of the dunes have been fierce.

The National Lakeshore, which stretches intermittently from Gary to Michigan City, Ind., was dedicated in September 1972 but has been slow to develop.

But improvements are under way and by the end of this summer, the National Lakeshore is expected to come into its own as a recreational area, Castleberry says. At West Beach, just west of Gary, a $2 million beach improvement project is in progress. A large bathhouse, parking for 600 cars and a man-made beach will make West Beach the most intensively developed section of the Lakeshore.

Traveling east on U.S. 12, the concrete backbone of the dunes, leads just past Midwest Steel Co., Burns Harbor, Bethlehem Steel Co. and a Northern Indiana Public Service Co. electric power station to Mineral Springs Road. North Mineral Springs Road goes to Dune Acres, an exclusive residential section that is not part of the National Lakeshore and to which there is no public access. But by heading south on Mineral Springs, you can reach U.S. 20 and the Bailly Homestead, the 1822 home of Joseph Bailly, one of northwest Indiana's earliest settlers.

Bailly Homestead, now being restored, consists of the main house, a brick house, a log chapel, a two-story log house, a log cabin and the Bailly family cemetery. Northeast of the Bailly Homestead sits Chellberg Farm, also a part of the National Lakeshore. Although now abandoned, long-range plans are to restore and operate it as a living farm of the pre-mechanized 19th century era.

Continue east on U.S. 12 and you encounter State Road 49 and the impressive entrance to the Indiana Dunes State Park, what Castleberry calls "the heartland of the dunes." Established in 1925, the state park is the best-known and most heavily used part of the dunes.

Statistics tell part of the story. There are more than three miles of beaches, 1800 wooded acres, drifting dunes and marshes and 10 hiking trails. There are 311 camp sites arranged in suburban subdivision fashion in one corner of the park.

You will pay to use the Indiana Dunes State Park. Admission to the park is $1.25 per car. Camping costs $2.60 a night; $3.12 at camp sites with electricity. All of the National Lakeshore is free.

Nature's fight:

makes the tug of war between public and private uses especially intense.

A proposal by the Northern Indiana Public Service Co. to build a nuclear power station next to the present plant east of Bethlehem Steel Co. was fought to the U.S. Supreme Court by a group of private property owners and the Izaak Walton League.

It has been a long and largely loosing battle through the courts. But Chicago attorney Edward W. Osann Jr., who represents the property owners and the league, says the Bailly nuclear plant is not inevitable.

Osann is appealing again to the Supreme Court to block the project. He also notes that, although the project was approved by the Atomic Energy Commission, it has not been cleared by the U.S. Dept. of Interior which manages the National Lakeshore.

Also there is the possibility that the Northern Indiana Public Service Co. may not be as interested in building the Bailly plant as it was 4½ years ago when Osann first jumped into the controversy.

"It's hard to say how interested they are. Of course they've made quite an effort through all the litigation. But the last public statements were that they are reconsidering their costs and construction schedules," he says. The power company owns a suitable alternate site 35 miles south of the dunes on the Kankakee River.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., has asked the Secretary of the Interior to intervene in the case. But an aide to the senator says that so far the request has not been answered.

Osann is not resigned to the nuclear plant. But the court record so far is on the power company's side which suggests that Northern Indiana Public Service Co. can build another generator on the Lake Michigan shore if it wants to.

Other developments point more favorably to the recreational future of the dunes.

In February, the U.S. House of Representatives voted to appropriate $53.5 million to add 4,340 more acres to the National Lakeshore. The Senate, which is now considering the measure, has added 330 more acres to the park expansion bill.

Like the 1966 law that created the National Lakeshore, the expansion bill allows residents within the park boundaries to continue living in their homes until they die. Residents must agree to sell their land to the federal government which then leases the property back to the original owner at a nominal rent.

The state of Indiana will retain control of its park, which has not been expanded since 1926. But the state land and the national park are man-made distinctions, not divided by any natural barriers.

"The two areas complement each other and the public really shouldn't care, or even know when they are in one or the other," says Castleberry.

The Indiana dunes is an oasis. Like any other fertile ground, it can be overrun. But at other times, the dunes is hauntingly peaceful. State and federal governments will protect their part of the shoreline, dunes, marshes, plants and animals from further encroachment. Industries' future development to the Burns Harbor area has been mapped. The days of struggling between parks and profit may at last be ending. Looking at the dunes today, the haunting question is why man forced himself to make the choice.

Stamps salute Olympics

The U.S. Postal Service July 16 will release a block of four 13-cent stamps saluting the 1976 Olympic Games. The release will come at Lake Placid, New York, host of the 1980 Winter Olympic Games.

Diving and skating are represented by symbolic figures of women on two of the stamps while symbolic figures of men cross country skiing and running are depicted on the other two adhesives. None of the stamps portray real athletes.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Olympics Stamps, Postmaster, Lake Placid, NY 12946" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed. If you request the block of four, place your return address low and well to the left of your envelope. If you request a single stamp, pencil in lightly in the upper right hand corner of the envelope which stamp you wish.

Stamps salute Olympics

The U.S. Postal Service July 16 will release a block of four 13-cent stamps saluting the 1976 Olympic Games. The release will come at Lake Placid, New York, host of the 1980 Winter Olympic Games.

Diving and skating are represented by symbolic figures of women on two of the stamps while symbolic figures of men cross country skiing and running are depicted on the other two adhesives. None of the stamps portray real athletes.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Olympics Stamps, Postmaster, Lake Placid, NY 12946" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed. If you request the block of four, place your return address low and well to the left of your envelope. If you request a single stamp, pencil in lightly in the upper right hand corner of the envelope which stamp you wish.

Heaven is:

diamond and actually play."

Perhaps the least scientific reason is the best: "It's fun," says Bernardini, and his succint answer is echoed by others who play.

"Some teams even go out of state," said Schaumburg Recreation Supervisor Vince Merenda. "They try to get their fingers in all the pie. They really love softball."

These are the teams who are outiftted with complete uniforms and practice the two days of the week they don't play. They take their softball as seriously as Dr. Scholl takes feet.

But there is another group of softball enthusiasts. They may play in white T-shirts and torn jeans, and this group demonstrates why softball has become so popular: everyone, regardless of shape, size or age, race, creed or color, can play. "We have a couple leagues that really play terrible softball," says Chuck LaRocco, recreational coordinator for the Wheeling Park District. "But they go out and have a good time. They get a little competitiveness out of their blood."

"I've seen guys playing in their 40's and 50's who were better than some who just got out of high school," said 24-year old Elk Grove Park District player Kevin Griffin. "It's not a game of how hard you hit the ball, but where you hit it."

For many participants, softball is a social outlet, and the game itself is just a part of it. "It's a night out," explains Roger Key, recreation supervisor for the Arlington Heights Park District. "Play softball, enjoy the game, and the wives will come along and watch. And then, maybe after the game players will get together at the local tavern. It's a social thing and it breaks up the work week."

That's what strikes you first about these games — the players are getting away from their jobs and having fun. They are serious about their performances, but the setting is easy-going. Consider a typical game:

Four games are played at once in this park. On the field of one game, one team's players shout encouragement to the pitcher. The hitting team does the same for the batter. Behind the backstop small children do their best to imitate what's happening on the field.

The players on the field are all ages. Some are playing for only the first or second year; others have competed for 25. The crowd of about 20 is comprised of wives, friends, other players and a few who just like to watch the games.

Both fans and the players remain fairly docile, until one player trying for second base is signaled safe, but then called out by the umpire. Five players converge on the one umpire. They are less than pleased. "How in the world are you calling that play?" demands one player. The umpire just shakes his head and walks away. The game quickly resumes.

Studying the opponents

It is the fast pace of the game itself which also attracts participants and spectators. Baseball, scoff the softball fanatics, is a pitcher's game, with a pace more suited to turtles than humans. Softball, they boast, is a game of hitting and defense. Where you place the ball is far more important than how far you hit it, particularly in 16-inch softball, where it is difficult to hit for long distances.

Although 12-inch softball has a small following in the suburbs, 16-inch is far more popular. Chicago is the national bastion of 16-inch softball and the migration of many city-dwellers to the suburbs is a major reason why the game has become so popular here. "They bring the game out with them," said Elk Grove Park District Athletic Supervisor Tom Hunter.

With this softball boom comes problems, however. Leagues are expanding at such a rapid rate that area park districts don't have the facilities to keep up with them. "We had to turn down 20 or 25 teams this year," said Wheeling's LaRocco. Others are having to turn down nearly that many.

And, although men's softball is more popular, women's leagues are becoming larger all the time.

"We're getting into an explosion of women's softball," said LaRocco. "We have three girls' teams and we could have outfitted 15 or 16. The response was just unbelievable."

Fields are a big probelm for the Arlington Heights Park District. They don't have lights. Some park districts do have lighted fields and are forced to play until 11 p.m. But they still don't have enough fields to keep up with the demand.

Some softball organizers predict the number of persons wanting to participate will continue to increase, and the result could mean fewer games for everyone. "I really do see a problem coming up in the next five years," said Bob Campbell, advertising director of Windy City Softball Magazine, and a lover of the game. "If the American Softball Assn. or the park districts get behind youth programs there will be a greater interest in softball than baseball, because there's more action.

"With the expansion of industrial and park district leagues there will be also a big surge in youth softball. At that point, teams playing twice a week may have to cut back to playing once."

Campbell and his magazine, many softball fanatics say, has been a major force in making softball more widely known in the area. "They're getting the name softball in front of the people," said one area park district official.

Although it is generally agreed that city softball is far superior to that of the suburbs, the outlying regions are developing into a stronghold of their own. And the statement of one local softball fanatic makes it clear that interest in the sport may never slacken.

"When you play the game all your life," said one player "you're going to raise your kids on it."

Which prompts one to hope that for the sake of those addicted to this sport, that there is a softball in heaven or even .... And it better be five days a week.

Q. A number of us are in disagreement concerning the singer, Charo. What is her nationality? Where is she living now? Where was she born? — D.N.

A. The 31-year-old blonde cuchi-cuchi is a native of southern Spain who now lives in Hollywood. She's a naturalized citizen.

Q. What was the name of the character played by David McCallum in "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."? — S.H.

A. Who could forget Illya Kuryakin?

Q. In the TV movie, "The Story of David," was the part of David played by two different men? Who? — M.C.

A. Timothy Bottoms was young David and Keith Michell was David the King.

Q. I have three questions about the actor who played Floyd the barber in the old "Andy Griffith Show." Is he still alive? Why didn't he ever walk on the show? Was he crippled? — R.M.

A. You're speaking of Howard McNear, who suffered a crippling stroke after the first season of the show. He was so well liked that the cast and crew pitched in to help him stay on. Scenes were written for him to sit and, when he had to "stand," it was with the aid of a special jig the men in the crew built for him. Subsequently he died, with nothing but good thoughts from those who knew him.

PAT MORITA

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - "How do you make a Jap funny?"

The question was asked by Pat Morita, the Japanese-American comedian who will star in "Mr. T and Tina," a television series that is breaking new ground by starring an Asian.

Morita's question was serious. As a stand-up comic his humor is strictly American. He knows little if anything about Japanese humor.

Considerably under medium height, Morita is a watch charm of a man who chuckles a great deal. He has a whispy mustache and a receding hairline.

As a Nisei (a second generation Japanese-America), Pat Morita is more American than Archie Bunker. In the series he plays an old-country Japanese newly arrived on these shores.

Wearing a funky hat, a T-shirt, on which a giant clam was stenciled, and chinos, Pat sipped a can of fruit juice the other day and wondered how viewers would take to an Asian hero.

"Nowadays it's popular to call us Asians instead of Orientals," he said. "What's the difference. Why not Japs or Nips. It doesn't matter to me.

"If blacks can be called blacks, why can't they call us yellows."

A nightclub comedian for more than a dozen years, Morita was seen last season as Arnold, the owner of the drive-in hangout for the kids in the highly rated "Happy Days" series.

Over the years Pat has had his ups - playing "The Hollywood Palace" - and his downs - playing third-rate clubs in the Catskills.

Pat speaks unblemished English. Unitl this series came along he couldn't fake a native Japanese trying to speak American English.

In order to star as "Mr. T," he developed a Japanese accent with the aid of Mel Blanc.

"About four years ago I was playing the Copa in New York and tried an old-country accent," he said. "On opening night Bill Dana told me I had the worst Jap accent he ever heard. And what does Dana know? He's Hungarian.

As Mr. T, Morita will play an immigrant widower with a couple of young daughters. The "Tina" in the title is an attractive governess for his little girls.

Morita describes his character as a sort of inept swinger, a genius inventor who somehow just misses when he tries to blend into the American culture.

"He's taken a Berlitz course in English and is willing to jump into the main stream of American life," Pat said. "But he messes up.

"His problem is that he tries to enforce old-country customs and manners for the kids in a new environment. But they take to American life right away.

"Mr. T would like to hang in there with the Samurai code and keep women in their place, but he can't handle it."

The incongruity of the situation provides the show's humor. Morita said there are no racial messages or subtle pleas for social justice.

"I've never tried to be a spokesman for the Japanese in this country. Or in the old country either. I don't think much in terms of race. Being part of a minority is no burden for me.

"When I'm in Japan everybody knows I'm an American. That's no burden either."

Morita hasn't had to worry about making the transition from stand-up comic to sitcom actor.

"The transition was made easier because we tape our show in front of a live audience," he explained. "It's something like working in a club.

"And I learned a lot from 'Happy Days.' I still can't believe what happened to me on that show. I appeared in only 16 episodes and became a hero to the kids in this country.

"I can't go anywhere now without being recognized as Arnold."

With luck, Morita may find a new bunch of admirers who think of him as Mr. T.

Charo

Q. A number of us are in disagreement concerning the singer, Charo. What is her nationality? Where is she living now? Where was she born? — D.N.

A. The 31-year-old blonde cuchi-cuchi is a native of southern Spain who now lives in Hollywood. She's a naturalized citizen.

David McCallum

Q. What was the name of the character played by David McCallum in "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."? — S.H.

A. Who could forget Illya Kuryakin?

Keith Michell

Q. In the TV movie, "The Story of David," was the part of David played by two different men? Who? — M.C.

A. Timothy Bottoms was young David and Keith Michell was David the King.

Timothy Bottoms

Q. I have three questions about the actor who played Floyd the barber in the old "Andy Griffith Show." Is he still alive? Why didn't he ever walk on the show? Was he crippled? — R.M.

A. You're speaking of Howard McNear, who suffered a crippling stroke after the first season of the show. He was so well liked that the cast and crew pitched in to help him stay on. Scenes were written for him to sit and, when he had to "stand," it was with the aid of a special jig the men in the crew built for him. Subsequently he died, with nothing but good thoughts from those who knew him.

10:30 2 Notorious ★★★
(1964) 2 hrs. Cary Grant, Ingrid Bergman and Claude Rains. A United States government agent and a girl, whose father was convicted of treason, undertake a dangerous mission in Brazil. Hitchcock thriller with some spine-tingling moments.

9 Two Loves ★★
(1961) 2 hrs. Shirley MacLaine, Lawrence Harvey. An unorthodox teacher in remote Northern New Zealand gets involved with a mixed-up handsome teacher who keeps threatening to kill himself.

12:30 7 A Nightmare in Chicago
Made for T.V. 1 hr. 45 min. Charles McGraw, Robert Ridgely. An escaped murderer leads Chicago police on a chase along the city's expressways.

1:15 2 The Midnight Kiss ★★½
(1949) 2 hrs. Mario Lanza, Kathryn Grayson. A truck driver, in love with a debutante, proves himself worthy of her by his operatic singing talent and the promise of a successful career.

3:20 5 Island of the Lost
(1968) 2 hrs. Richard Greene, Luke Halpin. An anthropologist and his family are shipwrecked on an uncharted island.

TUESDAY

9:00 9 Wonder Man ★★★½
(1945) 2 hrs. Danny Kaye, Virginia Mayo. Hilarious adventures of a scholarly twin who is haunted by the spirit of his gangster murdered song-and-dance-man brother.

3:30 7 The Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer ★★★
(1947) 1 hr. 30 min. Cary Grant, Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Rudy Vallee. A giddy teenager falls for a super suave bachelor, who, in turn, falls for her sister.

8:00 7 F. Scott Fitzgerald and the Last of the Belles ★★★

9 Bad Day at Black Rock ★★★
(1955) 2 hrs. Spencer Tracy, Robert Ryan, Anne Francis, Lee Marvin, Walter Brennan, Ernest Borgnine. When the train stops at Black Rock, the first time in a year, and a man gets off, the townspeople become petrified, even before knowing his mission.

10:00 11 The Astonished Heart ★★★
(1950) 1 hr. 30 min. Noel Coward, Margaret Leighton and Celia Johnson. Noel plays the central role in his own screenplay about the torment of a psychiatrist who is torn between love for his wife and a passionate desire for another women.

10:30 7 I Thank a Fool ★
(1962) 2 hrs. Susan Hayward, Peter Finch and Diane Cilento. Ridiculous melodrama about a woman doctor convicted of a "mercy killing"

3:30 7 Come September ★★½
(1961) 1 hr. 30 min. Rock Hudson, Gina Lollobrigida, Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin, Walter Slezak. Wealthy American arrives at his Italian villa two months earlier than usual and discovers his caretaker uses the place as a hotel for 11 months a year. Guests are several young ladies touring with chaperone and a group of American boys suddenly arrive on the scene.

8:00 5 Goodbye Again ★★½
(1961) 2 hrs. Ingrid Bergman, Yves Montand, Anthony Perkins. A lonely Parisian interior decorator caught between her older unfaithful lover and a young American lawyer who — though he declares his love — does not seem to provide the answer to her romantic dilemma.

9 Battle Hymn ★★★
(1957) 2 hrs. Rock Hudson, Dan Duryea, Martha Hyer, Don DeFore. Story of Col. Dean Hess, ordained minister whose W.W. II experiences prevent him from feeling qualified to perform his duties.

10:00 11 Androcles and the Lion ★★
(1952) 1 hr. 30 min. Jean Simmons, Alan Young, Robert Newton, Victor Mature, Maurice Evans and Elsa Lanchester. Distinguished all-star cast but the filmed adaption of George Bernard Shaw's comic satirical fable misses the mark.

10:30 2 Willard ★★
(1971) 2 hrs. Bruce Davison, Ernest Borgnine, Elsa Lanchester. The terrifying tale of a young man with a startling ability to communicate with and control an army of rats.

9 Elmer Gantry ★★★★
(1960) 3 hrs. Burt Lancaster, Jean Simmons, ARthur Kennedy, Shirley Jones. A hard drinking, traveling salesman, pretending to be a repentant sinner, joins an Evangelist show because of his attraction for the woman who runs it.

1:15 2 Operation Secret ★★

1:55 9 King Dinosaur
(1955) 1 hr. 10 min. Bill Bryant, Wanda Curtis. After a 10-million-mile rocket flight, an expedition team lands on the planet Nora; they find the planet similar to earth but inhabited by huge animals and reptiles.

3:30 2 Paris Model ★★

in London who later becomes romantically involved with the relentless prosecutor who sent her to prison.

7 Death to Sister Mary
(1974) 1 hr. 30 min.

9 River of No Return ★★½
(1954) 2 hrs. 5 min. Marilyn Monroe, Robert Mitchum, Rory Calhoun. A barroom entertainer and a widower with a 10-year-old son, travel down-river on a raft menaced by rapids, Indians and a sneaky gambler.

12:00 7 Dangerous Mission ★★
(1954) 1 hr. 40 min. Victor Mature, Piper Laurie, William Bendix, Vincent Price. A girl witnesses a murder, flees to Glacier National Park with a mob killer and the cops in hot pursuit.

1:05 9 Watch on the Rhine ★★★★
(1943) 2 hrs. 15 min. Paul Lukas, Bette Davis, Lucille Watson. A German man has just arrived in Washington, D.C., with his American wife and their three children on the eve of W.W. II. While staying at his mother-in-law's, another guest finds evidence which appears to involve the German in the anti-Nazi underground movement.

1:15 2 "The Harness" ★★★½
(1971) 2 hrs. Lorne Green, Murray Hamilton, Julie Sommars. A middle-aged widower falls in love with a young liberated woman shortly after his domineering wife dies.

3:15 2 The Big Heat ★★★½
(1953) 2 hrs. Glenn Ford, Gloria Grahame and Lee Marvin. A detective sets out to trap a nest of criminals, and as a result his wife is killed in an explosion meant for him. Motivated by revenge and anger he continues his pursuit of the criminals. Excellent performance by Marvin as a sadistic criminal.

WEDNESDAY

9:00 9 Invitation to the Dance
(1957) 2 hrs. Gene Kelly, Carol haney, Tamara Toumanova, Claire Sombert. This trilogy is a combination of music, dance, live-action, pantomime and animation. The sequences are "Sinbad the Sailor," "Circus" and "Ring Around the Rosy."

3:30 7 Dance, Girl, Dance ★★½
(1940) 1 hr. 30 min. Maureen O'Hara, Louis Hayward, Lucille Ball. Two show business gals who are rivals on stage also compete for the same guy when off.

7:30 44 Games of Desire ★★
(1967) 2 hrs. Ingrid Thulin, Paul Hubschmid. A woman is Athen's top hostess by day, and at night she entertains on a first-come, first-served basis in the harbor section of Pyraeus.

8:00 9 The Quiller Memorandum ★★★
(1967) 2 hrs. George Segal, Alec Guiness, Max Von Sydow. An American, employed by British Intelligence, is assigned the task of locating leaders and headquarters of a Neo-Nazi movement that is infecting the German people.

10:30 2 The Singing Nun ★★
(1966) 2 hrs. Debbie Reynolds, Chad Everett and Ricardo Montalban. The story of a nun working in a Belgium slum who enjoys her work, is dedicated to her religious vows and also sings. She faces a crises when a recording she makes becomes a hit and she must choose between two worlds.

7 The Great Ice Rip-Off
Made for T.V. 1 hr. 37 min. Lee J. Cobb, Gig Young. With $4 million in diamonds tucked into their suitcases, four semi-professional thieves use an interstate bus as a getaway car and find their caper complicated by a fellow passenger — a retired cop with a passion for solving mysteries.

9 Invitation To A Gunfighter ★★
(1965) 1 hr. 40 min. Yul Brynner, George Segal, Janice Rule. Hypocritical Western town hires a killer to destroy a returned outcast but entire plan goes wrong.

11 Nicholas Nickleby ★★★
(1947) 2 hrs. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Dame Sybil Thorndike, Cathleen Nesbitt, Sally Ann Howes. Faithful adaptation of the Charles Dickens novel about a boy who struggles to save his family from an evil uncle.

12:07 7 The Set-Up ★★★½
(1949) 1 hr. 30 min. Robert Ryan, Audrey Totter, George Tobias. An over-aged boxer trying to make a comeback puts up a good fight against crookedness in the ring.

1:15 2 The Happening ★★★
(1967) 2 hrs. Anthony Quinn, Michael Parks and Faye Dunaway. Four young people stage the mock kidnapping of a wealthy Miami businessman. When no one comes forward to rescue him and pay the ransom, the kidnap victim teaches his captors the fine art of blackmail.

3:20 2 Rhubarb ★★½
(1951) 2 hrs. Ray Milland, Jan Sterling, Gene Lockhart, William Frawley. Baseball team rebels, when they learn that they are owned by a cat who inherited them from a millionaire. The cat becomes a hero when the team uses him as a mascot and the team wins the pennant.

THURSDAY

9:00 9 Our Very Own ★★½
(1950) 2 hrs. Ann Blyth, Farley Granger, Jane Wyatt, Natalie Wood. Emotional problems faced by a young girl when she discovers she is an adopted child.

3:30 7 Come September ★★½
(1961) 1 hr. 30 min. Rock Hudson, Gina Lollobrigida, Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin, Walter Slezak. Wealthy American arrives at his Italian villa two months earlier than usual and discovers his caretaker uses the place as a hotel for 11 months a year. Guests are several young ladies touring with chaperone and a group of American boys suddenly arrive on the scene.

8:00 5 Goodbye Again ★★½
(1961) 2 hrs. Ingrid Bergman, Yves Montand, Anthony Perkins. A lonely Parisian interior decorator caught between her older unfaithful lover and a young American lawyer who — though he declares his love — does not seem to provide the answer to her romantic dilemma.

9 Battle Hymn ★★★
(1957) 2 hrs. Rock Hudson, Dan Duryea, Martha Hyer, Don DeFore. Story of Col. Dean Hess, ordained minister whose W.W. II experiences prevent him from feeling qualified to perform his duties.

10:00 11 Androcles and the Lion ★★
(1952) 1 hr. 30 min. Jean Simmons, Alan Young, Robert Newton, Victor Mature, Maurice Evans and Elsa Lanchester. Distinguished all-star cast but the filmed adaption of George Bernard Shaw's comic satirical fable misses the mark.

10:30 2 Willard ★★
(1971) 2 hrs. Bruce Davison, Ernest Borgnine, Elsa Lanchester. The terrifying tale of a young man with a startling ability to communicate with and control an army of rats.

9 Elmer Gantry ★★★★
(1960) 3 hrs. Burt Lancaster, Jean Simmons, ARthur Kennedy, Shirley Jones. A hard drinking, traveling salesman, pretending to be a repentant sinner, joins an Evangelist show because of his attraction for the woman who runs it.

1:15 2 Operation Secret ★★

1:55 9 King Dinosaur
(1955) 1 hr. 10 min. Bill Bryant, Wanda Curtis. After a 10-million-mile rocket flight, an expedition team lands on the planet Nora; they find the planet similar to earth but inhabited by huge animals and reptiles.

3:30 2 Paris Model ★★
(1953) 1 hr. 30 min. Marilyn Maxwell and Paulette Goddard. Four episodes revolving around a dress . . . how four different women buy it, hoping to impress a certain man, and how the efforts of the original and the three copies fail.

FRIDAY

9:00 9 Law and the Lady ★★
(1951) 2 hrs. Greer Garson, Michael Wilding, Fernando Lamas, Marjorie Main. Black sheep of a titled English family guides a charming female criminal masquerading as a rich widow in the correct ways of fleecing society people.

3:30 7 The Lively Set ★★
(1964) 1 hr. 30 min. James Darren, Pamela Tiffin, Doug McClure, Joanie Sommers, Marilyn Maxwell, Peter Mann. A cocky young race car builder-driver enters college, builds a car for millionaire racer, but wrecks it, before being willing to accept his professor's and future brother-in-law's assistance and settle down at school

8:00 2 The Thousand Plane Raid ★★
(1969) 2 hrs. Christopher George, Laraine Stephens and J. D. Cannon. A hardnose commander of a bombardment group masterminds a daring and dangerous assault behind enemy lines.

7 Waterloo ★★
(1971) 2 hrs. Rod Steiger, Christopher Plummer, Orson Welles. Spectacular battle scenes highlight the epic drama of Napoleon's final defeat.

9 Further Perils of Laurel and Hardy ★★
(1967) 2 hrs. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Jean Harlow, Charlie Chase. A collection of the most hilarious moments in Laurel and Hardy's career before they were a team and afterwards.

10:00 11 Jules and Jim ★★★
(1961) 1 hr. 45 min. Oskar Werner and Jeanne Moreau. Two friends fall in love with the same woman in a romantic drama that spans twenty years. A touching and tender love story.

10:30 2 Who's Minding the Store? ★★
(1963) 2 hrs. Jerry Lewis, Jill St. John, Agnes Moorehead, John McGiver. A poor hard-working man who earns his living as a poodle walker falls madly in love with a girl he believes is just an elevator operator

9 Topkapi ★★★★
(1964) 2 hrs. Melina Mercouri, Peter Ustinov. Woman and her lover conspire to steal a sultan's encrusted dagger

12:30 7 Fear No Evil ★★★
(1969) 1 hr. 30 min. Louis Jourdan, Carroll O'Connor, Bradford Dillman. A scientist into occult doings obtains a mirror that takes him into the supernatural world.

1:00 9 Flame of the Barbary Coast ★★½
(1945) 1 hr. 50 min. John Wayne. A gambling-house entrepreneur romances a dance hall queen.

BEGINNER'S CORNER: Hint and explanation — Black's king knight's pawn is conveniently pinned.

A most revealing document has just come my way, i.e. the translation of an interview with Bobby Fischer's longtime friend, Yugoslav grandmaster, Svetozar Gligoric.

The following excerpts appeared originally in the Soviet magazine "Chess Riga" several months ago:

Question: "How would you explain Fischer's withdrawal from chess . . . ?"

Answer: "Fischer, in contrast to other contemporary chessplayers, is much too concerned with social prestige. When he became World Champion, he started to fear failures to the point of panic. I have the impression that the American grandmaster considers himself responsible before the history of chess and therefore wants to offer productions of only the highest quality."

Question: "Why did Fischer still refuse to play a match with Karpov?"

Answer: "Fischer is not sure of himself, since he hasn't played for a long time. After all he is a realistic and objective chessplayer. Although he has maintained his great strength in chess, he is still very much afriad of defeat. As he sees it, a loss to Karpov could only be accidental, but he is afriad of such an accident. Otherwise, there is the temptation of remaining undefeated and of being considered the strongest chessplayer in the world in the eyes of the public even if he does not hold the official title."

It is time to say a word about the Republic of the Philippines, which at this moment is hosting the Interzonal Torunament in Manila.

The Philippines, which offered the unheard-of sum of five million dollars to host the abortive 1976 Kischer-Karpov match, gained its first grandmaster, Eugenio Torre, about the same time.

Torre is a national hero, movie star, and sex symbol as well as a high calibre chess talent, who has already beaten Tal, Hort, and Portisch.

IN SOLVE-IT is the wrap-up of his victory over Czechoslovakian grandmaster Vlastimil Hort:

In the diagrammed position, Torre played 38.B-Q6!. After Hort's reply, 38. . . . Q-R4 (with the spite threat of 39. . . . Q-Q8 mate) and Torre's rebuttal 39.Q-N1, Hort had to resign because of the forced loss of his bishop.

Notice that 39. . .. . BxB would fail to 40.RxPch, K-R1; 41. RxPch, QxR; 42. QxQ mate!

Solution to BEGINNER'S CORNER-White concludes with 1.Q-R6ch, K-N1; and 2.QxP mate.

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The first bidding systems in contract all stressed fairly light opening bids in first and second seat and much stronger minimums for third and fourth hand. Hal Sims was the first top expert to lean the other way. He probably went a trifle too far, but his arguments with Culbertson and the real old timers did a lot to lead to the modern theory that if a hand is worth an opening bid in one seat, it is worth an opening bid in all seats.

Hal also thought of the Sims three bid to ask for aces. The idea was good; unfortunately the hand hardly ever came up. When it did, the results were likely to be very good.

Today's hand occurred in the 1930 Easterns. Hal and Willard Karn, his partner, were one of the few pairs to play at six hearts.

Others played seven hearts or six or seven spades with one pair actually playing seven notrump doubled and going down nine.

Even with the best modern methods it is very probable that most pairs in a match-point game would go astray with this monstrosity.

Moonscope to be unveiled at Antique Auto Museum

While most Americans will usher in July 4th by attending local celebrations, one man will sneak preview what could be our mode of transportation 100 years from today on earth or on the moon.

J. J. Born, president of the Chicago Historical Antique Automobile Museum in Highland Park, will unveil the unique auto, dubbed the Moonscope, this weekend.

The Moonscope is a far-out vehicle capable of traveling on the earth's surface or the moon's. It is electrically powered. Six spider-type wheels move in all directions to ride over street bumps or moon craters. The tires are foam filled for low pressure so no air is necessary. Oxygen bottles for emergency air are provided if the earth's atmosphere isn't better by the year 2076 or for use on the moon.

More than 2,000 man hours were spent in engineering, designing and building the Moonscope by George Barris, renowned car builder. The car is valued at $100,000.

In contrast to the car of the future Born plans to display a unique car of the past as well — former Egyptian King Farouk's custom Cadillac. Constructed when "bigger was better" the king's custom Caddy started life as a 1959 Eldorado convertible. More than two feet was added to the oversized auto and a town-car roof was added to expose the chauffeur.

The museum, 3200 Skokie Valley Rd., has set special summer hours for the public. It will be open daily 9 a.m. to midnight. Admission is $2.50 adults, $1.25 for children.
